Bad check passers bilking suburban banks, businesses

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1496 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,500 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person

Village bus: 'excellent' start

In its first month of operation, the Wheeling village bus has carried 1,020 passengers, an average of 41 per day. Total income for the month of bus service was $373.52.

"In my opinion this is an excellent record for the first month of operation," said Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt. He added that community response to the bus seems to be enthusiastic, judging from the number of calls he has received from residents requesting schedules and asking for information.

Passolt's figures show that Route One is the most heavily traveled bus route, closely followed by Route Two. In the first month, 484 passengers traveled Route One and 382 traveled Route Two. Only 154 passengers traveled Route Three, which covers the southern section of the village.

A more detailed study of the bus routes is being made to show how many passengers use the various bus stops at different hours of bus operation. Passolt said he plans to use this study to revise the schedules to make use of the bus more convenient and efficient.

Passolt said, however, that he will not change the bus service for two or three months. He said he would need that much time to accurately evaluate the present bus schedule.

The village is presently working with the state to make arrangements for the bus to stop along Dundee Road, a state right-of-way. The village board recently passed an ordinance prohibiting parking along the road so the state would allow posting of bus stop signs there.

Independent Party to weigh platform

Members of the Wheeling Independent Party will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow to discuss and pass a party platform for the upcoming village elections.

WIIP candidates and party members have been working on proposals for the party platform for the past month. These proposals will be presented at the meeting and voted on by the party membership.

The meeting, at the Dist. 21 Administration Building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., is open to the public.

Village takes fifth; won't meet tonight

The Wheeling Village Board will not meet tonight because it is the fifth Monday of the month. The next board meeting will be at 8 p.m. Feb. 5 at the village municipal building.

School board member won't seek third term

Ronald Cole

Wheeling resident Ronald Cole has announced that he will not seek a third term on the Dist. 21 school board. He has been a member of the board for six years.

Meanwhile, board member Edwin Smith, who also has been on the board for six years, said he will seek a third term and will seek support from the Dist. 21 General Caucus.

A third board member, Rev. L. James Wylie, said he still is undecided as to his candidacy.

COLE IS A former president of the school board and has been a Wheeling resident for 17 years. Recently he was selected to serve on the Wheeling Pal-Waukee Airport steering committee to form better relations between the village and the airport.

Cole said he was not seeking a third term because of business priorities. He said he had given the decision a great deal of thought and is sorry to leave the board.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill, speaking on behalf of the administration, said he was sorry to see Cole leave the board. "The Dist. 21 board is like a family, and when someone leaves after six years you have to be a little sad."

"I can't argue with the fact that being on this board is very time consuming. Ron has given us that time and effort and we appreciate his work for Dist. 21," said Gill.

Cole will remain on the school board until the April election.

SMITH WILL TRY to stretch his years on the board to nine with the upcoming election. In the past two years he has acted as the board's liaison in contract negotiations with the Wheeling Faculty Council.

A resident of Buffalo Grove, Smith is a teacher and coach at Maine South High School in Des Plaines. He has lived in Dist. 21 for 15 years and is a former Wheeling village trustee.

Smith will seek the General Caucus support at its meeting Feb. 14. The caucus will begin screening candidates, and on that night will vote to support as many as four candidates who they feel are suitable for election.

The caucus meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Dist. 21 Administrative Center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Caucus meetings are open to the public, but only delegates can vote.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $288 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.

The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 539 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

Juan V. Corona goes back to court today with hopes for a new trial planned to charges that a sheriff's matron influenced a 63-year-old woman juror's vote. Naomi Underwood, a widow, and Georgia Wallace, a part-time county attendant are key figures in the defense effort to overturn Corona's conviction for killing 25 migrant workers.

At least six tornadoes ripped through central Florida, tearing the roof off an apartment, damaging homes, throwing trees around like toothpicks, and injuring at least 18 persons. The worst damage was in Orlando where 14 were hurt and 300 left homeless when a tornado tore the roof off their apartment building.

The World

British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops. In Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.

Special medical evacuation planes are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.

China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as convincing proof that "sanity and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

The War

The Vietnam war ended officially with the sound of church bells and pagoda gongs in Saigon, but the momentum of fighting continued for hours past the 8 a.m. cease-fire deadline. The Communists captured 66 hamlets after the truce went into effect.

Hayes to head Center advisory panel

Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor and publisher, will serve this year as chairman of the newly reorganized Advisory Council for The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center.

Announcement of the new 15-member council was made by Brig. Helen McClellan, director of The Salvation Army Family Service Division, which administers the suburban counseling center.

The former council was dissolved last year and an interim committee headed by Hayes supervised the reorganization under new bylaws.

Ten regular members of the council represent various Northwest area communities served by the Center with five "ex-officio" members representing The Salvation Army and the family service agency.

THE ADVISORY group assists the Family Service Division in the administration and operation of the Center, develops community-wide information and education programs interpreting needs and services, and participates in establishment of policy and goals.

Secretary of the council is Mary A. Young, welfare consultant to the Family Service Division and an "ex-officio" member of the board. She served in a similar capacity for the previous advisory group.

Hayes was elected to the original council in 1968 and also served for more than 10 years on The Salvation Army Service Unit for Arlington Heights. He lives at 1 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights.

OTHER REGULAR members are:
• Mrs. Jean Branding, public health nurse for Des Plaines and official representative of Salvation Army Service Units on the Council;

• Mrs. Eugene S. Chapman, 16 S. Princeton Court, Arlington Heights, member of Illinois House of Representatives and long-time worker in Northwest area family service programs;

• Mrs. Ethel Kolerus, 9 N. Pine Ave., Mount Prospect, Wheeling Township Supervisor and former head of American Cancer Society Northwest Suburban Unit;

• Steven G. Novick, 220 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, city editor of The Herald of Schaumburg Township;

• Mrs. Virginia Hayter, 384 Carlton La., Hoffman Estates, member of Hoffman Estates Village Board of Trustees;

• Mrs. Janet Schwettman, 1819 W. Palatine Rd., Inverness, leader in development of local mobile emergency medical care programs and new state paramedic legislation;

• Dr. Albert E. Smedley, 503 S. Pine Ave., Mount Prospect, educational sales consultant for Frank Thornber Co. and member of The Salvation Army Chicago Advisory Board;

• Rev. Edwin I. Stevens, 110 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, pastor emeritus of South Church-Community Baptist, Mount Prospect, and a past chairman of the Advisory Council; and

• James F. Vesely, 1026 Sharon La., Schaumburg, Herald managing editor and a director of Schaumburg Township United Fund.

The "ex-officio" members in addition to Miss Young are:

• Brig. Helen McClellan, director of The Salvation Army Family Service Division;

• Mrs. Margaret Lisinski, director of the Community Counseling Center;

• Capt. Gary Herndon, director, The Salvation Army Greater Chicago Welfare Services; and

• Edward Looock, director of public relations, The Salvation Army Unified Command.

The Community Counseling Center provides individual and family counseling service to residents of Northwest suburbs through its offices in Des Plaines, Schaumburg and Palatine. A fourth office will open soon in Arlington Heights.

Activities of the Advisory Council include publication of a newsletter, sponsorship of an annual community dinner, and maintenance of a speaker's bureau for local organizations interested in the work of the Center. The council also produced a new brochure which is getting wide distribution throughout the Northwest suburbs. It summarizes the scope and focus of the Center and its programs.

Salvation Army making doughnuts under bombardment of German guns at the Front Line in France. This photo from a 1918 postal card was provided by a Mount Prospect veteran and shows workers making doughnuts under bombardment of German guns at the Front Line in France.

Recalls deeds while in France

Vet repays 'debt' to Salvation Army

by STEVE NOVICK

The Salvation Army made a friend 58 years ago — a friendship that compelled a 79-year-old veteran of World War I to make a contribution to the Herald Center Fund last week.

The veteran is Paul Holste, 218 S. Main St., Mount Prospect.

He is one of nearly 1,000 Herald readers who have responded to an appeal for emergency funds to help The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center meet its 1972 operating deficit.

The contribution was Holste's expression of appreciation for services provided by The Salvation Army to American soldiers assigned to the front lines of France in 1917-18.

Accompanying his gift was a war postal card with a photograph showing Salvation Army workers making doughnuts under bombardment of German guns on the front line in France.

HOLSTE REMEMBERS it well — he was there.

Assigned to a transport unit attached to the U. S. Army First Division, he worked on a "supply train" made up of heavy trucks which carried ammunition and life-supporting supplies to "third line trenches." From there, smaller transport outfits would carry supplies to men serving the front lines in the 18th, 18th, 26th and 28th Infantry units.

"The Salvation Army personnel were always with us," recalls Holste. "They baked doughnuts for the boys, delivered letters and they also wrote letters for us. I helped them deliver doughnuts and other materials. They played a big part in our lives, were always there when needed."

"I'll never forget all they did for us."

They never asked for anything in return."

HOLSTE SAID HE was assigned to the transport unit because he spoke German, learned here in parochial schools, and thus could read directional signs once American troops entered Germany.

Because of The Salvation Army's kindness in 1918, he felt keenly about responding to its need for help in 1973.

His contribution will help ensure the Army's Community Counseling Center ability to continue providing help to troubled families and individuals in Northwest suburbs.

Memories of World War I and other traditional images of The Salvation Army linger with many people, including the traditional picture of gospel singers and Christian soldiers in uniform, preachers and strong-eyed women who help the lame, the drunk and the sick.

THE TRUTH is that the Army is still long on commitment and dedication — but it has become increasingly professional in its attitude toward the ill of society and recognizes that the pressures of modern life are just as awesome in the suburbs as they are in the ghetto.

Founded in 1885 in England, The Salvation Army originally was aimed at spreading religion and helping the poor.

Today the Army is not selling gospel lessons out of the Old Testament, preaching hell fire and damnation nor catering only to the poor of Skid Row.

Through the Community Counseling Center headquartered in Des Plaines, it is reaching out to help the poor in spirit throughout Northwest suburbs.

AS THE ONLY professional family service agency of its kind in this area, the Center is the place where troubled families and individuals can bring their woes for professional help.

To make certain this help continues to be made available to suburban families, The Herald is asking readers to donate $1 or more to an emergency fund.

Contributions may be sent to Herald Center Fund, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Checks should be made payable to Salvation Army Community Counseling Center. Names of all persons contributing $1 or more will be published in The Herald.

Won't you help?

Won't you help? The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center urgently needs our support. It is to continue serving families in Northwest suburbs. A dollar sent to the Herald Center Fund, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, can make a difference. ## Tulsa Choir benefit grosses more than $1,000 for fund

An audience of 450 persons gave standing ovations Friday night to the University of Tulsa Modern Choir and director Arthur Hestwood.

The widely-acclaimed choir ended its 21st national tour with a benefit concert in First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights.

Benefit chairman Wilson Wadsworth,

1407 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights, said the concert grossed in excess of $1,000. Net proceeds will be equally divided between The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center and Northwest Opportunity Center.

Two alumni of the university and Modern Choir joined the group for its encore numbers. They were NBC weatherman Harry Volkman and WGN announcer John Doremus, who also was soloist for the choir's final number, "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Doremus served as master of ceremonies for the program.

Program for dropouts conducts registration

Registration is now under way for the second semester of the "High School Diploma Program" offered to persons who have dropped out of school. The program is offered by High School Dist. 211.

The program is open to persons 16 and over. Classes are generally held at Fremd High School between 6 and 10 p.m.

Classroom courses include those required by the state department of education, such as English, American History and social studies. Elective courses include vocational classes.

Courses are offered one or two nights a week. Those who need courses not offered in the school may take classes at home.

Enrollment for the classes extends through Feb. 8. Students who will study at home may enroll any time.

Hosts being sought for foreign students

Persons interested in hosting a Prospect High School foreign student next year can find out about the program at a meeting Thursday, Feb. 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

The program is being held by the Prospect High School chapter of the American Field Service. The chapter is seeking a host family for the 1973-74 school year.

Students between 18 and 19 from more than 60 countries participate in the AFS program.

'Village liable for safety at ditch'

by JILL BETTNER

The responsibility for the safety of children who play near White Pine Ditch belongs to the village, according to Buffalo Grove Park District officials.

The park board voted Thursday to earmark $2,500 for a cooperative project with the village to develop land surrounding the ditch into a nature area and two small parks.

Last summer, a young girl was seriously hurt while playing in the vicinity of the ditch. Park officials say if the attraction of the proposed improvements there causes more accidents, the village will have to worry about it.

"There are creeks and bodies of water throughout the nation," Comr. Dede Armstrong said. "We can't fence them all off. Besides, a fence there would just invite children to climb over it." Later, Mrs. Armstrong said if a recommendation is made to install fences in certain areas around the ditch, she would agree to it.

RESIDENTS in the area have said they feel the biggest danger in the area are the high banks of the ditch. Plans are to slope the west bank somewhat, but Village Eng. Arnold Seaberg has said sloping or cutting the bank very much would be too costly.

Seaberg told the Herald Friday that he isn't sure that the high banks actually constitute a danger. He said the girl who was hurt was not playing on the banks.

In addition to slightly grading the west bank of the ditch, the plans call for the village to take steps to solve the serious drainage and erosion problems in the area. The work is to include installation of drainage tiles and seeding of the entire area.

The $2,500 the park district has set aside for the project was determined according to a $5,000 estimate of the cost of the first phase of the $11,100 project.

PARK BOARD Pres. William Kiddle said Thursday that the $2,500 is not necessarily the limit of the park district's financial participation in the improvement program. Kiddle said the park district will assume the cost of all "beautification" of the area, namely landscaping and seeding, plus any grading necessary for recreation purposes.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board voted to purchase about 3.5 acres just west of the Cambridge subdivision from William Simpson for $64,750. The district is condemning 0.75 acres in that area for a park and is negotiating now to purchase the remaining property.

The commissioners also opened bids for remodeling of the Emmerich Park building. The low estimate of $28,762 was submitted by F. J. Richter of Prospect Heights. A special meeting to award the contract for the job is scheduled for Thursday.

Condition of wells in question

Strong Street residents to testify

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Four of the 40 West Strong Street area homeowners who filed suit against the Village of Wheeling and apartment developer Victor Smigel will be called to testify as adverse witnesses for the defense today before Circuit Court Judge Robert Downing.

Attorney John M. Daley, representing Smigel, called for the witnesses Friday to testify about the condition of the drinking water coming from wells on their property.

Daley said the condition of the wells reflects on the values of the homes in the area.

Judge Downing agreed, noting pleadings in the case include the charge that the village damaged the value of single-family homes in the area by rezoning 47 vacant lots for six-flat apartment buildings.

The judge also said public health was cited as another reason the village zoning decision ought to be reversed and said the question of the wells related to the public health.

DALEY CALLED for the four plaintiffs to testify after the attorney for the residents, John M. Burke, succeeded in keeping Cook County and Village of Wheeling test results from the wells out of the court record.

Daley said he may have to call the people who conducted the tests to the stand if he cannot get sufficient facts about the wells from the four plaintiffs.

Daley also said Friday he plans to call Smigel to testify in the case.

Burke said he will have two rebuttal witnesses once the defense completes its case.

He filed a motion asking that Village

Mgr. George Passolt be called to return to the court room with documents reflecting the amount of excess funds in Wheeling's water and sewer bond fund.

BURKE SAID he believes the village has a surplus in the fund of close to $300,000 and could spend up to 80 percent of that money if it wanted to bring sewer and water into the West Strong Street area.

He said the village and Smigel are basing their case on the grounds that the development is needed to bring sewer and water service to the West Strong Street area.

Judge Downing questioned whether he would not be interfering with the village's legislative discretion by considering the availability of the funds, but he said he would require Passolt to bring in the records.

Atty. Jack Siegel is representing the village in the case. He charged in court that Burke wanted the village to use monies accumulated in the fund before the West Strong Street area was annexed to the village to "improve his (Burke's) clients' property."

"We might want to put that money into areas that would yield some return in taxes," Siegel said on behalf of the village. He commented that many of the homes in the West Strong Street area are valued at only $10,000.

SIEGEL AND DALEY agreed to have only one member of each of the four families on whose wells they want information called into court.

But the two attorneys warned that the one family member who did show up should have the information about the well and should speak English.

In testimony in the fourth day of the trial Friday Judge Downing heard from a real estate broker and appraiser and from a consulting civil engineer.

The engineer, Paul A. Spies of the firm of Ciorba, Spies and Gustafson of Wilmette, said he had conducted tests on the soil in the area and found that in five of seven locations the water table was so high he could not even test the ground for use as a septic field.

He said that tests showed the land could not be developed without sewer and water service. Spies estimated that if the village installed the utilities the cost under special assessment would be $7300 per lot.

WHILE THOSE improvements for the whole area would cost $855,000 under the special assessment system, Smigel can install improvements for the 47 lots at a total cost of $290,000, Spies said.

Ralph H. Martin, the real estate broker and appraiser, said "The area has not developed over the years as a good residential subdivision. There are a predominance of uses other than single family, including industrial and multi-family uses." He recommended the land be developed R-4 as the village has zoned it.

He gave figures to show it would be economically unfeasible to resubdivide the area and develop it with single family homes.

He said the property would have to be developed with $40-$45 thousand homes to make a profit and said that there was no market for homes in that price range in that neighborhood. "The area is just not that desirable residentially. There are too many aesthetically displeasing things around it and in it in order to attract that type of housing," he said.

Martin also testified he did not believe the apartments would affect the value of the homes in the area.

Bad check ring bilking area banks, businesses

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $300 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an ex-convict who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

Belles of St. Mary's cookbooks on sale

Cookbooks compiled by the Belles of St. Mary's Women's club are on sale. The books contain more than 700 recipes submitted for publication by the men and women of St. Mary's parish. There is a special section titled "From Men Only" and a selection of recipes for important occasions. Also included are helpful cooking hints and special tips for successful baking.

The books, at $4 each, may be purchased at the church before and after any of the Masses or at Joann's Country Flower Shop, across the street from the church.

Recreation group to meet Tuesday

A general meeting of the Buffalo Grove Recreation Association is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course Clubhouse.

The main purpose of the meeting is to discuss the budget for the 1973 baseball program. Registration for the program is set for Feb. 24 and 25 and March 3 and 4.

Oh, have we a home for buffalo to roam?

Could it be that someone in Buffalo Grove would like to have a buffalo enough to steal one?

The suggestion that the village obtain one of the beasts has been discussed from time to time, and now three of them are missing from a ranch in Moscow, Idaho.

Will Olesen, a rancher who has a home where the buffalo roam, recently notified Moscow authorities that three of them were missing.

He has six of the animals that he raised for food and for sale. Each weighs about a ton, and is worth between $400 and $700.

Olesen says, however, that the buffalo may not have been "spirited away" in the night. "They're bound to wander off every once in a while, just like a cow," he said. He has asked neighboring ranchers to contact him if they see the roaming buffalo.

It may look suspicious, however, if three of the beasts turn up in Buffalo Grove.

Hearing Wednesday for local fire station

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission will hold a public hearing Wednesday on the Wheeling Fire District's petition for annexation and zoning of land on Dundee Road for a Buffalo Grove fire station.

Through village Trustee Randall Rathjen, the fire district has obtained a four-month option to buy 6 1/2 acres directly west of the Kingswood Methodist Church on Dundee Road for $350,000. The purchase is contingent on gaining the necessary zoning.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department plans to build a station on about two acres and sell the rest for single-family residences.

log after he stole it. Unless the thieves were either stealing the trees "to order" for a dealer or had "underground" connections with the export tree industry, there was no easy way to get rid of the logs.

WILHELM SAID black walnut wood is expensive, "but it is not gold. How they (thieves) make very much money is a mystery to me."

"The dumbest thing to do would be to take it (the tree) to a saw mill," said Wilhelm. He said the mill could take a cut from the log and turn it over to the sheriff. Growth rings on the cut would match rings on the stump left in the ground "like a fingerprint," according to Wilhelm. If the stump was left from a stolen tree "you've got the guy cold," he said.

Mattson said black walnut trees were also stolen last winter. He said the trees

No abortions at 2 hospitals

No abortions will be performed at the two Northwest suburban Catholic hospitals in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, but officials at other area hospitals say the matter still is an open question.

The statements from hospital officials came in the wake of a ruling last week striking down two states' anti-abortion laws.

"As a member of the Catholic Hospital Association, which has taken a strong stand against abortion, we will not be performing abortions in this hospital," a spokesman at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village said.

AT HOLY FAMILY Hospital in Des Plaines, Sister M. Amata, executive vice president of the hospital, said, "We are following the directive of the Roman Catholic Church and are solidly behind (John) Cardinal Cody."

Both positions were in keeping with a statement earlier last week by Cardinal

Cody blasting the U.S. Supreme Court decision permitting women to obtain abortions through their 12th week of pregnancy. Cody called on Catholics in the medical field to oppose and resist performing abortions.

Two other suburban hospitals Northwest Community and Lutheran General hospitals, said they would wait for a clarification of the Illinois abortion law before taking any position.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has taken no stand on the issue because abortion for non-therapeutic reasons is illegal in the state, Jack Ryan, hospital spokesman, said.

RYON SAID there will be a decision made when the Illinois courts give an interpretation of the abortion laws.

"At that time the medical staff and the hospital administration will sit down and determine a policy that will certainly be within the rules set down by the state," he said.

"The hospital policy will be set by the

Northwest Community Hospital is a non-denominational institution.

AT LUTHERAN General Hospital in Park Ridge, a spokesman said the American Protestant Hospital Association of Chicago, of which the hospital is a member, has not been opposed to abortion in the past. However, he said the hospital would be autonomous in making a decision on the issue.

The Supreme Court decision was made last Monday on appeals from Texas and Georgia, and an Illinois abortion prohibition has been waiting for a high court ruling for two years. However, abortion will not be legal in Illinois until a decision is made on the constitutionality of the state's abortion statute.

New maternity policy gains approval

A new maternity leave policy for teachers in Dist. 21 was approved by the school board Thursday.

The school district's attorneys felt that there should be a policy on file because of recent court hearings regarding such leave in schools across the United States.

All leave rendered under the new policy will be without pay. Leave will be granted to all tenured teachers. If they follow prescribed procedures as outlined in the policy.

Under special circumstances, a maternity leave may be granted to a non-tenured teacher by action of the board and they will follow all the rules of a tenured teacher.

HOWEVER, A non-tenured teacher who is granted the leave will have to be employed as a full-time teacher for two consecutive school terms before again becoming eligible for tenure. The board also points out in its policy that leave to one non-tenured teacher shall not constitute a precedent for the granting of future leaves.

The new policy also applies to teachers who are adopting children. Those teachers are allotted the same privileges as teachers actually giving birth to children.

The board also discussed how the policy will work in relation to men teachers, and decided that theoretically it would be the same. "However, I don't see how many men could afford to take off from work, without pay, after their wives have children," said one board member.

There has been no comment from the Wheeling Faculty Council on the new policy, but it is reportedly going to be discussed during contract negotiations.

In other action Thursday night, the board approved a bid of $4,775 for sound equipment to go into the Nathaniel Hawthorne school.

IT ALSO announced that Mark Twain principal, Dennis Carpenter, will be transferred to the new Washington Irving School in Buffalo Grove and Katie Sammel, principal of Walt Whitman school, will be the district's new science coordinator.

The board approved the appointment of intern Bob Gerry as the new principal of Robert Louis Stevenson school and said David Statson will be the new principal of James Whitcomb Riley school in Arlington Heights.

Statson will be the only one of the four principals to start his job this year. He will begin at Riley school today. He came to Dist. 21 from Waterloo, Iowa. Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district is still interviewing for the openings now at Whitman and Twain schools.

Black walnuts disappearing from preserve

Rustlers went thataway with trees

by FRED GACA

The black walnut tree rustlers are at it again.

James Mattson, superintendent of the Northwest Cook County section of the Forest Preserve District, said black walnut trees are again being stolen from Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Mattson said he suspects that one group is responsible for taking the trees. He estimated that "two to 10 men are in the group. They have to be experts. They know the woods better than we do. They're in and out of the woods with a tree in half an hour to 45 minutes."

The trees that have been stolen are 60 to 200 years old, according to Mattson. Seven trees have been stolen thus far this year.

Mattson said the thieves apparently drive into the woods after midnight in a large truck that has a winch and boom mounted on it. They saw down the tree and then cut away the base log (portion of the trunk from the ground to the point where the branches start). The log is loaded on the truck and the thieves drive out of the woods.

The thieves will also cut down any trees in the way of the black walnuts to get to them.

HOW MUCH the thieves get for the logs depends on the size and quality of the trees. George Wilhelm, president of the R & S Bacon Veneer Co., said a black walnut log could bring at least $10 to $15 on the open market from a reputable dealer. A log 35 inches in diameter by 12 feet could be worth as much as $1,000, depending on the quality.

But, Wilhelm, who has been in the lumber business 35 years, said he had no idea what a tree thief would do with the log after he stole it. Unless the thieves were either stealing the trees "to order" for a dealer or had "underground" connections with the export tree industry, there was no easy way to get rid of the logs.

WILHELM SAID black walnut wood is expensive, "but it is not gold. How they (thieves) make very much money is a mystery to me."

"The dumbest thing to do would be to take it (the tree) to a saw mill," said Wilhelm. He said the mill could take a cut from the log and turn it over to the sheriff. Growth rings on the cut would match rings on the stump left in the ground "like a fingerprint," according to Wilhelm. If the stump was left from a stolen tree "you've got the guy cold," he said.

Low-income housing alert bill sought

State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced legislation that would require the Illinois Housing Development Authority to notify members of the General Assembly of any low or moderate-income housing projects proposed in their legislative districts.

The bill would also require notice to be given to municipalities, townships, counties and local housing authorities in whose area such projects are proposed.

The Housing Development Authority was established in 1967 under a bill which cited displacement of citizens due to urban renewal projects and spreading slum conditions.

According to Regner, "The proposal does nothing more than mandate dissemination of information to the members of the General Assembly and other local officials as to what the Authority is doing."

"We're elected to represent the people of our area, and to do it properly we must have all information as to what is happening in our area. This is an identical law to one passed several years ago regarding NIPC (the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission).

REGNER ALSO HAS introduced an amendment to the State Purchasing Act to include junior colleges.

The Purchasing Act authorizes state agencies to combine buying orders to reduce costs.

"With the skyrocketing cost of higher education today," said Regner, "it's absolutely necessary we do everything possible to keep costs down to help the beleaguered taxpayer."

"This bill would allow junior colleges to participate in the state Joint Purchasing Act. Many local governments now participate with the state and save numerous dollars by obtaining quantity discounts. I hope the junior college boards will support this proposal and help pass it into law."

REPUBLICAN committeeman Carl R.

Hansen of Elk Grove Township has issued a public statement defining the policy of his township organization on participation in local elections below the township level.

Hansen pointed out that the name of the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization may not be used in connection with local election candidates without the formal endorsement of the organization.

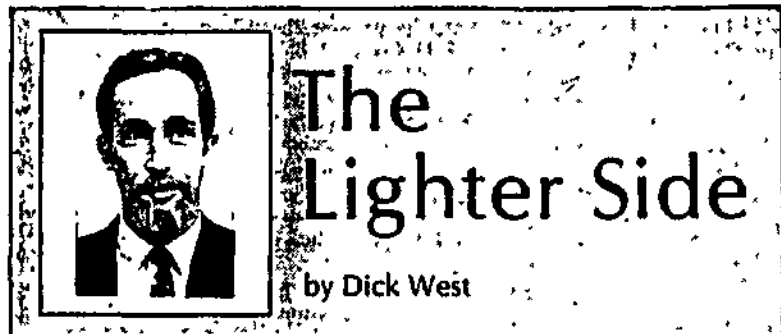

The group's policy does not preclude participation in local elections by the organization, if such were decided upon by the membership.

However, Hansen said, "Local elections can easily pose problems for organizations such as ours. Unless an established party label such as Republican clearly identifies specific candidates, or unless the organization takes a public stand based on an overwhelming consensus, members of organizations such as ours are quite likely to be found on more than one side of a local election battle."

This general policy is subject to change, he noted, in the event of "injection of a partisan note," on a local election. Hansen said this of 127 legislative candidates endorsed in the recent state election, 81 per cent were Democrats. Such a balance of Democratic endorsements by others at the local level, he hinted, would be seen as grounds for mobilizing the party organizations.

Hansen also added that the organization did not discourage participation in local elections by individual members — with the exception of the committeeman, deputy committeemen and other "key personnel" as determined by the executive committee.

Similar policies on local elections are followed by most Republican and Democratic township organizations in the Northwest suburbs.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The modern military machine with its huge bombers, warships and tanks burning up no telling how many gallons of fuel per minute could become one of the chief victims of the energy crisis.

Some folks say it also is one of the chief causes of the energy crisis, but that is another matter.

Even now, far-seeing contingency planners and advance idea men are preparing for the eventuality of a fuel shortage in the armed forces.

Among those working on the problem is The Future Is Yesterday Corp., a private research center and "think tank."

A few days ago, I paid a visit to the center to see what progress was being made on weapons of the future.

WITH HARRY McErst, a project engineer, serving as my guide, I was shown into a room containing a large rockpile, a big bundle of wooden branches and a quantity of leather thongs.

"Since fuel shortages may curtail conventional warfare, the concept here at The Future Is Yesterday is to create weapons that utilize materials still in plentiful supply," McErst said.

"Two of the earth's most abundant materials are sticks and stones. Convert them into weapons and you can break an awful lot of bones."

"Well said, but words will never hurt anyone," I pointed out. "How are you going to translate this concept into military hardware?"

McErst lowered his voice. "This is highly classified so I can only discuss it in general terms. Basically, however, the idea is to attach a stone to one end of a stick by means of a leather thong."

I GAVE A SHARP whistle. "Sounds like a real breakthrough," I said. "What do you call a weapon like that?"

"We don't call it anything yet. Naming the weapon will be the responsibility of our project manager, Thomas A. Hawkes."

In another laboratory, McErst showed me a collection of bamboo poles, bottle corks and small metal barbs.

"This is strictly a long shot," he said, "but if you stuck one end of a barb into a cork and dipped the other end into some kind of poison, you would have a deadly dart. The trouble is, we can't figure out how to propel the dart toward the target."

I said, "What are those bamboo poles for?"

"I guess the guys who were working on this project have given up and gone fishing."

Patent attorney's view: one in 10,000

INVENTORS WE'RE NO. 1

We will develop, design, finance and place your idea or invention patented or unpatented, to attention of our national manufacturer clients who seek new products. Cash sale or royalties possible. Write for free literature. IMPE-RIAL, 2250 E. Devon, Des Plaines, Ill. 60018 or phone Mr. Bell collect at (312) 297-1750.

This advertisement has appeared occasionally in the classified section of the Herald and other area newspapers. Imperial also advertises in the broadcast media.

These ads are often the first contact a hopeful inventor has with Imperial Inventors International Inc., of Des Plaines.

Stories by Steve Brown and David Mahsman

Information and more advertising, which usually starts with a letter of introduction, part of which states:

"Our regional offices throughout the country reflect the ideas and thoughts of hundreds of inventors who have the possibility of earning wealth and fame if they have the good fortune to develop an idea that is worthwhile — inventors who create ideas that become moderately successful are rewarded through personal satisfaction if not through great rewards."

The letter goes on to claim that "the ability to select those inventions that later become huge successes on the market place is our forte. Through developing programs for the engineering, designing, packaging, advertising, marketing and promoting of products we believe that our abilities permit a 50/50 chance of success."

"A 50/50 CHANCE of success." Those are fantastic odds, but patent attorneys, who wish to remain nameless for ethical reasons, told the Herald that Imperial's statistics are "ridiculous."

One Chicago patent attorney, a man who regularly deals with both industry and private inventors, termed a private inventor's chances of any success at all as "one in 10,000." Another likened them to "playing a thousand and one shot at the horse races."

But Claire C. Wagner, Imperial's national director, said Friday that the statement doesn't mean any inventor who comes to his firm has a 50/50 chance of success. He said the key phrase is "the ability to select those inventions..." He said it is those inventions "selected" by Imperial that have a 50/50 chance of success.

Wagner said what he means by "selected" inventions are those inventions in which a manufacturer shows an interest and Imperial "solidifies" that interest. Then and only then, does the inventor have a 50/50 chance for success, he said.

As for Imperial's actual batting average with inventors, Wagner said his firm has successfully marketed 16 inventions out of some 1,200 listed with the company. That's just better than one out of a hundred, he added.

ANOTHER LETTER in the introductory package, this time signed by T. Myron Roth — variously called marketing director, national co-director and other titles — boosts the inventor's hopes even more.

"We are seeking products that have the potential for success and we are aware that the next invention we see may be another Hula-Hoop or Monopoly game," the Roth letter says. And everyone knows how successful those two items were.

Other items in the first packet tell the inventor of Imperial's many manufacturing contacts, developed by the company as a result of marketing the Imperial Hammer, an industrial hammer invented 15 years ago by Imperial's founder.

A brochure has a photograph of "Imperial's nation headquarters at O'Hare Lake Plaza, Des Plaines, Illinois." The picture is of one huge building in the complex, but anyone not familiar with the area would not know the building is shared by some 50 companies, including Imperial.

And, of course, Imperial's slogan appears on all the material: "For inventors / a realization of dreams."

Imperial's promotional materials aren't limited to the introductory package. One promotional publication is published in the form of a house newsletter called "Imperial in Action." The only copy of the newsletter seen by the Herald is Vol. 11. It is the only volume that has turned up from many sources.

Wagner, states that the "Vol. 11" designation was done by an advertising agency. He supplied another edition, labeled "Vol. 12."

Vol. 11 is full of articles praising the company. The editor is listed as R. C. Pond, who elsewhere is called director of engineering.

ONE ARTICLE features the photograph of the O'Hare Lake Plaza and says, "Imperial selected this centrally-located business-industrial complex in order to be more accessible to their thousands of manufacturer contacts nationally and internationally as well as their inventor-clients. Significant corporate growth and rapid expansion of Imperial's New Product Development Portfolio has generated so much interest from manufacturers that this move to Chicago's industrial and transportation hub became a necessity."

Wagner said that the company makes no claims that they lease the entire building. He said a client would know this to be untrue when he came to the offices.

There is no mention made of the offices are also headquarters for Imperial Hammers Inc., the mother company of Imperial Inventors.

As for the portfolio of available products, at least some of the entries were made without the consent of inventors. One of these is Merle DeWitt, an inventor from Denver, Colo.

DeWitt told the Herald he thinks Imperial has no right to list his "Mini-Camp-out," a snap-on camper for small American automobiles, in the portfolio. He said he has never signed a contract with Imperial to handle that invention, although he has paid the company $300 of a $600 contract to handle another of his inventions. He said his phone calls and letters to Imperial have not been answered or returned.

Wagner said he or any other company official has never refused to accept any telephone calls. "We answer every call and letter," he said.

DeWitt said the only thing Imperial did for his "Mini Van," the item for which he signed the contract, was to produce a booklet distributed to some 30 manufacturers. He said he received only six replies, all stating a non-interest.

But many of the 30 manufacturers are now producing products similar to his invention, DeWitt said.

Wagner said he knew nothing of DeWitt's statement that 30 companies are now in production. "The name of the game is promotion, there are no new products, just new ways of selling them," he added.

AND DEWITT SAYS of Imperial's assurance that his ideas are fully protected by his filling out a simple form with the company:

"Imperial Inventors International has presented to inventors false and misleading impressions that with a simple disclosure statement in their office the inventors are assured of ample protection and that their ideas can be presented to the general public."

Not only is DeWitt's invention listed in Imperial's portfolio, but a newspaper article about the Denver inventor has been photocopied and used by Imperial as a promotional item. Imperial uses the copies, telling prospective clients that the articles are about inventors Imperial has helped become successful.

Another inventor about whom a newspaper article was reprinted and represented by Imperial as a successful client is Mrs. Viola Hack, East Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Hack told the Herald, however, that she has never heard of Imperial.

Wagner said the company has never instructed its representatives to tell clients that the articles represent Imperial customers and said in the future that all reprints will bear a disclaimer to that effect.

ANOTHER ARTICLE in the newsletter written by Imperial announces the appointment of Vincent Borsattino, Hammond, Ind., as Imperial's chief legal counsel. Imperial says that Borsattino is a patent attorney, and Borsattino himself uses letterhead saying the same thing.

The article says Borsattino received his law degree from Valparaiso University. But the law school told the Herald it has no record of Borsattino.

The article says he is an attorney with several offices in Indiana. But the Indiana Supreme Court and Indiana Attorney-General's office both say they have no record of any such person being permitted to practice law in that state.

The article says Borsattino is registered with the U. S. Patent Office (a must for any patent attorney). But the patent office says they have no record of any such person.

Wagner admitted Friday he and other company officials were flabbergasted when they learned from the Herald that Borsattino was not an accredited attorney. A job application submitted by Borsattino states he is an attorney.

In a telephone interview, Borsattino said he misrepresented himself to Imperial as an attorney last March. A contract was completed whereby Borsattino was paid $100 a month to represent the firm.

WAGNER SAID the contract was cancelled when Borsattino paid $500 to purchase the remainder of the newsletters from the company in July. Copies of the newsletter, however were given to employees of the company in October during sales and training classes.

Borsattino said when told Wagner that he was a lawyer he had only six hours remaining in law school to complete his degree. He admitted he did not attend Valparaiso University's Law School. He said he has received all of his legal education through the LaSalle Extension University, a mail order correspondence program.

A spokesman for the Chicago Bar Association said only two states in the U.S., California and Montana, accept correspondence school law courses as legal training for persons applying to be admitted to the bar. These courses are not acceptable in Illinois or Indiana.

The Chicago Bar Association has already begun an investigation of Borsattino and Imperial's claims to offer various legal services which only bona fide lawyers are permitted by law to provide.

A crash course in handling inventors

Editor's note: In an effort to gain a better picture of the operation of Imperial Inventors International Inc., of Des Plaines, a Herald reporter attended the company's sales training program. Without Imperial's knowledge of his identity, the reporter worked for them for more than a week.

"We have the best damn sales training program in the nation," Jack Brumley, head of the sales training of Imperial Inventor International Inc., told a reporter who posed as a job seeker.

The job applicant learns about the position of product evaluator from Brumley, usually after answering an ad calling for salesmen. The trainee is put through a five day training program and learns not how to evaluate inventions, but rather how to make money for himself and Imperial.

The object of the sales pitch, as Brumley calls it, is to sell the inventor on a $125 evaluation of his product. The evaluator-salesman gets $60 from the sale. The remaining $65 goes to the company.

The financial aspects of the job were somewhat different from the three inch classified seeking salesman the reporter answers.

"ELDONADO CADILLAC furnished, $500 monthly, gas and clothing allowance plus 4% commission," the ad promised. It was not until after the orientation lecture by Brumley that the new men learned that the commission was the only thing they could be assured of receiving. The luxury car was rented by the company for any salesman who closed 60 deals in 60 days. Brumley made no mention of any $500 a month or gas and clothing allowance.

Throughout the week, Brumley led the class through the prepared sales pitch.

"Inventors are inveterate gamblers, who will chase money to the ends of the earth."

"Patent attorneys have no heart, they'll take your eyeballs."

"Anyone who needs to call the Better Business Bureau is a weak sister."

These are typical of the tack Brumley took as he cartwheeled through the week, all the time reminding students in the "product evaluators school" how easy it was to convince inventors to give their money to Imperial.

"I'm the highest paid school teacher in the world," the modish Brumley asserted.

BRUMLEY LEADS the classes through rush sessions in patent law, the psychology of the inventor and other tidbits of gossip and claims. Most of the time is devoted to the pitch.

A recent week's class included some former salesmen, recent college grads and others. The group dwindled throughout the week, starting with 12 and dropping to just four by the first day of work on the following Monday.

When the training sessions end, the evaluators are put to work in the Des Plaines office. Later they may be sent on road crew that will travel for a week at a time in states like Indiana or Wisconsin.

Brumley, despite repeated claims of selectivity, made no effort to eliminate people from the program. He just let disinterest and disillusionment over chances of making a living with the company take its toll.

Brumley classes were frequently interrupted by urgent meetings and conferences, which he attended in other sections of Imperial's International headquarters. The company has a suite of offices along with nearly 50 other firms in a three-story building at 2250 E. Devon Ave., Des Plaines. The training classes are also held there.

Brumley tells the group that he can close eight out every 10 deals and that he can get money from a dead man.

"I'm that good," Brumley says.

As the class goes through the stages of the pitch, the warm up ("Keep it short"), the hammer story ("Make it sound elaborate"), and the all important close, Brumley shares more advice to the rookies.

"The idiot inventors all think they have a hula hoop. For them this is the gold rush of 1892 all over again."

"The key to this whole pitch is keeping your mouth shut."

"All products are worth an evaluation, besides you don't know anything about it anyway."

With these words of guidance and direction and absolutely no information about marketing techniques or any other criterion for evaluating products, the new "evaluator" or salesman "sets out to judge the merits of the new ideas and pre-evaluate the general aspects of design and marketability," according to Clair C. Wagner, Imperial president.

THE EVALUATION the inventor receives consists of an eight to 10 page report presented by the company as being prepared by a staff of marketing experts and engineers.

Brumley teaches the evaluators to tell the inventor that the evaluation of the product really costs the company $250, but Imperial will pay half because the product seems to be good.

What the inventor gets for his $125 is a hard try to get him to part with his cash. The salesmen, who are involved only in the initial conference with the inventor, are never told of the outcome of the evaluation.

Any further conferences that might be held with an inventor, including agreements to represent the inventor in dealing with manufacturers which might cost as much as $2,000, are handled by company officials like Brumley or Imperial's national director Claire C. Wagner.

Wagner said he has the highest amount of respect for Brumley and his ability and loyalty to the company.

"He is one of our best men," Wagner said.

Several evaluators said they had been told that commissions on the representation agreements were large, but they admitted no one had ever offered any details.

Despite the lack of information presented to the evaluators concerning many aspects of the company, Brumley asserts that "well trained people are the key to our success."

Taxing bodies can hold line

In this day of increased concern about taxes — evidenced by the more frequent threats of a "tax rebellion" — it is important to keep in mind a basic truth: The responsibility for rising taxes lies with the individual taxing bodies.

Although we frequently disagree with the policies and practices of the Cook County assessor's office, for example, we feel it is used too often as a convenient scapegoat when an accusing finger is pointed.

The potential for that situation exists again this year — especially in Wheeling and Palatine townships, as a result of the method of assessing real property recently instituted by the assessor's office during the quadrennial reassessment.

The result of the new assessing method — basically a switch from a reproductive-cost technique to one of fair market value — was significantly higher total assessment figures for those two townships and eight others included in the reassessment.

With assessment hikes of more than 27 per cent in Palatine Township and more than 18 per cent in Wheeling Township, agencies which levy taxes in those townships find themselves this year with a greatly expanded tax base.

Some may be tempted to take advantage of that situation by budgeting for a greater amount to be raised by taxes. With the increased assessments, more dollars can be raised without affecting the tax rate.

Certainly, it is the county clerk's office and not the taxing body that determines the tax rate. Just as conclusively, however, it is a matter of simple arithmetic for an agency to determine what the rate need be to produce a given number of dollars.

A taxing body, in other words, could increase its revenue through taxes while the tax rate remains the same, or even decreases slightly. That would mean a tax increase for many property owners and, inevitably, some would place the blame on the assessor's office for increasing the assessment.

It should be kept clearly in mind the new assessing method will not produce across-the-board tax increases in regard to small, local taxing bodies.

Taxes paid to those bodies will increase, rather, only if the agency increases its appropriation through taxes to take advantage of the new assessment figures.

That is not to say no taxing body should increase its appropriation under any circumstances. However, it should not increase its tax revenue this year to take advantage of a new assessing system without justifying the need for the increase.

Most public officials, we are confident, would not consider engaging in such activity, but in all cases — especially in regard to the smaller, less visible taxing bodies — the situation warrants close attention.

The public must be aware of the potential for abuse and it must understand the ultimate responsibility for taxes lies with the taxing body.

Only with that awareness and understanding, coupled with citizen concern and involvement, can there be an adequate check on taxation and government spending.

Hitting tax helpers

A severe shaking out is in prospect for professional tax preparers, who have sprung up like Topsy in recent years thanks to the ever-simplified but always labyrinthine Form 1040.

Last year, according to the Internal Revenue Service, more than half the 80 million returns filed by American taxpayers were prepared by someone other than the taxpayer — to the tune of $640 million in fees.

It wasn't necessary, says the IRS, which this year will lose the taxes on that $640 million since fees paid to tax preparers are deductible. Neither was it entirely on the up and up.

In a spot check of returns prepared by some 3,200 private firms during 1972, every other return was unacceptable, says the IRS, either because of careless or inaccurate work or actual cheating.

Thus it has declared a kind of war on the private tax services by, among a number of things, bringing back Short Form 1040A and by announcing that IRS offices will provide complete, free tax preparation service for any taxpayer who wishes it.

Because the standard deduction has been raised from 10 per cent to 15 per cent and the income ceiling abolished for eligibility to use 1040A, it is estimated that 32 million taxpayers will elect to file the short form in 1973.

All of which, of course, affects the legitimate tax-preparation firms along with the no-so-legitimate, the competent as well as the incompetent, and the big ones with branch offices probably even more than the little ones consisting of a couple guys doing it part-time.

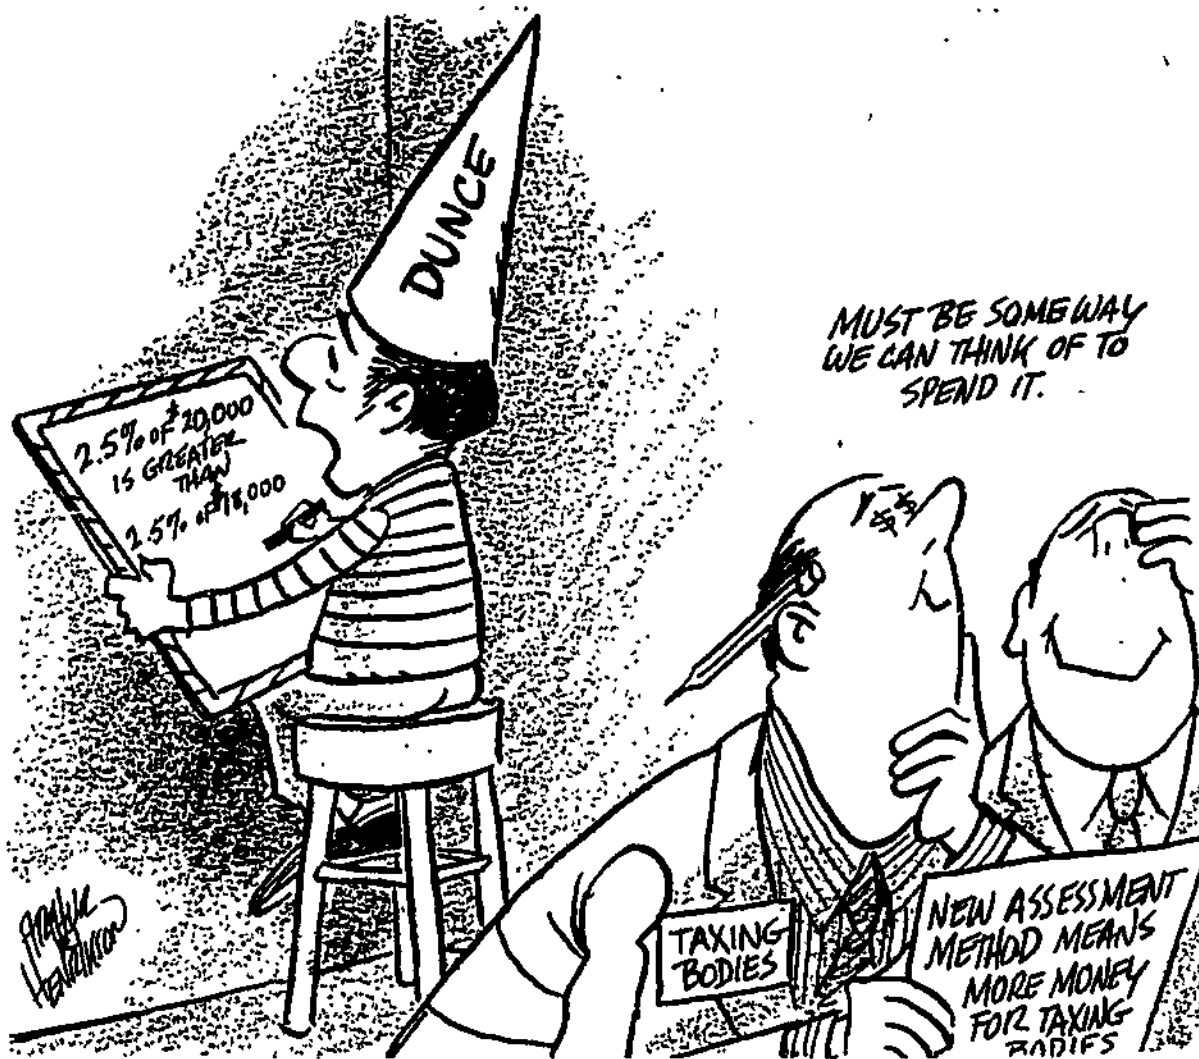

Henry W. Block, president of H & R Block, Inc., the giant in the field, questions the wisdom of the IRS in trying to specialize in tax preparation. Better, he says, to divert more personnel to auditing returns, which brings $10 to the U.S. Treasury for every dollar spent.

Block also recommends that all tax preparers, large and small, be required to register with the IRS so that their "very essential service" can continue under some form of government recognition and guidance.

In any event, it is a fact that the tax-paying public does need assistance, and it is mostly needed by the poor and lower-income taxpayers who consistently overpay their taxes by failing to list their deductions and credits.

This was as much as admitted by the IRS, it is charged, when it abandoned Short Form 1040A back in 1968 in an effort to force people to list their deductions and take their credits.

Fence post letters to the editor

'Nixon deserves hearing'

I take exception to your critical January 19 editorial on President Nixon in which you stated that "America is marked by one of the most divided moods in American political history." I believe you have misread the public opinion polls. The division is between the press and Mr. Nixon, and not between the President and the people who so overwhelmingly elected him.

I also have an opposite view to the one expressed by you that President Nixon has "retreated further and further away from the America he is supposed to represent." Just the reverse is true, I believe. He is representing us extremely well in trying to end a war with people who can't be trusted; in trying desperately to curb inflation further by holding down on inherited "Great Society" spending by a fiscally irresponsible congress (including both senators from Illinois, but certainly not Representative Crane from this district); by trying to streamline government and cut down on the tax eating after tax eating bureaus that threaten to overwhelm all of us.

I submit that if Mr. Nixon felt he could get just a reasonably objective hearing from the press, he would be more than willing to "justify and explain his decisions" to those who require an explanation. But we both know he can't because of the press' growing hostility to an attitude by the President concerning the press which, unfortunately, I believe to be fully justified. I wish it weren't so.

Perhaps, as time passes, Mr. Nixon will get the credit I believe he deserves for being one of the strongest, most courageous Presidents this country has ever had. I recall how Mr. Truman, who was also criticized by the press quite severely, suddenly became a hero. But one thing which history shows, but which I have not seen in recent press coverage on Mr. Truman's life, is to remind readers that President Truman was the father of the "no win" war, a policy he instituted in Korea.

I wonder why? Mr. Nixon, probably more than any other President, is now a victim of that policy. I would like to suggest to the press that, as the President starts his second term, bearing in mind that he inherited the war and 500,000 men in Viet Nam, that he has faced an extremely partisan and hostile press during his first term and a hostile press and, I believe, a new way of reporting unemployment figures which are really unrealistic.

Will the Herald be among the first to give some credit where some credit is due? And continue to criticize, as well, when that is due.

Attacks school smoking

I read your editorial today in regards to smoking areas for high school students and feel I must take exception to some of your statements. Granted when I was in high school there were even then smoke-filled washrooms and teachers trying to discover the guilty party. However, I think it's going too far to say this kept the teachers from their real job of teaching.

I'll also admit that this didn't deter the more determined smoker from continuing to do so, but this is not a reason to give up the good fight. Adolescents do or try to do a lot of things that are against the rules but that alone is not reason enough to relax those rules. Some drink, we all know this, (as even the adults do), should we then provide them with a bar? I could go farther but I think you get the idea.

Let's not forget the teachers are adults and if they choose to smoke that is their prerogative. But let's not lose sight of the fact that while the youngsters are in school there are rules to be obeyed, rules made in many cases for their protection, taking into consideration the immaturity of a great majority. All through this life there are rules and part of the learning process consists of learning to live with rules. You mention education being the basic purpose of schools, and I agree, but that also includes education along the lines of civic responsibility. Even the teachers have to obey "No Smoking" rules at certain places such as churches, etc.

If on the one hand we are trying to teach children not to smoke, then turn around and provide them with a smoking area, then who's the hypocrite? It's unfair to those who obey the rules to see others get away with this.

Let's not be afraid to take a stand and stick to it!

A smashing spree

Last Saturday night when our guests started to leave our home, one man discovered that his car window had been smashed into very small pieces. The locked car was parked on the street. Nothing was taken from the car.

When the police came, we were told that for the past two or three weekends there has been a rash of car window smashing in Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove.

When we moved to Arlington 19 years ago, we didn't lock our house or our cars. We were living where people cared about each other. Our possessions were safe.

Since I have read nothing in the paper about the new sport of window smashing, may I suggest having guests park their cars in the driveway rather than the street, particularly on weekends.

Tom Wellman's column

Tom Wellman's column appeared on the editorial page last Thursday.

How did you treat your brother?

In the past week they have been honoring the memory of a man who preached and lived non-violence. Are his people practicing what he preached?

My 26-year-old brother lies in Mercy Hospital, the victim of a severe beating and gunshot wounds.

According to the Chicago policemen who drove him to the hospital, he is lucky to be alive.

According to the doctors who performed the surgery, he is lucky he wasn't killed or paralyzed. They sewed up one hole in his lower back, three holes in his small intestine and one hole in his large intestine. This, of course, required a colostomy.

His parents, his sisters and brothers, his nieces and nephews have all been deeply touched by this tragedy. And now that we know he will live, we have time for reflection.

Our parents raised us to love our fellow man, to have empathy and compassion. Ethnic sneers were never allowed, even in humor. As we grew up we were encouraged to participate in programs that helped benefit our brothers and sisters of lesser means and education. As adults in new homes and communities we spoke against racial oppression to friends and neighbors. We believe in equal rights and equal opportunities.

I am outraged to learn that the mayor of Schaumburg is willing to turn his back on the people of this community. The very idea that he wants Dunbar Homes to donate $150,000 to "his" hospital rather than Dist. 54 is very disappointing.

It is unfair to the people who have moved into this area, and who have paid their "dues" in order for their children to attend good schools. Schools that are not overcrowded now but without necessary funds from developers such as Dunbar Homes, could put us back into a situation which we had two years ago, that of too many children and not enough classrooms.

Surely something must be done now. We cannot allow Dunbar Homes or Mayor Atcher to set a precedent for developers who will come in future years.

Dunbar hospital donation hit

I am writing to express my disapproval of the allocation of $150,000 given by the Dunbar developers to the village of Schaumburg. I definitely am not opposed to a hospital, however, I believe the guidelines which have been followed in the past regarding a developer providing money to develop school facilities have been cast aside in this instance.

I do not believe that even Mr. Atcher has the right to allocate money which should at least in part be used to further educational facilities in an area where schools are in such a crowded condition.

If his intent is to tax the people to make up the deficit, I think he will find that his township residents are already tax-poor.

Also, according to a survey paid for by surrounding communities, the location of the hospital was recommended to be in an unincorporated area more centrally located for the good of the majority. It would seem that Mr. Atcher is interested mainly in Mr. Atcher, and not in the good of the majority.

Thank you for the consideration I know you will give this letter.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — A 49-year-old Arizona man has spent 4 1/2 years of his life serving jail sentences for traffic violations. He has paid $5,423 in traffic fines. He has been arrested 33 times for drunk driving and many times for driving without a license.

But presumably he still is driving.
A 36-year old California man piled up five convictions for moving traffic violations after his first accident in 1955. When a warning letter was sent to him by the state Motor Vehicle Bureau in 1959, he answered indignantly, saying he was a prominent citizen, active in community affairs and the father of four children whom he tried hard to protect.
In the next two years this man accumulated seven more convictions for hazardous moving violations. Then he had an accident that killed the four children, his wife and the driver of the other car.

THESE TWO are among several hundred drivers whom the Insurance Information Institute has described as "the lunatic fringe" of American motorists.

"The outrageous records of drivers like these are one important factor in the high cost of all kinds of automobile insurance," said an Institute spokesman, "and there is no question but that under the new no-fault insurance laws enacted in a number of states, the impact of these obsessed motorists on insurance rates might be even greater."

He said psychotic drivers even exert an impact on life insurance rates.

"In one way or another, every expensive accident they cause results in big insurance claims," the spokesman said. Losses in productivity, manpower, hospital and auto repair costs are other ways such drivers affect the economy.

DURING THE periods when they have valid licenses, someone is required to insure them. They are, of course, put in the assigned risk pools and their driving habits are much to blame for the high rates that must be charged to assigned risk drivers.

Richard H. Bishop, a researchist for Rhode Island's motor vehicle bureau says nine out of 10 motorists who have their licenses suspended keep on driving but manage to avoid detection until the period of suspension ends.

Arthur F. Finnegan, supervisor of driver control in Massachusetts, said that contrary to what the public might suspect, judicial leniency is not the problem. Judges are outraged by president violators but cannot do much about them under existing laws, Finnegan said. Even strict motor laws will not stop such drivers from causing tragedies.

The Institute said making such offenders subject to habitual criminal laws may be the only solution.

ONE STRIKING conclusion of the study was that there were almost no women among the 33 most dramatic lunatic fringe drivers in the hundreds studied. However, the speed champion of the lot was a woman convicted of doing 120 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone. But, in general, one or two stiff fines or a jail sentence put an end to the reckless driving habits of a woman.

Not so with the men. Of the 33 with the worst records, nine continued tearing along the highways until they were killed themselves. Two killed other persons and were crippled themselves.

The longest continuous record was 32 years of dangerous driving by a Utah man. Last year, at the age of 63, he was twice convicted for speeding. During the 32 years, he was arrested or cited 73 times, 29 times for speeding and had 10 reported accidents.

Honeywell to be at exposition

Honeywell Commercial division, Arlington Heights, will be among the exhibitors at the four-day International Air Conditioning, Heating and Refrigerating Exposition starting today at McCormick Place.

The Honeywell exhibit will include an operating computer-controlled building automation system. Actually tied to a computer, the Delta console on display will demonstrate the flexibility of full computer control in building operations.

Other portions of the exhibit focus on Honeywell's slimline electronic and pneumatic thermostats. The company's new pneumatic thermostat has only one moving part and uses "pneumatic logic" circuitry to amplify air temperatures, giving faster control.

The exposition, not open to the general public, will feature the most advanced products and systems designed to meet the needs of designers, installers and service personnel. Approximately 475 exhibitors will participate in the show.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH
A "stale check," in banker lingo, is something like stale bread. It was made too long ago; the dough is no good any more.

A check dated six months or more prior to its arrival in a bank ordinarily will not be paid, but returned to the depositor. Every bank makes its own rule about the age at which a check becomes "stale." It's generally from 90 days to six months.

And this is the season for a flood of artificially-aged stale checks in the nation's banks. Every time you forget, and date a check 1972 instead of 1973, you're writing a year-old check that may come hobbling back to you, unpaid, in its premature old age.

HOW MANY thousand check writers experience this inconvenience every year is unknown, but the Continental Bank in Chicago reports an average of 200 to 300 a day — a figure which, on past experience, will hold up through January.

They don't begin to taper off until mid-February, says Fred H. Remmert, vice-president and cashier, and even as late as March a few will still come trickling in. The Continental, among the country's largest banks, processes about a quarter of a million checks daily — which means that about one in every thousand is misdated.

Banks pull out and return stale checks unpaid for the protection of their customers. A check that old is automatically suspect of having been lost and replaced with another. Pulling out stale checks avoids duplicate payments and attendant problems — including the possibility of the bank customer never being able to recover.

AT THIS TIME of year, however, bank personnel will generally examine a 1972 check, and pass it if it's otherwise in order and obviously a case of forgetfulness about the changed calendar.

But don't count on that. You may have a payment embarrassingly delayed because your bank wants to play it safe and double-check with its customer before processing the check.

It's a wise precaution to go through your checkbook and put a 1973 date on enough checks to carry you into March, by which time most of us will have the figure 1973 firmly enough implanted in our minds that we'll date our checks that way for the rest of the year — and on into 1974.

FINALLY, IF YOU do have any trouble about an artificially-aged stale check, you might find some consolation in the knowledge that even bankers do it.

One bank, which prefers to remain anonymous, made out all checks for a customer-company's large payroll, and when they were all neatly stacked up... you guessed it. All dated 1972.

Somebody forgot to reprogram the computer.

Bankers vote against branch operations

by LEA TONKIN
The Illinois Bankers Association membership voted by more than a two-to-one margin Friday against a committee report that favored branch banking operations in the state. The results killed any chances of an IBA-endorsed bill being introduced to the Illinois General Assembly in the near future.

John F. McKnight, IBA president, said another committee will be appointed to further study on bank structure changes. He said this is to be done in view of the changing relationship between banking and savings and loan operations.

The IBA vote, tallied at 317 for the branching proposal, 639 against and 2 blank votes, showed the impact of "country" banks in the state. Illinois remains the only state in the U.S. that does not permit some form of branching operations for banks.

Lewis H. Clausen, chairman of the IBA Committee on Bank Structure which hammered out the branching proposal in 15 months of discussion and compromise, warned IBA members gathered at the Palmer House in Chicago last week that other outside interests had announced plans to introduce branching proposals. His Committee on Bank Structure had proposed a means of limited branching in the state within a number of districts.

SENTIMENT among many Illinois bankers at the special session called last Thursday to debate the branching proposal indicated widespread support of the present unit banking system in many Illinois communities.

As the Committee on Bank Structure reported, however, the question of change is not at stake, rather the extent of change. The rapid growth of chain or group banking in Illinois is among the developments cited by the committee. An estimated one-third of all Illinois banks are in a chain or group.

Increased use of computer technology by bank groups, as well as greater competition with savings and loan associations are other changes in the banking field.

Clausen urged IBA members last week to realize that they are in the financial business and not in the banking business "per se."

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board's recent move to allow federally chartered savings association in Illinois to apply for branch operations as of Jan. 31 is another development for bankers to consider. The proposal would allow the opening of full-service branches within 100 miles of a home office.

STATE SAVINGS and Loan Comr. John J. Lanigan requested the FHLBB to state off the branching program for five months, Lanigan said he'd like to see all financial institutions, including savings associations and banks, on equal footing in the branching movement.

A six-month moratorium on both federal and state savings association branching was called for on Wednesday of last week by J. N. Langworthy, president of the Illinois Savings and Loan League. He named a "blue-ribbon" committee of savings and loan association executives to consider branching proposals.

The committee will assess the effect of branching as advocated in the defeated IBA proposal. Facility branches as well as holding-company operations were included in the IBA plan.

U.S. 'consumer agency' bill to be introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With an endorsement from Ralph Nader, three U.S. senators, including Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., launched a renewed drive to create an independent federal agency that would go to bat for the consumer.

Percy announced that he and Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., would introduce legislation — probably this week — to form an independent consumer protection agency.

Congress has refused to go along with the idea twice in the past three years. The last time was in 1972 when similar legislation passed the House but died in a Senate filibuster.

The agency would take the consumer's part before federal agencies such as the Food and Drug Administration and the Federal Trade commission, as well as in the federal courts. The new legislation, in addition, would carry money to help finance state and local-level consumer activities.

"In my opinion," Nader said, "this bill is the most important piece of legislation ever to come before the U.S. Congress. The business lobbies dedicated to defeating the bill are already bankrolled and well organized."

Percy announced the proposed action during remarks prepared for delivery at the 1973 consumer assembly, an annual meeting sponsored by the Consumer Federation of America.

Percy told the meeting he did not foresee a filibuster this year because he hoped to win early consideration of the measure.

John A. Damrau

Funeral Mass for John A. Damrau, 51, of 379 S. Wille, Wheeling, will be said at 10 a.m. today in St. Joseph the Worker Catholic Church, 181 Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Mr. Damrau, a machinist for Signode Co. in Glenview, with 20 years of service, was pronounced dead on arrival Friday night at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an apparent heart attack. He was born April 19, 1921, in Perkau, Germany, and was a veteran of World War II, U.S. Navy. A resident of Wheeling for 12 years, he was a former resident of Chicago.

Surviving are his widow, Anna, nee Albano; a son, Kenneth, at home; brother, Erick of Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. Hildegard McCaleb of San Francisco, Calif.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Chicago Heart Association or masses preferred.

Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, is in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Harper to offer business classes

During the spring term, for which registrations are now being taken, Harper College will offer three courses in the supervisory and administrative management program.

These courses, being offered only in the spring term, are small business management, problems in management and supervision and labor management relations.

The courses represent a portion of the elective areas of study a student may take to complete a one-year certificate or two-year degree in this program.

The supervisory and administrative management program is designed to assist students in a wide variety of business occupations. The curriculum offered is structured to meet the needs of individuals interested in gaining or improving management skills.

Registration for the spring term closes Jan. 27.

Mid-Suburban leaders maintain 2-game advantages

by JIM COOK

Seven Mid-Suburban League opponents came away shaking their heads.

How do you stop Prospect — a well-oiled scoring machine that was easily the league's production pacesetter with a 67.7 average per outing?

Hersey raised its hand Friday night and answered the problem that baffled the seven other foes. The winning formula was 43-33.

The solution, which now carries a Hersey patent, was simple. The Huskies held the Knights to one-half their normal yield with a tenacious, skin-tight man-to-man defense, dominated the boards and connected on 61 per cent of their free-throw attempts.

Of course, Prospect cooperated, too. The Knights pocketed only 14 of 60 shots from the field for a meager 23 per cent and just five of 11 charity tosses.

"Our defense really did the job," Hersey head coach Roger Steingraber beamed. "Lephart (Kevin) was our key man up front and he forced them to set their picks higher and that seemed to disrupt their offense."

Lephart looks like a 10-second substitute in the box score, but his beet-red face reflected the exhaustion of blanketing quick Knight guards Val Graffiti, Brian Groth and Jim Anderson for nearly 25 minutes.

The matchup between the game's giants — Hersey's 6-foot-11 Dave Corzine and 6-foot-8 Tom Bergen of Prospect — was interesting, as expected. But while the two almost neutralized each other, Corzine came away with the better statistics as the final score indicated.

Both stars were intimidating at each end of the court, but the low-scoring affair prevented either from controlling the game completely.

Corzine finished with 16 points and 18 rebounds while Bergen dumped in 15 and hauled in nine stray shots. Each was whistled for four fouls in a physically punishing scrap underneath.

Hersey assumed a 4-3 advantage with 3:13 left in the opening period and was never headed as Prospect's continual offensive frustration prevented any chance for a rally.

The Knights made sure the Huskies didn't run away from them with an effective 1-2-2 zone that matched Corzine and Bergen at both ends of the floor.

The battle of giants was evident from the opening tip which found Prospect controlling but failing to cash. Four turnovers suggested the tenseness of the players, but Corzine finally broke free after two minutes had elapsed and put the lid on a layup over Bergen's outstretched arms.

Knight Will Freeman notched the equalizer two minutes later with just 3:13, the hesitant scoreboard changed again when Corzine swished a pair of free throws.

"Just get the ball to him," Steingraber shouted to his teammates during a first-quarter timeout and Big Dave answered at 1:13 with a layup that increased Hersey's margin to 6-3.

John Kanellis found the range from his wing position almost 18 feet away and the quarter ran out with the Huskies nursing a football score-like 9-3 bulge.

Freeman's bucket marked the lone field goal for the Knights in the stanza in tries. Bergen was shut off in three attempts while Corzine was successful in two of three efforts as Hersey clicked on three of eight shots.

Kanellis' fast-break bucket off the second-quarter tip opened a 10-3 gap, but Prospect methodically came back on Bob Bostrom's eight-footer, a 15-foot baseline swish by Freeman and Bergen's first two successes of the evening — one from well underneath and the other from 10-feet away.

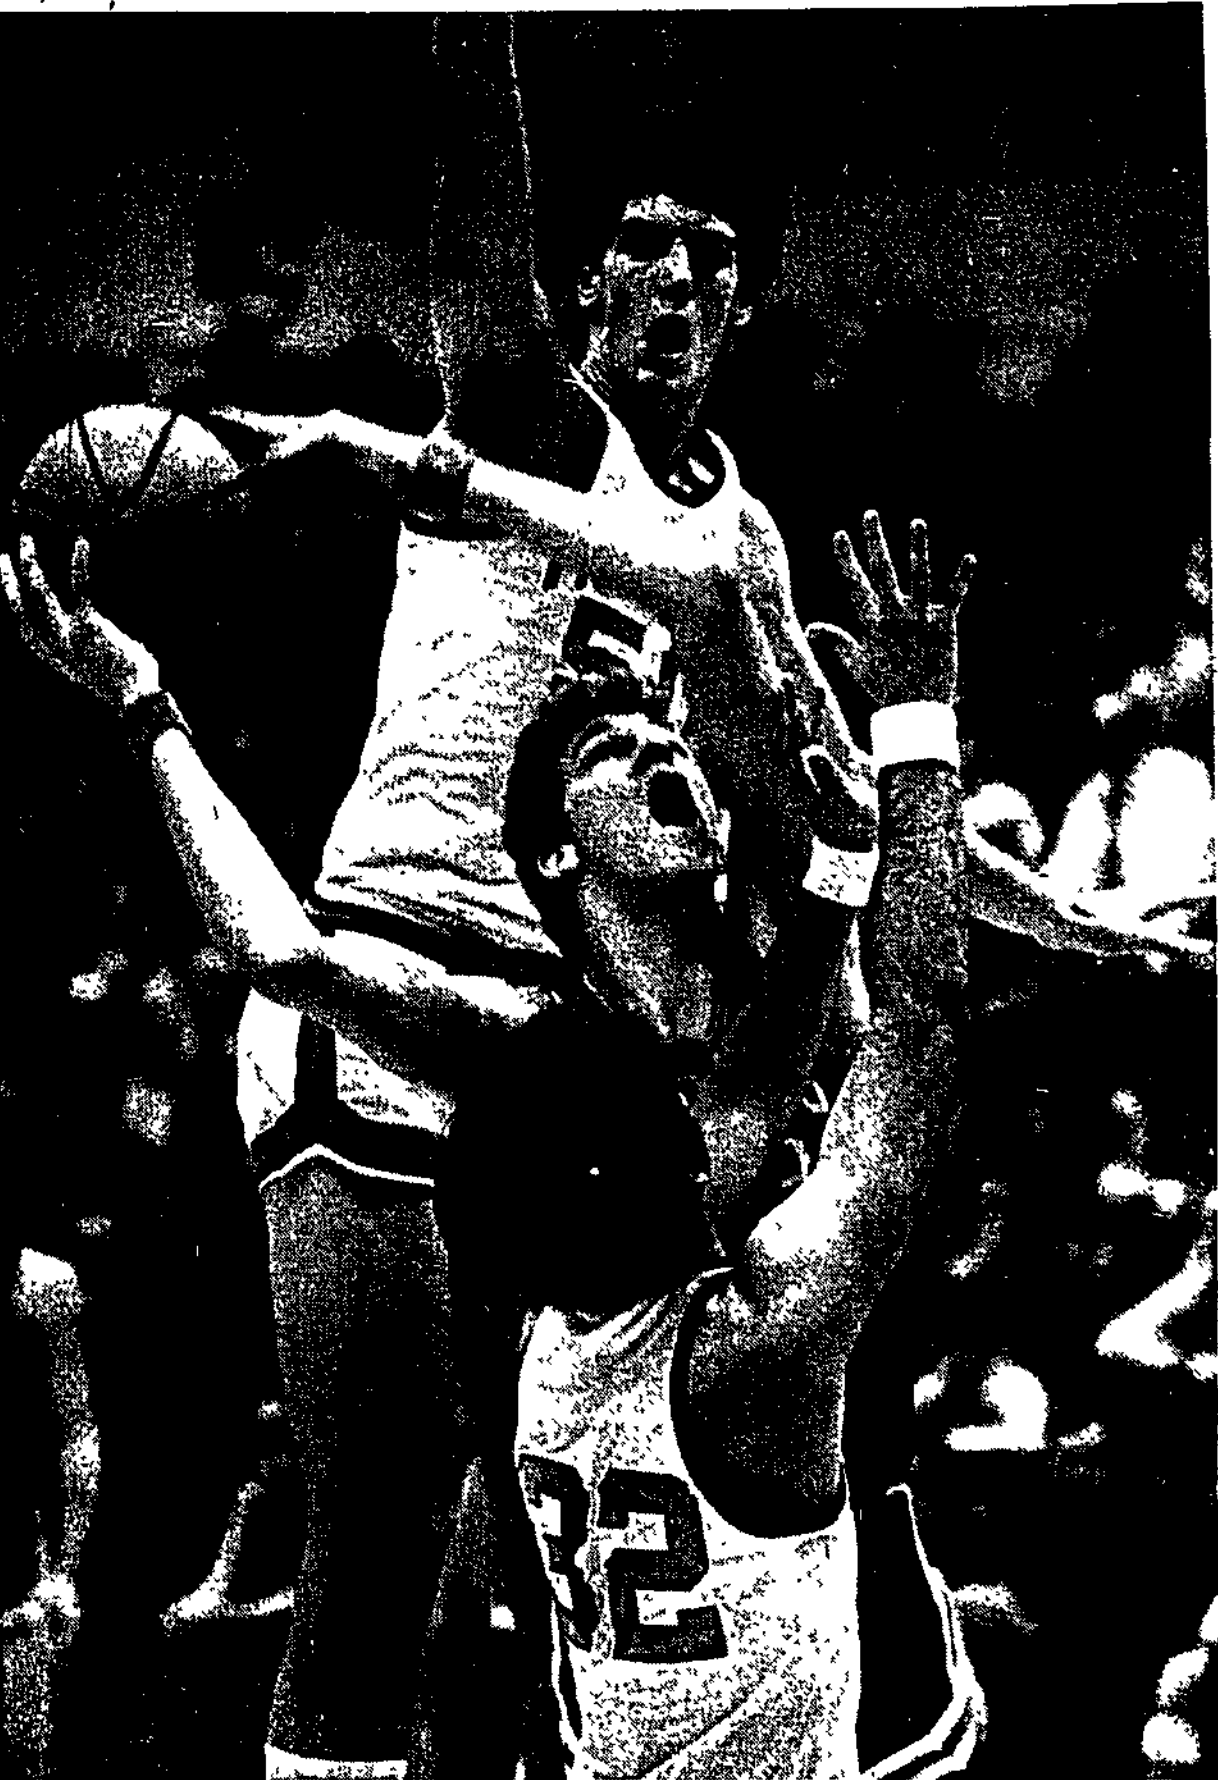

With 2:11 remaining in the half, the Knights slashed Hersey's lead to 12-11, but they lost the scent shortly thereafter. Husky Marty Friel shook loose for a 12-foot baseline bucket and Corzine drilled a layup and a 12-foot turnaround jumper to reinstate an 18-13 Hersey margin at the intermission.

Free throws began to haunt Prospect in the third quarter as Bergen's follow-up bucket was erased by a turn-around 10-footer by Corzine and a rebound layup by Kanellis who wasn't afraid to dangle with the big men despite his dwarfed 6-foot frame.

Hersey sub Greg Hale was perfect in four free throw attempts and helped Corzine control the boards as the Huskies ran out to a 30-15 spread with 1:16 left. Bergen, however, completed a three-point play and Freeman hit from 15 feet at the buzzer to slice Hersey's margin to 32-22 after three bells.

Defense prevailed over the final eight minutes despite Prospect's frantic efforts to rally. While the Knights did outscore Hersey from the field, 10-4, Kanellis maintained the Huskies' 10-point cushion with five-for-six shooting from the charity stripe.

That's what it takes to beat Prospect.

KNIGHT SANDWICH. Shadowed all evening by the intimidating posture of Hersey's Dave Corzine (50), Prospect's Tom Bergen also gets fronted by Husky John Kanellis in shot attempt underneath. The battle of MSL giants found Corzine with 16 points and 18 rebounds and Bergen with 15 markers and nine bounds. Hersey won the defensive struggle, 43-33. (Photo by Larry Cameron)

Cards demolish Glenbard; still perfect in North

by JIM TINDALL

Coach George Zigman's Cardinals took one more decisive step toward the MSL North Division title Friday night as they hammered the Glenbard North Panthers, 71-31, before an appreciative home crowd.

The Cardinals, now undefeated through eight conference games, still hold a two-game lead over second-place Wheeling and the Wildcats are running out of chances to catch up. The way Coach Zigman figures it, three wins in Arlington's next five games will clinch at least a first place tie.

The outcome of Friday's Cardinal-Panther contest was never really in doubt. Outlasted, outshot, and outplayed by Arlington, Glenbard North hung on gamely but could not escape their eighth straight MSL defeat.

Coach Zigman went into the game with some trepidation, concerned that his team might be a little flat. On Thursday he remarked, "I'm going to worry about losing this game until our kids go out and prove it otherwise."

And prove they did.

After jumping out to a first period lead of 20-7, the Cardinals were never headed. A slow second period made the halftime score 31-17, but in the last 16 minutes, the Cardinals demonstrated their offensive power as they pounded the reeling Panthers 39-14.

With another win under their belts, Arlington could clinch a share of the Division title a week from Tuesday against Palatine. Standing between the Cards and a trophy are Fremd and Wheeling. Arlington and Wheeling have split their two meetings to date, so next Friday will be showdown time.

Asked whether he was concerned about playing three games in seven days, Coach Zigman responded, "I don't know about the kids. I'd rather play games than practice."

Arlington's scoring Friday was paced by aggressive Jeff Cleveland. Cleveland tallied 14 points, all on baskets, and pulled down his share of the rebounds. Also in double figures for Arlington were Jim Stull and Brian Gaare who canned six baskets each for 12 points.

Marlon Brooks led Glenbard North with eight points, six of those coming in the second period. Brooks recorded what was perhaps the game's most memorable basket in the second quarter as he drove half the length of the court and canned a twisting, turning layup for two points.

Arlington bounded out to a 6-0 lead on baskets by Cleveland, Bunn, and Stull. The gap was narrowed to 8-4 by Glenbard North, but that was as close as they ever got.

Led by Dan Donahue's three quick buckets from inside, the Cardinals outscored Glenbard by a 12-3 count in the last four minutes of the period.

After a slow second period, Arlington came out of the locker room intent on putting the Panthers away. Two short

Wheeling handles Conant; both still in title fight

by ART MUGALIAN

The Wheeling Wildcats beat Conant by seven points in a physically bruising game Friday night, but it was a heck of a lot closer than that.

As a matter of fact, with 1:14 left in the game, it looked like Dick Redlinger's Cougars would pull out a victory on Wheeling's home court instead of falling 61-54.

Here's how the Conant head coach tells it:

"I thought we'd win it when (Steve) Irion stole the ball and scored, but then that foul was called and Wheeling made the free throws. It was 52-50 at the time and if we had got the ball we could have tied the game."

The foul Redlinger referred to occurred at the 1:14 mark just as Conant had scrambled to within two points on a couple quick baskets by 6-foot-7 center Steve Irion. Wheeling was on the attack when high-scoring Pat Smith came down with a rebound for the Cats. He turned around and slammed into Cougar Jim Brown.

"It was an offensive foul all the way," Redlinger complained. "It should have been our ball. We should have won the game."

Smith went to the line and calmly sank two free throws to increase the lead to 54-50 and the game was lost for Conant.

Redlinger was upset with the officiating which handed several free throw situations to the Wildcats in the closing minute. Starting with Smith's two free tosses, Wheeling's last nine points came from the foul line.

The Wildcats, whose win kept them in their division race, were sluggish at the start. They weren't running well and their shooting was distressingly off-target.

"We were just dead in the first half,"

Cats' coach Ted Ecker said. "We weren't really hustling. We've been kind of dead all week. The boys were down after losing last week."

"This game showed the strength of our bench," Ecker continued. "At the end of the first half I changed almost the whole starting five, I went to a full court press, and that change put fire into everybody. And the starters were ready to play when they went back in."

The Cougars played a fine first quarter, putting everything together and getting some breaks. With Irion and forward Dave Sutherland mainly responsible for the scoring, Conant built a 23-14 lead with 5:45 left in the first half.

That's when Ecker began his adjustment.

The Wheeling crowd was frantic as Smith, Tom Marrec, and Steve Schmidt sank baskets in rapid order at the close of the half to shoot the Cats into a 27-26 intermission lead.

It was Smith's first half scoring which kept Wheeling in the game. The 6-foot-4 forward was 8 for 14 from the field in the half at a time when his mates couldn't beg a bucket. The Cats were 13 for 45 in the first half.

"It was a good thing he was hot," Ecker noted. "Smith is a good shooter. But so are (Paul) Groot, (Bill) Kenney, and (Bob) Westrich. Kenney couldn't buy a shot tonight. Keenan is one of the best shooters we have and he couldn't knock

Vikings keep fouls down in romp past Schaumburg

by KEITH REINHARD
There wasn't about to be any foul play at Fremd Friday night.
At least not as far as the Vikings were concerned.
Cleaning up their act better than they have done in several seasons, coach Leon Kasubosko's went on to roar past Schaumburg, 35-53.

The triumph allowed the hosts to bounce back from a see-saw setback at Elk Grove the previous week and sent Joe Breaud's Saxons reeling down to defeat for the sixth time in eight conference outings this winter.
And the key to the whole situation — at least as far as Kasubosko was concerned — lies in the silence of the referee's whistle.

"Our kids did a good job in a number of respects," observed the Vike mentor afterwards. "We ran well, boarded well and shot well. We also did a good job of not fouling and that more than anything made our win an impressive one tonight."

Small wonder that despite all the full crops of hair, Fremd appeared to have fielded five Mr. Cleons for the District 211 hookup. Last week against the Grenadiers four of five starting Vikings fouled out during the contest and the Grove ended up with a seven point cushion in free throws when it was all over.

"We didn't want this happening again so we worked on cutting down our fouls all week in practice. I thought the fact that we were able to keep the pressure on Schaumburg without drawing many fouls really upset their game plan this evening."

As opposed to last week's 26 infractions, Fremd was only nailed for 11 against the Saxons. Schaumburg made only seven trips to the line all night. "It's our lowest foul total in two or three years," Kasubosko pointed out.

With that offensive arm taken away from the visitors and Fremd's shooting eye in excellent focus, the contest was subsequently decided before the first period was over. The Vikes rocketed into a quick 21-2 lead behind the shooting of Randy Weber and Larry Coughlin and were not even mildly threatened the rest of the way.

Weber accounted for eight tallies in the first period and Coughlin collected seven. Schaumburg's lone buckets were pitched in by Art Abraham and Ray Kralicek as the hosts piled up an insurmountable 23-4 advantage.

In the second stanza the tempo was hardly altered. Before the Saxons hit one string of three straight toward the end of the period Fremd was on top 41-8. At the intermission it was 43-14.

When the dust finally settled the Vikings owned their third conference win. When the dust finally settled the Vikings owned their third conference win and their fifth triumph overall. They had put five players into double figures while posting their best offensive production of the campaign and turned in their top shooting effort of the year as well at 55 per cent.

With Doug Mize snaring 13 and Coughlin 10, the Vikes also outrebounded the visitors 46-24. And Mark Funk clipped in with nine assists to further the Fremd cause.

Schaumburg had three of their own hit double digits, Trent Tucker collecting 11, Kralicek 12 and Bill Papastefan 10. Coupled with Weber's 15, Coughlin's 13, Mize's 12, Funk's 11 and Bob Frank's 10 for Fremd there were eight overall in two figures for the night.

Smith finished with a game high 26 points, almost all from 15 feet out or more. Redlinger was impressed.

"Smith's the finest ball player I've seen all year," the Conant coach said. "We didn't have anybody who could take him. At least nobody who wanted to try."

The second half began with the teams one point apart and it continued a tight game for five minutes. When 6-foot-4 center George Kaage re-entered the game for the Cats at 2:50 of the third period, Wheeling led 35-34.

Kaage, who had experienced foul troubles, brought the Wildcats to life. He tallied six points in a 35-second span and snagged some key rebounds.

"He was ready to play when he went back in," Ecker said of his regular center Kaage. "He couldn't do anything in the first half."

When Kaage fouled out later in the game, he had already provided the spark that Wheeling needed. He built a 41-34 lead practically by himself, but the Cats couldn't hold it.

The Cougars came back on the strength of fine play by Irion, who led his team with 16 points, and little guard Dick Southworth. They got within two when they ran afoul of the officials.

"Their big kids physically handled our big men," Redlinger said in explaining his team's overall performance. "It was the first time I've seen (Roger) Sander beaten."

Sander, the 6-foot-3 forward, grabbed 20 rebounds, but 13 came in the first half. After that he was contained by Kaage, Smith and 6-foot-4 Bill Pickler.

"We didn't go to the boards," Redlinger complained.

"We had a good first quarter and a half, but then they put the pressure on us," Redlinger noted. "We just don't think under pressure."

"We should have won this game and we should have won last week against Arlington," the Cougar coach said.

His team is now lodged with three losses and they missed a chance to pick up ground on Prospect who was losing Friday.

Ecker's Cats are still in their North Division scramble right behind Arlington. "We've got to do our job," the coach stressed. "We've got to win the rest of ours, but we've got to have some help from someone else."

"We handled Prospect almost all night last week and wound up behind in the end," Ecker concluded. "The kids feel right now they're the best team in the league. They've got to prove it."

Thornton, Lake County topple Hawks

Heldt hot but Harper drops pair

by PAUL LOGAN
As far as personal glory goes, Harper's back-to-back games with Thornton and Lake County were milestones for freshman Steve Heldt.

Heldt, a former Hersey High School starter who admitted to never going over 15 points as a prep, more than doubled his school boy high with 36 Saturday night against visiting Lake County, the Skyway Conference's first-place team.

Two days before at Thornton, Heldt pumped in 26, an all-time high that lasted two days.

His team didn't enjoy any glory in terms of victory, however. Spilling Heldt's offensive outbursts were setbacks to the Bulldogs in the first game, 39-73, and to the league leading Lancers, 101-84 at Fremd High School.

The latter loss hurt the most for it was a chance to upset the plans of an aggressive quintet from Grayslake. With only six games remaining, the Lancers, 7-1 in the SC, will play the worst three teams in the league before going against the three other contenders — Trilon, Elgin and Waubesa.

Steve Heldt

Harper could have had hopes to gaining a share of the title, too, had it reversed the score. The loss left the locals at 4-4 in the conference and 6-13 overall.

The Hawks of Coach Roger Bechtold made the Lancers work for their much sought after victory. After eight ties in the first seven minutes, Lake County ran off eight unanswered points to take a 28-19 lead.

"Let's bust it open right now," shouted

Lancer coach Bruce Smith from his sideline chair. However, his team must have failed to hear him.

Harper captured the momentum and rallied behind the firing of Heldt and Scott Feige. The margin was cut to 34-31 before the Lancers could recover. Both teams played fairly even after that with Lake County holding a 40-36 halftime edge.

Both teams continued to stick with the same defenses used in the opening 20 minutes — Lake County a man-to-man and Harper a 2-3 zone. The latter's defense changed to a man-to-man with less than three minutes gone after the Lancers raced off to a 47-39 lead.

The Lake County bench roared with delight at the defensive change. The next four minutes showed why. The Lancers outscored their hosts 14-0. Heldt's two foul shots ended the frigid spell, but the outcome wasn't anymore in doubt for the Lancers held a 61-41 advantage.

Another costly happening during that time was the loss of Harper's leading scorer — Feige. He and an opponent were tossed out of the game for fighting. Feige had 15 up to that point and seemed to be heading for a high-scoring night.

Heldt took over after that and carried most of the scoring burden. At one point he ran off 10 straight points in his personal duel with the Lancers.

A three-point play by Gary Pemberton, a substitute, brought the Hawks to within 15 with 4 1/2 minutes left, but they never could get closer.

Praised for his hustle both offensively and defensively by Bechtold afterwards, Heldt brought Harper to within 11 with three minutes left on a nifty turnaround jumper.

Just before Heldt's big basket, Frank Taylor came off the bench and was told, "Do something about that No. 14." Taylor didn't stop Heldt, but he did stop the comeback with three straight layups to like the lead to 94-77. Thus ended the slender (6-foot-2 1/2, 155) sharpshooter's bid to rally his team.

When Heldt fouled out in the last seconds of play, a Lancer remarked while clapping his hands, "He played a nice game."

It's too bad that nice guys sometimes finish last.

Heldt and his teammates were frustrated on Thursday by Ed Herring. Missing only a handful of shots and hardly drawing anything but net on the others, Herring hooped 16 from the field to finish with 36 points.

Finishing behind Heldt's 26 were Mike Miller with 14 and Dave Schmitt with 10.

Harper trailed 51-38 after the first half and never could quite recover from Herring's heroics.

Elk Grove still 'alive, kicking' in South's battle

by PAUL LOGAN

Elk Grove and Palatine had the pleasure of playing before the man who runs basketball as well as the rest of the sports in the state — Harry Fitzhugh.

The executive secretary for the Illinois High School Association came to Palatine Friday night to see some well-played basketball, but he had to be patient. Neither the Pirates nor the Grenadiers seemed to want to take charge until the final quarter.

That's when the Grenadiers made their move with near perfect shooting. They outscored their hosts 21-7 and turned a tight game into a rout, 65-47.

"We finally started running patterns," said a pleased Bill Parmentier, who watched his Grenadiers sink six of nine from the field and nine of 12 from the free throw line in that final eight minutes.

It was Elk Grove's fifth Mid-Suburban League win in eight tries and ninth overall in 13 starts. Palatine is 2-6 and 4-9 respectively.

Palatine's Jim Sander, who led both teams with 17 points, swished a 20-footer just before the third quarter gun to bring his team within two, 44-42.

After exchanging baskets in the first minute of action, Palatine went cold. The Pirates failed to hit from anywhere until a rebounded shot by Scott Cole with 3:15 left. By that time the Grenadiers had built up a 10-point cushion.

Accounting for the timely Grove points were Mike Miller with nine of his 11 and eight by Rick O'Leary, who came in as a substitute and scored 10.

Just about every time the Pirates missed, the Grenadiers came down and either converted the one-and-one or had an easy layup. The latter came, as Parmentier pointed out, by successfully running their plays.

Palatine's Rick McCormick hit a jumper to make it 58-49, but the Pirates failed to score the last two minutes. That allowed the visitors to make the final total lopsided. They hit only three of 14 from the field in the final quarter and ended up with a shooting percentage of .323.

Part of the reason for the low Palatine percentage was the Grove defense, according to Parmentier, who added, "We did a heck of a job (pointing at the Pirates' 49 total points)."

He was also pleased with the team's balanced scoring — Bob Prince and Miller with 11 each, Jeff Stewart with 12 (his high for the year) and Rick O'Leary with 10.

Sander moved outside during the game to hit several key shots that kept the Pirates close. "We were willing to sacrifice that. That's what we wanted him to do,"

Parmentier said. This kept Palatine's top rebounder away from the boards.

Ken Pollitz ruled the boards this night with 14 of his team's 29, 11 more than Palatine's total.

The Pirates, who lost their eighth straight, held a 11-10 lead after one quarter. They enjoyed several three-point leads midway through the second period before the Grove went on a scoring binge. With Prince's three field goals leading the way, the Grenadiers sank their last six tries to go from 20-17 down to 29-24 up at the half.

Sander and Jim Arden kept the Pirates close in the third quarter with nine and seven points, respectively. Arden was the only other Pirate in double figures with 11.

A Grove coach brought some good news into the dressing room afterwards — Hersey 43, Prospect 33.

"Baby, we are alive and kicking," smiled Parmentier. The Knights' loss as well as Conant's setback at Wheeling left the Grenadiers tied for second and still alive in the South Division.

Falcons roll past Rolling Meadows, 85-37

All systems 'go' in Forest View's victory

by DWIGHT B. ESAU

There's an old saying that goes, "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

Well, Forest View's Falcons came "home" to their own gym about three weeks ago, and they've been celebrating the homecoming ever since. And the Mid-Suburban League has not been enjoying it a bit.

The Falcons weren't even playing at home Friday night, but no matter their long "homecoming party" reached a grand and devastating peak in the Rolling Meadows gym.

Never this season have the Falcons been more overwhelming or uncanny as they demolished the poor Mustangs, 85-37.

True, the Mustangs had a cold shooting night, but the Falcons didn't win this one by default.

Number two, the Falcons shot out of the basket, hitting nearly 50 per cent of the game.

"That hurt us the most," said Mustang coach Ken Arneson, who said his former team was "very impressive."

Number two, the Falcons shot out of the starting blocks like true fast-break artists, attacking the basket with a ferocity that had the Mustangs usually watching in awe.

Number three, and perhaps most important, the Falcons threw up a swarming zone defense which kept the Meadows shooters far away from the basket.

Finally, the Falcons completely dominated the boards, out-rebounding the Mustangs 2-1 except in the closing moments.

"So what did Coach Ted Wissen have to say after all this cage wonderfulness? Was this as good as his team has played all year? "I don't know, could be," he said in a classic understatement. "We played together very well. The boys looked for each other on offense, and we shot pretty well."

Falcon Guard Tom Mueller showed the way in the first half with 15 points, mostly on the scoring end of fast breaks or on medium-range jumpers.

Thus inspired, the rest of the Falcons took off like rockets. Larry Monroe led everyone with 18, followed by Mueller with 15, Rick Haaning with 14, and Lou Leuzzi with 8. Wissen even got a bonus when Gregg Fink revealed himself as a "sixth man" with eight second-half points and some effective ball-handling.

Don Woodsmall, still limping a bit, was a rebounder and feeder tonight. He grabbed about a dozen boards.

Four more Falcons scored as Wissen cleared his bench half-way through the fourth quarter.

"At one point in the second quarter, we changed our defense to a different kind of zone and we slowed them down a bit," said Arneson. "We then got a couple of good fast-break opportunities, but we blew them. It was early, and a few baskets then might have made a difference. But they kept up their momentum."

The Falcons had nine points before the Mustangs Len Link finally scored, on a 25-foot shot. It soon was 17-2, and 19-7 at the quarter. After a short pause in the second quarter for a second wind, the Falcons raced out to a 41-17 halftime bulge and the second half was just Forest View exercising.

The Mustangs desperately tried to work the ball into Gary Lesley or Jack Lloyd inside that zone, but they fumbled the ball too often when they tried it, and a Falcon snared almost every loose ball.

Link led Rolling Meadows scoring with eight points, while John Hogan and Jeff Kosmoski had six apiece.

Wissen said he hopes his charges reach their peak for the tournaments in late February and March. So far, he's on schedule.

Falcons fall in overtime

KANKAKEE — Kankakee Westview showcased a 6-foot-5 scoring star and fashioned a thrilling 51-50 overtime victory over visiting Forest View here Saturday evening.

The host K-Hawks put seven points on the board in the overtime, all seven by 6-foot-5 Bill Groesback, and held on for a victory that snapped a three-game Falcon winning streak.

Groesback hit two free throws with 12 seconds remaining in the overtime to give Kankakee a 51-48 edge, and the hosts then watched as Lou Leuzzi dashed down the floor for a layup that set the final margin at one point.

Forest View had a chance to win in regulation time, but a shot by Larry Monroe went off in the closing seconds. That's when Groesback, who finished with 26 points, took control for Westview.

Tom Mueller had the hot hand for Forest View with 19 points, spreading out his scoring in a sharp display of out-shooting that showed nine baskets.

Rick Haaning contributed 10 points for the Falcons, who actually outscored Westview by two baskets but only had seven chances at the free throw line, cashing just twice.

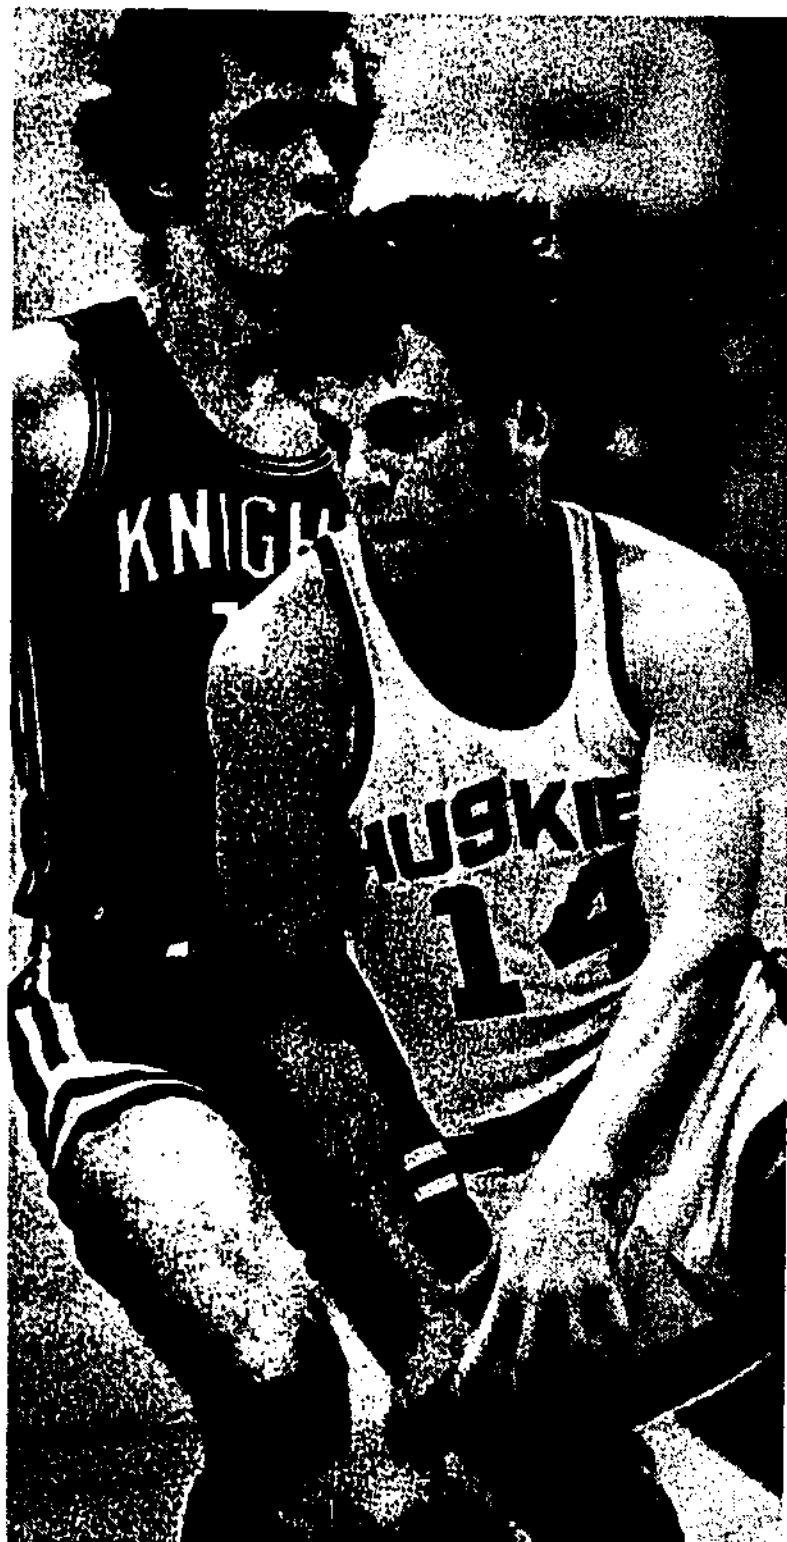

Forest View moves back into Mid-Suburban League play Tuesday night with a home game. The Falcons face Elk Grove Friday night.

Final surge falls short in Lions' 57-45 setback

by JEFF RAWLS

The St. Vitor Lions learned again Friday night that well-intentioned efforts alone are not enough to win basketball games, as they were conquered by the Holy Cross Crusaders 57-45.

A combination of the will to win with execution of plays is what enables teams to collect victories and in their performance on their home floor, the Lions lacked the latter many times.

Coach Ed Wasielewski commented after the ballgame that the poor shooting from the floor coupled with the number of fouls which the Lions committed in the contest led to the downfall of his charges.

The Lions, who only made 17 field goals all night, made nine of 26 shots from the floor in the first half for a little less than 35 per cent and eight of 23 in the second half for nearly the same cold percentage.

Senior center Mike Cook only made one basket the entire night while the Lions' leading scorer Mike Dwyer only managed six buckets during the conference test.

Fouls also hurt the Lion cause. Although no Lion fouled out in the game, they committed 19 personals in the contest, allowing their opponents to take 19 free throws of which they made 13.

The Lions were beaten at the charity stripe by two points as they made 11 of 14.

Many of the fouls came in the second half when it appeared as though the hosts were beginning to make a drive for the lead in the ballgame.

The Crusaders made nine of 12 free throws in the second half and seven of them in the fourth stanza.

Another factor in the contest were the number of turnovers which the Lions committed. The Crusaders effectively utilized a full court press from the beginning of the contest and through this were able to force the Lions into 15 losses of possession of the roundball.

Fred Hallihan, the player whom Wasielewski terms his best man against the press, was still out of action.

Cold spots came in spurts for the Lions during the contest.

The hosts grabbed the lead during the opening jump on the jumper by Dwyer. However, after that first two-pointer, they only managed two more points on free throws by Dwyer and Terry Keehan while the Crusaders put 11 points on the scoreboard for a seven point lead.

Not scoring a point in about three minutes of the first period, the St. Vitor unit finally made a comeback, drawing to as close as three points in the quarter at 15-12 with 21 seconds left to go. The lead, however, was extended to five points at the buzzer on an unmolested, short jumper by Ron Benedetti.

In the second period, the Lions climbed to within two points of the Crusaders at 23-21 but again the visitors pulled out to a seven-point lead on a free throw and two buckets. The teams left the floor at half time five points apart.

For all practical purposes, the Crusaders locked up their eighth conference victory, including the two over the Lions, when they came back onto the court for the jump to begin the third marker.

The Lions failed to make a basket for the first 4:40 of the second half while committing two fouls, one of which resulted in two charities; and committed four turnovers, three resulting in baskets for the Crusaders.

The 15-point lead at 40-25 was the largest in the evening.

The Lions, though, tried to fight back from the overwhelming lead, getting to within six points with only three minutes remaining.

The Lions had possession of the ball after a Crusader missed the first leg of a one and one situation. However, a missed shot by Dave Hutcheson and a turnover on a bad pass by Mike Cook enabled the Holy Cross team to put the game out of reach.

The Lions failed to make another point in the contest and the Crusaders pulled back to a 12-point lead at the closing buzzer.

Wheeling's Bergman earns most valuable swim award

"It was about what we expected," said Doug Cotner, Wheeling's swimming coach, after the team's trip to the fifth annual Knights' Invitational in Glendale, Wis.

"It was pretty much of a three-way meet with Nicolet (the host school), Marquette and ourselves. We led most of the way but lacked a little depth and that's why we came in third."

Nicolet captured its title with 171½ points. Marquette had 149½ and Wheeling 147½ in the Saturday meet.

For the first time since the meet was inaugurated, a trophy was given to the most valuable swimmer. Capturing the award with victories in two events was Wildcat Ken Bergman. His double, un-equaled in the meet, was performed in the individual medley (2:13.7) and the breaststroke (1:08.2).

Bill Modica took the 400 freestyle with a new meet record of 4:11.4.

After Wheeling, the team scoring dropped off decisively — Racine Park 113, Brookfield Central 71½, Racine Park 66, West Bend West 59 and Campion 58.

Only one Wildcat captured a third — Dan Woodruff in the 400 free (4:27.0).

Posting fourths were these "Cats" — the medley relay (Larry Slad, Mike Saltzman, Ed Wilkosz and Kelly Bauer) in 2:02.2, Modica in the 200 free with 2:00.7, George Wurtz in diving with 288.00 and Paul Lindquist with a pari — the butterfly with 1:03.6 and the 50 free with 24.6.

Right behind Lindquist in the 50 was Mike Hyde with fifth (25.4). Slad rounded out the fifth place finishers with his showing in the backstroke (1:08.2).

"The boys had a great time," said Cotner. "It was a great experience for them. The boys that hosted them and their parents I talked to up there seemed very pleased, too."

Wheeling's junior varsity team completed the day before and finished second to Nicolet. See complete results in Thursday's special swim section.

Elk Grove posts sharp win over Elgin Larkin

Elk Grove turned on the defense to capture its second victory of the weekend at Elgin Larkin Saturday, 49-41.

With Ken Pollitz and Bob Prince leading the way, the Grenadiers opened a seven-point gap in the first period and led the rest of the way. This third straight victory upped their overall record to 10-4.

Pollitz tallied 20 and Prince 16 with both being instrumental in a fourth quarter Grenadier surge that pulled them out of reach of the Royals. Elgin had rallied in the second and third periods to pull back within four of the visitors before the last period began.

"We had no other choice but to play good defense tonight," said Grove coach Bill Parmentier. "We couldn't give a lick at the other end of the floor. We shot only 29 per cent but I guess it might have been expected. The kids played hard the night before and there had to be a little letdown afterwards."

Coupled with the letdown was an aggressive Larkin man-to-man defense that kept the pressure on all the way, hoping to move above the .500 mark. The Royals had also had gone into the contest with a two-game win streak in tow, having triumphed at Naperville the previous evening.

"We did a good job on their tough forward (Mike) York, and that helped," Parmentier pointed out. "He's the third leading scorer in their league (Upstate Eight) at about 17 points a game, but we held him to six."

Since Elk Grove's own top-notch forward Bill Butler was still sidelined Saturday, the coach started Rick O'Leary and he along with Pollitz managed to equalize the strong Royal board game. And with the defenses on both sides pretty much having their say, Elk Grove led 24-18 at halftime.

In the third period, there were only 14 points scored by both sides, Elgin trimming its deficit to 30-26 and prompting its guests to worry a bit. But Pollitz bagged a half a dozen points in the final quarter and Prince keyed a couple of fast-break plays to get Grove's offense finally moving.

Pollitz finished with 14 rebounds, giving him 28 for the weekend. O'Leary added nine boards to the cause. Prince had seven assists to go with his 16 points.

Cartwright returns, much to dismay of West cagers

by MIKE KLEIN
Out in Bowling Green, Ohio, there's a whopping big college basketball player who has good reason to be downright proud of little brother.

Be introduced to the Cartwright clan — Mark and Brad.

Mark's the 6-11 former prep All-American from Niles West. He ended up at Bowling Green State University after a short tour of duty with Lefty Dreisell's program at Maryland.

And little brother? Well, Brad's only 6-foot-5, a real small fry. But just the right size to toss through 28 points and lead Niles West to a 76-47 slaughter of Maine West last Friday evening.

He performed like a young man possessed with making up for lost time. It was Cartwright's first start since Dec. 8 when he sustained a severely sprained ankle against Niles North.

But Cartwright, who saw reserve action two weekends ago, left little doubt about his present health. He started slowly, scoring only two first quarter points. But quarters of 10-8-9 followed. Brad hit 10 field goals and all of eight free throw attempts.

He paced a big victory for the home-court Indians who realize his six-week absence may have cost them a Central Suburban League championship.

Billy Schnurr's Indians have lost only three of 14 games this winter. But all were in CSL play where they're only 4-3. Schnurr admits Niles West's title aspirations are only childish dreams. But he adds, "We'll be playing all those guys yet — Maine South, New Trier, Deerfield — so we expect to be helping everybody else out."

Maine West wasn't helped at all by the games Schnurr's Indians played last Friday eve over on Oakton Street in Skokie. The Warriors lost their second consecutive CSL game. They're now 1-3 and in a bad spot with only six league games remaining.

Cartwright, foul trouble and more Cartwright gave the Warriors more than they could handle. The slender, blond-haired Indian was devastating from outside. He easily could have gone over 30 points by passing less.

But the Warriors were still within reach, trailing 41-33, when 6-8 center Doug Myers fouled out at 3:52 of the third quarter.

That began the end for West. From that point, the Indians outscored Maine 35-14.

Other problems underscored this eighth defeat against seven wins for the Warriors. They hosted Proviso East in a non-conference Saturday game.

For one, All-CSL forward Joe Thimm scored just four field goals and eight points, all in the second half. West's leading scorer at 17.3 per game, Thimm had taken only one shot at halftime.

Myers and Thimm each had two fouls before the first quarter curtain closed. Whistle concern forced coach Gaston Freeman to shuffle his two best respected players.

Thus, the pair worked together against Niles for only about two quarters actual playing time.

Chris Bouchee had one of his best recent games, combining six field goals and three charity shots for 15 points. But it just wasn't enough, especially after Myers fouled out after a five point, four rebound effort.

Niles West led the rebounding battle, 37-30. Thimm had nine for Maine. Myers' replacement, Jim Olsen, followed with seven and Bouchee grabbed four.

The Indians hit 27 of 61 shots (44%) while Maine West converted 19 of 49 attempts (38%). Niles hit 22 of 26 free throws.

Freeman's Warriors took the early lead, 4-0, on baseline field goals by Chris Bouchee and Joe Prang. Niles opened its scoring with a Cartwright field goal and tied the game on a Dan Welter baseline jumper.

Two John O'Connor charity shots gave the Warriors a 6-4 lead. O'Connor received his second consecutive start at wingman.

But in under one minute, Niles shot to a 13-6 lead and never again trailed. Bob Krueger — part of Schnurr's four-man guard system — brought the game to 6-6 when he connected from the left side.

Welter hit a three-point play and followed that with his third of five evening baskets for an 11-6 lead. Sophomore guard Marty Block stretched Niles' advantage to seven points with two free throws after Myers' second foul.

The Warriors never again got closer than two points, 19-17, early in the second period. Trailing 17-11 at the quarter, Maine used a Bouchee free throw plus a three-point play by Myers to draw within 17-15.

Cartwright interrupted the comeback with the first of his three second period field goals, making it 19-15. Myers brought Maine within two points before the Indians fashioned a 31-23 halftime lead.

In next week's conference games, Maine will host Niles East, its first conference victim back on Dec. 8. Niles West gets a revenge shot at Niles North.

That game will have special meaning for Cartwright. It was against the Vikings that Cartwright tore up his ankle. He'd already scored 17 points as a dozen minutes remained.

But when Schnurr's best ballplayer came up lame, so did the rest of his club, losing to Niles North by one point.

Mixed bag for Maine East Demons

Overtime win, regulation setback

by JIM STUART

You really can't blame Maine East for being just a little bit down Saturday night at Evanston.

After all, the Blue Demons had worked overtime Friday night. Double overtime, in fact.

That's what it took the Demons to put away a spunky Glenbrook North outfit that wouldn't quit Friday. Two extra periods.

But the extra work was well rewarded, as East came away with a 65-64 decision and undisputed possession of third place in the Central Suburban League North Division. The Demons hold onto that third spot with a 4-3 record, while the Spartans of Glenbrook fell to 3-4.

But the following night at Evanston, it was a different story. Fatigue could not be disguised, and when Keith Larson finally connected on Maine's first field goal with almost five minutes having been played, the Wildcats had already rattled off the first 13 points of the game.

East showed signs of coming to life in the second quarter and again briefly in the third, but then the host 'Kits were able to pull away to a breezing 74-43 win.

Coach Paul McClelland cited several reasons for his club's lack of success at Evanston.

"The kids had to be down after last (Friday) night's game," he said "And I've never seen Evanston shoot like that either." He also said that just as his team was somewhat down after its clutch performance the night before, so Evanston was "loaded for bear after being blown off the court by Oak Park on Friday."

That loss practically eliminated the Wildcats from any chance of taking the Suburban League championship. And that didn't sit quite right with coach Jack Burmaster, who had taken the 'Kits to the state championship in 1968 and to the Elite Eight last season.

"We were just outplayed," said McClelland. "But I promise we'll be ready for Highland Park next week."

They'd better be. The Little Giants up tie the Cowboys for the North Division lead and are tall and tough. But if the Blue Demons should beat HP and if New Trier should lose again, East would be only a game out of the lead.

It was reserve Rich Schumacher who provided the heroics Friday in the second extra period after East had blown an 11-point lead to make the overtime necessary.

With nine seconds remaining Glenbrook's Ted Govedarica, who had been unstoppable with 27 points, made the first and missed the second of a one-and-one free throw situation.

Greg Maloney took the ball in for East, fed it to Bill Castonzo who gave it to Doug Moorad at the foul line. Moorad missed the 15-footer with two seconds left, but Schumacher was perfectly positioned and his tip-in just beat the gun.

"I guess I should have used Schumacher earlier," said McClelland. "He was all over the court in both overtime periods."

Larson, Castonzo and Jim Cromer all had 16 points for the Demons in the big win. It was Larson and Cromer who kept East in the game at the end of regulation time with their outside shooting while Govedarica was burning the home team from all over.

In the Evanston game, things were pretty much decided during that early Wildkit spurt. All of Evanston's eight first-period baskets came from close range, most of them on fast breaks, and Maine East just couldn't find the hole. Mike Faden added a jumper to Larson's icebreaker for the only scoring, and the count at the quarter was 21-4.

Castonzo scored eight points in the second period as the Demons rallied to cut the lead to 15 at the half, and Larson hit three in a row from long range after intermission to narrow it to only 12.

But Evanston quickly recaptured the momentum, and when a Schumacher shot bounced out of the basket as a mysterious hand touched the net and no goaltending was called, the steam went out of the Blue Demon attack for the last time.

McClelland argued the point, but all he got for his efforts was a technical foul call.

Larson was the only Easterner in double figures with 10 points, while for Evanston Harold Lohman was the leader with 24. Guard Carl Ammons, who directed the Wildkit offense, wound up with 13.

Bright spots in North's reversal

by DOUG PALM

There just may have been more than one victory.

That seems to be the general consensus from Friday evening, when Glenbrook South held off Maine North's rallying Norsemen, 77-65, in a confrontation between two equally troubled basketball teams.

By virtue of the victory, Glenbrook South recorded its initial Central Suburban League triumph of the season. More important is the fact that the visiting Titans, in winning only their second game overall, managed to pull themselves out of a deadlock with Maine North for last place in the CSL's North Division. Both had entered the contest with identical 0-6 league marks.

Maine North entered the showdown still looking for its first win, but at a distinct disadvantage, or so it seemed. Willie Vall was gone. The 6-6 senior forward had used up all his eligibility as he neared a mid-semester graduation. With Vall gone, so too, perhaps, were Maine North's chances for victory.

With Vall out of the picture, Coach Jerry Nelson inserted 6-0 Junior Ed Volkman in his starting lineup. Although he had seen considerable action of late, this was Volkman's first varsity start. Needless to say, he was confronted with quite a challenge, as Vall's replacement. Vall had averaged 9.7 points and close to eight rebounds per game, both tops for the Norsemen.

By game's end, however, both coaches could claim to have seen the light of optimism, which only victory, and in some instances, marked improvement can reveal. Had it not been for a cold spell suffered by Maine North at the game's outset, things might have turned out differently.

As it was, however, Glenbrook South took advantage of the Norsemen's early problems and bolted to a 23-7 first quarter lead. In the final analysis that was the ball game, as Maine North simply could not find the basket. The Norsemen managed only three of 10 foul shots.

At Striking Lanes

The Four Baggers, led by Mary Jane Robertson's 428, have taken over sole possession of first place in the Randwood mixed ... Marge Wagner led all women scorers with 479 followed by Helen Zylstra's 444, Lu Ridgeway 439, Mickey Bury 427, Barb Lowman 418, Mary Jane Arndt 406 and Jackie Aberle 404 ... High scores for the men were Gene Zylstra 592, Jerry Davis 563-215, Jim Wierzenski 530-217, Bill Lowman 514, Tom Wisniewski 511, and Bob Markell 505 ... Helen Zylstra covered the 4-7-10 railroad.

Displaying a devastating fast break, Glenbrook broke away from a brief 2-all deadlock, and threatened to turn the affair into a complete rout. The key to the fast break is controlling the defensive boards and quickly releasing to the guards. The Titans were able to demonstrate the ability to the fullest throughout most of the game, especially during the initial quarters.

Time and time again, when the Norsemen failed to connect, Glenbrook South's front line of John Parker, John Diveris, and Brent Wiemer triggered the break much to the delight of Coach Steve Power. Although generally satisfied with the game's outcome, the ex-assistant to Jack Burmaster (at Evanston) "was really pleased with our fast break, which gave us numerous three on one situations."

At the season's conclusion, Maine North may well look back to the second quarter of this game as evidence of the development of several individuals as basketball players.

Trailing by 16 points, and on the verge of being blown out of the gym, the young Norsemen started to jell around the play of sophomore George Kaufman, perhaps the most encouraging aspect of an otherwise dismal season for Maine North. Tightening up on defense and seemingly turning their offense in a more disciplined manner, the young Norsemen managed to play the visitors on near even terms during the second quarter.

The reason for the improved play of Maine North was Kaufman, whose inspiring performance seemed to be contagious. Continually able to work himself free, Kaufman proved to be quite effective in close as he scored on baseline jumpers and running hooks.

Down 43-25 at intermission, Maine North made a gallant effort in the second half as it outplayed Glenbrook South. Even though they outscored the visitors, 40-24, the Norsemen were unable to overcome that early lapse, and could come no closer than 10 points.

In reviewing his team's effort, Maine North coach Jerry Nelson was understandably optimistic. The play of Kaufman and Volkman, in particular, was cause enough for finding joy in defeat.

Kaufman finished with a game high 25 points (13 in the second half) on the strength of a 9-for-22 performance from the floor. In addition he contributed nine rebounds. "We've tried to give him a few moves inside," added Nelson in his comments on Kaufman. "He's proved very effective outside."

Volkman turned in a yeoman-like job in his first big test, grabbing 10 rebounds and scoring 11 points. With any luck he could have had even more, as several shots just would not drop. His overall hustle and desire led Nelson to comment that, "Ed did an admirable job in filling in for Vall; in fact he picked up where Willie left off."

Mike Wilson had 12 rebounds to lead the Norsemen in that department, while Derrick Brown added nine despite early foul troubles which limited his playing time. Then, too, there was Bob De Marco who had 14 points, his highest total of the season.

In truth, there were several victories.

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Low-protein diet can help ease gout

Dear Dr. Lamb — I've been having trouble with gout for some years but in the past only my hands and wrists were involved. This last week it got to my big toe. My problem is the diet to follow to avoid getting it.

I've asked my doctor and he told me to keep away from anchovies and caviar. I never eat the stuff, but I do drink orange juice in great quantities and eat vinegar dill pickles and fresh tomatoes almost every day. Please tell me what is good and what is not good for a gout diet.

Dear Reader — Gout is characterized by too much uric acid in the body. Uric acid is an end product of some proteins. It is eliminated in the urine and this is where it gets its name. The body manufactures uric acid and is the main source for it.

Individuals with high levels of uric acid are often very bright people such as Isaac Newton, Leonardo da Vinci, Ben Franklin and Alexander the Great.

The elevated uric acid can form deposits in the various joints and gradually produce gouty arthritis. It can also form crystals in a joint (often the great toe) and cause an acute inflammatory reaction. The large, swollen, red painful toe is so tender that the patient usually can't stand to have the bed sheets over it.

Medical treatment is given for two purposes: to relieve an acute episode, and on a long-term basis to prevent the gradual precipitation of uric acid salts into the bones and joints which will gradually cause arthritic deformities. Some patients don't realize this and think if they are free of pain they're doing fine and don't need the medicine, but the medicines that are given are necessary to help prevent arthritic deformities.

Because much of the uric acid is formed by the body irrespective of the dietary restrictions, many doctors say

Heart disease program slated

A heart disease education program is being offered by several area hospitals in cooperation with the Heart Association of North Cook County.

Helping area residents in the detection of heart problems will be attempted through counseling and group discussions and will include blood pressure screening, risk factor evaluation tests and personalized education.

Hospitals participating in the program and their schedules are: Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, Feb. 9, 6:30 and 10 p.m. and Feb. 10, 1 and 5 p.m.; Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, Feb. 16, noon and 8 p.m.; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, March 3, 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., and Resurrection Hospital, Park Ridge, Feb. 2, 2 and 8 p.m.

'Papettes' available all week, Saturday

The Northwest Opportunity Center has extended the time that the self-administered pap tests will be available at the center, 3411 Kirchhoff Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Previously the test was available only on Tuesdays but now it can be taken Monday through Fridays between 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The self-administered test, called a papette test, is made available at no cost by the American Cancer Society. It is designed to detect uterine cancer.

After the papette has been administered the Northwest Opportunity Center sends it to the American Cancer Society and the society will return the list results back to the center within two weeks.

Hersey soloist at Inauguration

A Hersey High School senior performed as featured soloist in the Inauguration concert presented by the U.S. Navy Band last week in Washington, D.C.

Jeff Hickey, Arlington Heights, performed with the band in the concert in the nation's Capitol Wednesday.

Hickey is a soloist with the Hersey High School Symphonic Winds and has received superior ratings for the past three years in solo and ensemble contests held for Illinois high school musicians.

The Navy Band perform seven public concerts in Washington during January and February and selects an outstanding high school soloist for each concert.

less attention to diet. It is usually necessary to use medicine anyway to obtain any satisfactory reduction in the uric acid level. The diet is important in restricting total calorie intake for those who are obese. Excessively rich foods or dietary binges are to be avoided. The old purine free diet that was commonly used in gout omitted meat, fowl and fish and was based on obtaining protein from milk, eggs, cheese and vegetable sources.

FOR A PERSON who wants to use a diet in gout I would recommend a diet relatively low in protein but still adequate. Because of the frequent association of fatty deposits in the arteries of gout patients, one should use fortified skim milk, egg whites, uncreamed cottage cheese, and vegetable proteins such as beans, while using meat, poultry and fish sparingly. No one with gout should go on a crash diet because this sometimes causes an acute attack.

Other individuals will have trouble with drinking alcohol in any form, and even severe emotional stress can cause a gouty attack. Vinegar dill pickles and fresh tomatoes are fine.

Win At Bridge
by Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "How about some submarine plays this week?"

Jim: "I guess you mean where you lead a low card in order to lose an early trick."

Oswald: "Today's submarine play is used so that South can draw two rounds of trumps and still keep control of the trump suit."

Jim: "In spite of his 14 high card points, West doesn't have much of an opening bid. North elects to double rather than bid one no-trump and eventually South plays a four-spade contract."

Oswald: "A look at dummy shows South that he must lose two trumps and a diamond. He also must retain trump control and be able to ruff two of his hearts in dummy. He doesn't mind being overtruffed by a man with three trumps but he can't afford an overtruff by a man with only two."

Jim: "And, of course the hand will collapse if anyone holds four trumps against him. His play is to win the heart lead in dummy and submarine a few trumps."

Oswald: "After this start he wins whatever suit is returned; plays dummy's ace of trumps and now proceeds to crossruff hearts and clubs. He loses another trump and a diamond in the cool of the evening but makes his 10 tricks along the way."

A new series for Buddy Ebsen

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Buddy Ebsen, who clowned around with enormous success for years in CBS-TV's "The Beverly Hillbillies," made his debut Sunday in the new network series, "Barnaby Jones."

This time around he plays a laconic, likeable and tough private eye. The premier was a sharply done, attractive ex-

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marilyn Monroe would not have become a star today because she was putting on an act, says up-and-coming Joanna Cameron, a young beauty who belongs to a different generation of actresses.

"It has nothing to do with Marilyn's talents or her beauty," said Joanna.

"But the Grade Kelly thing is all over. Audiences in 1973 are much too sophisticated for plastic or artificial stars off-screen. Marilyn was sort of a fantasy."

"These days an actress has to be a female first and a performer or artist afterward."

JOANNA QUALIFIES as being feminine. And at the age of 24, impressively aware of the tastes and preferences of her generation in the individuals who appear in movies and television.

"There aren't any major female movie stars because audiences have refused to accept the stereotyped, idealized movie queens of the old days. They don't believe the falsifications anymore."

"An actress like Rosalind Russell will always be accepted because she is an interesting, believable woman."

Joanna portrays an interesting character in "The All American Beauty Contest," a television movie in which she wins a national beauty contest. Many of the girls in the film are former beauty pageant contestants.

"I'VE NEVER entered a beauty contest," said the outspoken brunette. "They're ridiculous. They don't encourage individuality. And they have the same ancient idea about females—the 1959 American princess."

"The character I play has contempt for the contest. Even if I were guaranteed winning I wouldn't enter a beauty pageant."

"It's a game of females trying to hold onto the old image of eternal girlhood. Today that doesn't work. Most young women would rather become a man's mistress instead of being somebody's little girl."

Joanna, it would appear, is neither at the moment. She is intent on becoming a top dramatic actress. Failing that she may go into politics or some other field.

BUT A STRIDENT women's liberationist she is not.

"I'm for liberated females," she said. "I'm for I'm one. But the movement itself is unfeminine."

"Most young women fall somewhere between the type who enter beauty contests and those who are out on the streets crying out for liberation."

One had difficulty following Joanna's words. She was dressed in a blue bathing suit, part of her wardrobe for the film. The distraction was sufficiently pleasant to hypnotize several men standing nearby. Clearly, they were not admiring Joanna's intellect.

The actress shrugged at the by-standers and concluded: "I guess they're the kind who like beauty contestants."

Trim traffic stoppers

Could that be a woman in the toll booth?

by ELEANOR RIVES

If you can count axles, calculate change quickly, keep your cool during rush hours...

If you can smile through a dreary drizzle of rain, give a cheerful "good morning" whether it's good or not, saluter at snow and greet grouches with a grin...

If you can read a map well, give logical answers quickly without holding up traffic, communicate easily with all kinds of people...

Chances are you would make a darn good woman toll collector.

LEONA LONGFIELD is a darn good woman toll collector. She has been, for two years. Ever since the Illinois Tollroads Commission began hiring women as toll takers. She works at the Devon Plaza of the Northwest Tollway in Des Plaines.

The Commission started cautiously with four women. Leona was one of them. So pleased have they been with female performance in what was formerly considered a man's sphere that they now have 35 women collectors, the majority ranging in age from 40 to 50, but one as young as 27.

"Bart" Bartholomew, assistant administrator of toll collection, tells female applicants for the job, "Expect no favors as a woman. You will be getting equal pay with the men. If little things disturb you, better not be a lady toll taker. We can't control the weather, we can't control some of the inevitable grouches. Toll collectors must be courteous in all situations."

ON THE WHOLE, he claims, women make excellent collectors because they are so flexible, so resilient. "They know how to deal with grouchy husbands," he laughed.

A job interview and simple tests in arithmetic and comprehension are the first steps to getting this job. Its benefits include hospitalization, paid vacations, no forced retirement and a good salary with a regular system of merit increases. At the end of three years satisfactory performance, a toll collector may earn a salary of $9,204 per year.

During the first five years, a two-week paid vacation is provided, three weeks after five years and four weeks after 15 years.

AN ORIENTATION period during which new employees are indoctrinated with security precautions, use of the keys and financial responsibilities is held at the administration building. Supervised on-the-job training lasts one to two weeks, but in no case is anyone expected to take over full responsibility until he or she feels completely confident.

Since the tollway is open to traffic 24 hours a day, there are three shifts of toll collectors. A collector works seven weeks on one shift, each day in a new booth so that no one employee is stuck with the heaviest traffic lanes.

Mrs. Longfield began working in a toll booth in May 1970. "I was scared at first," she exclaimed. "Not only because this was a new job, but because it was the first time women were hired for it. The men really enjoyed having a woman around, though," she went on. "They brought me candy, sometimes an extra sandwich from home. And they always offer to carry my heavy supply tray for me."

ONE OF THE FIRST comments Leona heard from drivers still persists. "Oh, you're a woman!" To which she answers with a grin, "I hope so." Truck drivers show preference for women toll collectors and it never ceases to amuse Leona when a truck spots her as it approaches the plaza, the driver does a double-take, and the vehicle veers into her lane.

Weather doesn't bother her a bit. She loves being outdoors. In winter she wears a snappy navy blue coat and slacks uniform with white turtleneck sweater, warm and comfortable. The booth is equipped with a built-in heater plus a portable electric heater for especially cold days.

Her summer uniform consists of a jumper, blouse and hat. A jacket is optional year round. The heat is never oppressive because "we're up high and it's always nice and breezy."

EACH TOLL BOOTH is equipped with a radio communications system. If a driver reports seeing a disabled car, the collector can relay the message to a patrol car. If a vehicle zooms through without paying a toll, the collector reports the license number or a description to the patrol car up ahead.

For the embarrassed driver who suddenly realizes he forgot his wallet, there is an unpaid toll procedure. The driver exchanges identification information for an envelope to mail in his fee later.

Leona doesn't know at the end of a day whether her fees have balanced. A computer is hard at work figuring it out and lets her know a week later.

HOW DOES A WOMAN working in what formerly was a man's job feel about Women's Lib? "Some things about it are good," she said. "But I still want to be a woman and still want men to treat me as a woman. I'm just afraid those gals are going to blow it for me!"

Mrs. Longfield has two married children and one grandchild. Her kids think her job is great. So does she. Better than when she was a hostess in a restaurant or a waitress before that. Much better than when she did general office work. "Forget it!" she exclaimed. "I had to be quiet!"

How does she come to work? By tollway, of course.

What does she especially like about her job? "It lets me do the thing I like to do most — talk!"

THIS BELLE TOLLS for a living. She's one of the first four women toll collectors hired by the Illinois Tollroads Commission two years ago. Now there are 35. Leona Longfield adds a touch of femininity to the Devon Plaza of the Northwest Tollway. Drivers usually do a "double-take" when they see a woman in the booth, but have found female collectors efficient, pleasant and friendly.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Mary Sherry

The mettle test for mothers

It wouldn't be entirely accurate to say that it is fashionable to have, or have had, this season's variety of flu. However, when it is evident that an epidemic is upon us, it is tempting to top someone else's symptoms or treatment with the lurid details of one's own.

The same tendency is true with mothers, who, as every mother knows, are not allowed to get sick. In such a situation, mothers must compare the cases of their offspring and husbands in circumstances of mass infection.

Last Friday my husband and I were to attend a meeting. The day before one child had got sick with the flu. That morning another fell ill. But by late afternoon, the situation had stabilized so I decided we could go ahead with our plans to go out. When my husband got home from work, it was obvious: he, too, had the flu. I had to go to the meeting alone.

At the meeting everyone inquired about my absent husband, and I explained that the flu had invaded the house. Then several people gave the details about when THEY had had the bug. I countered with the suddenness with which it had hit US. But someone reported having had three in THEIR family come down with it in a 12-hour period, where OURS had taken all of 24 hours to develop. With that I settled for the fact that our situation, though worthy of plenty of sympathy, certainly was not the worst.

When I arrived home that night, I went from room to room checking on all my patients who were all sleeping well. Having had a late sleep the night before, I fell into bed exhausted. Just as I was dropping off to sleep, I heard the sound I most feared at that moment — gagging.

Throwing off the covers, I leaped out of bed. When I found the source of the sound, I couldn't believe it. This time it was the dog! I grabbed her collar and raced down two flights of stairs. All the while I was giving thanks that she was being cooperative and that basset hounds, being so ridiculously long, take a very long time to throw up. Then as I found myself in the freezing cold of the back yard without slippers or a robe, I figured I was pretty ridiculous, too.

Ridiculous or not, as I watched the latest addition to the family sick list, I knew that this one would be hard to top.

I thought, too, that if it weren't for annual flu epidemics, it would be hard for some of us to prove the mettle of our motherhood.

Eight varieties of alcoholics

NEW YORK (UPI) — A psychiatrist who treats alcoholics says there are eight types.

Dr. C. Nelson Davis, psychiatrist in chief of the Malvern Institute for Psychiatric and Alcohol Studies in Malvern, Pa., categorizes alcoholics as follows:

—The periodic alcoholic. This one drinks sometimes regularly, sometimes irregularly, always ending in a binge.

—The chronic alcoholic. This one drinks daily and liberally.

—The quiet alcoholic. He or she drinks right into oblivion without bothering anyone.

—The eight-hour alcoholic. He tends to make family and friends and his own life unhappy. Drinking starts before dinner. The eight-hour victim of alcohol gets drunk on one drink, may sleep for a while but then gets up and is a nuisance.

—The binge drinker. He loses control of conduct.

—THE REGULAR alcoholic. This drunk understands his sensitivities to drink but continues to drink anyway. He or she knows eventually there will be a stay in a hospital — for revival purposes. Once released the regular alcoholic picks up drinking again.

—The station wagon alcoholic. He lives in suburbia. The drinking to the dissipation stage is protected by economic status.

—The drug dependent alcoholic. This one begins to take drugs to cushion the rigors of the hangover. In time, he or she becomes drug dependent. Suicide or accidental death usually marks the end for this type of alcoholic.

Fashion

by Genie

Men between the age of 25 and 50 are receiving all the fashion attention for spring in sportswear. And the look is being dressed up.

The big news for the mature man is the coordinate concept in which he can buy a package that neatly ties in slacks, shirts and jackets. A plaid shirt designed like a jacket might be worn with matching trousers to form a sports suit or teamed with coordinating trousers.

Another favorite for spring is the unconstructed jacket or suit that is made without padding and thus fits more like a shirt than the normal jacket.

For the middle-aged man a variety of cuts in pants are being shown for next season ranging from those with modified flair to a gentlemen's jean cut.

BRUSHED DENIM is big in jeans, but in pants favorites will be plaid seersucker, Madras, gingham, glens and windpanes.

At the recent showings in New York of the National Association of Men's Sportswear Buyers, knit fabrics dominated the spring line in sports shirts and the No. 1 style is outerwear for spring is the baseball jacket.

Generally more nautical themes in shirts and accessories will be showing up and a lot of new clothes are being designed exclusively for bicycle wear.

There is also a big trend toward fashion underwear for men from bkinis to body wear, a one-piece unit that combines a brief with a top.

As women continue to throw out their underwear, men appear to be making theirs much more complicated.

New footwear for spring is coming in even higher for both women and men.

Some of the shoes for women already lift them five and one-half inches from the pavement, a feat accomplished through built-up platform soles and a raised stumpy heel.

The forecast for the high stoppers comes from the American Footwear Institute in its semi-annual wrapup of what's afoot.

ONE OF THE most unusual big rises comes from Golo, who does a see-through lucite shoe for women with only narrow straps across the vamp to hold it on. The shoes resemble mini stilts.

The platform look has been spurred on by the popularity of the clogs, originally an European import. Most are being sold with cork or wooden soles.

Hermosa of California does a wooden sole clog with convertible uppers in different colors and designs that snap on and off to suit a woman's preference. Another firm, Napoli, dyes a cork sole in a plaid design.

They won't quit rocking the boat

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Found: A group of women who don't give a darn about telling age — or seeing it in print.

They are MS Magazine's first batch of "Found Women." Many were rocking boats long before Betty Friedan hatched the women's movement. Their ages are listed with their deeds in the current MS.

Gloria Steinem, an editor of MS, says such women are the heart of "the great change happening to women."

"They are the brave women all over the country who are working to change their own lives, the lives of their sisters, and the world around them."

How were they found?

Harriet Lyons, an editor of MS, went over more than 1,000 profiles that came into the women's movement magazine office in New York in response to a classified ad in two previous issues. The ad asked for words on women, making changes in their communities.

Karin Lipper, of MS, said many nominations were made by men, including husbands telling of their wife's achievements.

"FOUND WOMEN will continue as a feature," Ms. Steinem said, "so we can learn from each other's example, whether it is from a literal idea for a project — or simply the contagion of seeing another person with the courage to try."

Some glimpses of a few "Found Women."

—Jeannette Piccard, 77, Episcopal deacon, Minneapolis, Minn. In 1914 she told the president of her school when asked, of her ambition. "Something impossible. I want to be a priest of the Episcopal Church."

—Slater Anne Catherine Bizallon, 48, executive director and co-founder of the Southern Mutual Help Association in Abbeville, La. Southern Mutual Help aims to help people improve their standard of living. Fifty houses have been improved.

Some were completely disassembled and rebuilt, some repainted and repaired.

"People find that I'm an oddity — a French Dominican nun, a woman, and an administrator — in the rural South."

—FRANCIE ROSE, 29, construction collective member, Corrales, N. M. The collective includes Francie, an ex-school teacher; Fan Hogan, former IBM administrator; Joyce Drake, mother of two; and Sherry Lord, former commercial artist. The collective paints houses, inside and out, and does light construction and miscellaneous repairs.

When they got the painting contract for 17 office rooms at the University of New Mexico so many people came to gape that the women put up a sign. MS Magazine reports the sign said: "Admission 25 cents children under 12 and inspectors, free. See them walk! Hear them talk! Amazing acrobatics! They climb ladders, crawl on the floor, perform feats with a brush. They behave just like human beings."

Mrs. Phyllis Pressel of Edmonds, Wash., is announcing the engagement of her daughter Victoria Lynn to James W. Mattson, son of the Earle Mattsons of 336 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights. Their wedding is set for Aug. 11. The couple are students at the University of Illinois in Champaign where James will graduate in June. He is a member of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity and attended Prospect High School before going to college.

A March 17 wedding is planned by an Arlington Heights pair, Donna Marie Cory and Paul J. Meyers. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Cory and her fiance is the son of Kenneth W. Meyers. Donna is a '72 graduate of Hersey High School and Paul is a '68 graduate of St. Viator High. He attended Harper College and manages the Jiffy Auto Service System in Des Plaines. Donna is also employed there.

An Arlington Heights couple, Karen Sue Pfaff and Michael R. Keen, are engaged and will be married next year. Their betrothal and wedding plans are announced by Karen's parents, the Irving G. Pfaffs. Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronell L. Keen. The young couple graduated from Forest View High School and are juniors at Illinois State University. Karen is majoring in education and Michael in law.

The engagement of Joyann Andrup to Rodney Bakken, son of the Marvin Bakken of Mt. Horub, Wis., is announced by Joyann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Andrup, 528 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights. An Aug. 11 wedding is planned. Joyann and Rodney both graduated from Wisconsin State University in Eau Claire. She is a special education teacher in Wisconsin Rapids and he teaches math in Madison.

A late spring wedding in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Stell's home in River Forest is planned by their daughter Blythe and Robert Youngquist, son of the Henry W. Youngquists, 329 S. We-GO Trail, Mount Prospect. Robert is in his third year of dental school at the University of Iowa, where Blythe will earn an education degree in May. He graduated from Prospect High School in 1967 and attended the University of Illinois before enrolling at Iowa. While at Illinois Robert was affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Koehler-Ganatos rites Jan. 6

An area couple were married Jan. 6 in the Community Church of Rolling Meadows and are now living at Barrington Square, Hoffman Estates. The bride is the former Kris Koehler, daughter of the Fred Koehlers of 2908 Lark Court, Rolling Meadows. The groom is Daniel Ganatos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ganatos of Palatine. A 2:30 p.m. ceremony united the pair, after which they greeted 200 guests at a party at the Palatine Firehall. KRIS CHOSE her best friend, Linda Sepke of Harwood Heights, as maid of honor, and had four bridesmaids also coming down the aisle. They included Cheryl Ganatos, the groom's sister; Mrs. Debby Koehler, the bride's sister-in-law; Karyn Koehler, her cousin from Northbrook; and Marsha Pallas of Arlington Heights. Dan had his best friend, Don Pastor of Palatine, as best man. The wedding guests were seated by the bride's brother Glenn; the groom's brother Tim; Steve Moffet, Dan's brother-in-law of Mount Prospect; and Dominick Gallo, Chicago. During the double ring service Kris' brother, Douglas Koehler, approached the altar to give a special wedding prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ganatos

Her attendants were gowned alike in cranberry colored velvet and carried nosegays of mums and roses in a combination of pink, red and white. KRIS AND DAN divided their week's honeymoon between Missouri and Wisconsin before returning to live and work in the area. She is employed at Osco Drugs in Arlington Heights and he is with the City of Rolling Meadows. Kris attended Forest View High School and Dan, Fremd High.

AS SHE ENTERED the sanctuary, the bride wore an ivory peau de sole gown overlaid with chiffon. A seed pearl motif edged the high neck and Empire waist, also trimming the cuffs of the long puffed sleeves. A wide bow of ivory peau de sole covered with seed pearls held the bride's short bouffant veil, and she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis, button mums and trailing ivy.

College romance leads to marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Rooker

While Sharon Kathleen McCarthy of Wheeling was attending the University of Oklahoma she met the man she was to marry this past Jan. 6. He is Mitchell Lawrence Rooker of Lawton, Okla., son of Mrs. Alice Rooker of Lawton and Clarence Rooker of Freeport, Tex. Sharon's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James E. McCarthy of 315 Maureen Drive, Wheeling. Sharon graduated from Wheeling High School in 1971 before enrolling at the university. Mitchell graduated from Oklahoma in December and is now working in Pittsburgh for Westinghouse Bettis Lab.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings in a 3:30 p.m. ceremony in St. Hilary's Episcopal Church, Prospect Heights. Sharon made her own bridal gown of white satin overlaid with lace. It had long chiffon sleeves fashioned into three puffs and ending with a lace band. With the dress she wore a mantilla veil edged with lace and completed her attire with a bouquet of white roses surrounding a single white orchid. Janet Leslie Boyd of Los Angeles, the bride's college roommate, was her maid of honor and Debbie Nan Epstein of New Orleans was bridesmaid. Janet wore a two-toned gown with a wine colored velvet bodice and pink chiffon skirt and Debbie's was in a lighter shade of wine velvet with a pink skirt. Each of the girls carried pale pink carnations in a cascade arrangement. MITCHEL CHOSE Timothy Charles Kasse of Tucson, Ariz., as best man, with Dean and Johnny Daubenspeck as ushers. Dean is from Houston, Tex., and Johnny from Norman, Okla. A dinner reception at the Maitre 'D Restaurant in Elk Grove followed the afternoon nuptials. ## Next On The Agenda

ELK GROVE GARDENERS

Members of the Garden Club of Elk Grove are holding a workshop tonight at 8 at the local library.

Plans are made for decorative wall hangings from curtain rings, for which participants are asked to bring glue and straw flowers or the like to fill the rings.

Mrs. M. D. Greenberg, 437-3544, has further information on the club. It meets the last Monday of each month.

MEADOWS JAYCEE-ETTES

"Safety Pays" is the motto for tonight's meeting of Rolling Meadows Jaycee-ettes. They will hear Bill Fitzpatrick, commercial manager of the Oak Park business office of Illinois Bell Telephone Co., speak on the topic.

Mrs. Michael Knefley, 2500 Grouse Lane, is hostess at the 8 p.m. meeting.

All wives of local Jaycees are welcome. Mrs. Richard Anderson, 392-7714, can be called for details.

ST. MARCELLINE CCW

St. Marcelline Council of Catholic Women will present a program entitled "Religious Education and the Child"

Nurse's club offers award

Applications are still available for $300 nursing scholarship offered by the Hoffman-Schaumburg Nurses Club this year.

The award is open to residents of Schaumburg Township who are either registered nurses planning to continue their education or individuals who want to enter a school of nursing.

The scholarship will be awarded in May.

Further information and applications may be obtained from Mrs. William Westlake, 894-3016.

New in Elk Grove? Come for coffee

Women who are new residents of Elk Grove Village are invited to coffee Wednesday morning to learn all about activities of Elk Grove Newcomers Club. The coffee is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the United Presbyterian Church, 600 E. Elk Grove Blvd.

Babysitters will be on hand to watch the children while their mothers get acquainted.

The club is open to all women in the area. Further information is available from Mrs. Ronald Yarosheski, 439-4133.

Wednesday at 10 a.m. at 820 Spring-

Insgruth Road, Schaumburg.

Sr. Rosemarie Burian, coordinator of St. Marcelline's religious education program, will be guest speaker. Sr. Rosemarie taught at grade school level for eight years and recently completed a Montessori method teaching course.

Prior to the program, the Rev. Fr. Martin Hebdia will celebrate a Mass at 9 a.m. with a special liturgy prepared by the council women. Coffee follows at 9:30.

All area women are welcome regardless of religious affiliations. Sitting is provided; admission free; program concludes at 11:30.

Sugar 'N Spice craft classes in February

If you hear your friends discussing "eggery," it's not a recipe from their favorite newspaper. It's one of the many unusual art craft classes to be offered by the Sugar 'N Spice Shop in Des Plaines starting in February.

Dorle Anderson, owner of and craft teacher in the shop, explains, "Our shop is unique and so are our classes. The Sugar 'N Spice Shop is a collection of handmade arts and crafts made and sold by local artisans in the Chicago suburban area. Our craft classes go along with the current interest in home decoration with a personal touch."

The popular papier tole, a dimensional picture framed under glass, will be taught as well as basic techniques in decoupage and, the quick, easy method of the new craze, Fun Decoupage. For those interested in new concepts, repousse is also being offered. Repousse combines the dimensional cuttings and decoupage techniques to achieve a distinctive effect from almost any print.

The Sugar 'N Spice Shop assures each student of special attention by keeping the classes limited to a maximum of six persons. The sessions meet for two-hour periods for three consecutive weeks. Cost is kept strictly to registration and materials. Each student is guaranteed a finished craft product by the end of the craft session.

Says Mrs. Anderson, "We want to give each student the special kind of instruction she deserves. We're always looking for new art projects to keep our students in the latest crafts. In April, we hope to start 'Ecology and Memorabilia Boxes,' the latest in the nostalgia mode, bringing a little bit of the past into the present."

Registration of $10 per craft, may be made by calling the Sugar 'N Spice Shop, 827-4241.

by HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Advertising is a highly competitive field. Most of the top jobs are held by men, many of whom eventually fall by the wayside. How then can a woman successfully acquire and handle a top job in this field?

Helene Mahoney, president of E. H. Mahoney Associates, an ad agency which she started about two years ago, believes that with experience and determination not to back away from a fight it can be done. Hers is already an award-winning company and she believes her years of experience in the field and "tenacity about doing my homework," as she puts it, are responsible for its success and growth.

After the shock of losing her job as vice president and account executive for a famous agency she decided to try her luck on her own.

"But I knew," she said, "that despite the well publicized Mary Wells (Wells Rick Green Inc.), not many women survived in this business except as heads of small fashion-oriented agencies. I wanted nothing to do with fashion."

"EVERY MAN I spoke to in regard to my ambition would say, 'Look, Helene, I'm not a male chauvinist, BUT ...!'"

On her side of the scale were the American Broadcasting Co., a client of her former firm, who was so pleased with her work that they wanted to stay with her; her husband, Bob, a former ad man and other clients and business acquaintances who rallied round.

Creative assignments and new product development are our major strengths," Mrs. Mahoney said. "Tough, experienced thinking on marketing problems are what our clients need and get."

Helene who wrote an article for Advertising Age, entitled "What's a Nice Girl Like Me Doing in a Business Like This?" has been dubbed the Germaine Greer of advertising because she believes in frankness in advertising concerning women's bodies.

"FIRST IT WAS Pretty Feet," she said. "The product had been on the market for 10 years but hadn't got off the ground. I suggested that they start all over as though it was a new product and put some sex into the ads and packaging. We did. And it worked."

Next stepping stone was the feminine hygiene area. It was a rough subject to get into the media.

"Everyone seemed so secretive about it. Druggists hid the products behind the counter. Yet in supermarkets girls threw Feminique and other hygiene aids into their shopping carts with never a thought about it. So I realized that here was a whole generation that a direct approach would appeal to."

She suggested a cosmetic look in packaging and the idea was accepted by the manufacturer, a Dutch company.

"I had to present the whole concept to the staid Hollanders with nary a blush, although some of the men turned red in

Either-Or?

MALVERN, Pa. (UPI) — Hospitalization for the alcoholic can be the preparation for another drinking period or the basis for permanent sobriety, reports Dr. C. Nelson Davis, psychiatrist in chief at the Malvern Institute for Psychiatric and Alcohol Studies.

If the patient elects a proper course of follow-through, whether it be group therapy, individual counseling, Alcoholics Anonymous, a church or a combination of many factors, the disease may be arrested.

Because she does her homework

so damned mad that I immediately wrote to Mrs. Martin Luther King, Moshe Dayan, Dr. Christian Barnard, Dr. Edward Teller and others." Result?

• Mrs. King wanted to do it but couldn't because she was working with a book for another publisher.

• Dr. Barnard gave her the essay over the phone from South Africa.

• Moshe Dayan sent his dutifully by mail.

• Dr. Teller said, "If Moshe does it, I will." And he did.

It was a good campaign and the most vivid essay was Moshe Dayan's, Helene believes, for it ran with the headline, "Before Hitler Could Kill Six Million Jews He Had to Burn Six Million Books."

"I think my tenacity is due to the fact that I am a frustrated reporter," Helen said. "Brenda Starr bit me when I was a kid."

"IN MY work with ABC," she said,

"I'm not involved with the local level but with all five stations on a corporate level. I talk to the trade not to the viewer." Another of her present clients is Edu Tran, a company that conducts lecture classes for commuters on the Long Island and Penn Central railroads.

With $2½ million in billings, nine employees (five women and four men) and a pretty 36-year-old gal as its head this agency is a success and is growing steadily.

"I stick mostly with hard news stuff that doesn't look a bit feminine. And I haven't ever been involved in an unsuccessful campaign," she admitted modestly.

She's a woman. She's at the top in a tough man's business. Why?

"Because I do my homework," she repeated with a grin.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have a number of newspaper clippings I want to keep — not only for myself but for the children to have when they grow up. Pasting them in scrapbooks isn't the answer, as I've learned. Glue dries up, the clippings yellow. Is there any way they can be preserved properly? —Betty A.

Some time back I responded to a similar question by saying such clippings could be preserved only by being plastic-covered and kept out of the light. Now, I find there is a chemical process tied in with lamination that provides almost permanent protection. The technical term is de-acidification and archival lamination. Anyway, I am told several companies now do this work and that, happily, the cost is really modest.

Dear Dorothy: I'm changing the decor of our living room and I'd like to change the color of my white fiberglass curtains. I was told you had the instructions for this. —Mabel Karl.

Sorry, Mabel, somebody told you wrong. The manufacturers of fiberglass say it can't be done. So do the makers of popular dyes. Some people argue otherwise, but I agree with the manufacturers.

Dear Dorothy: Thought eggplant slices had to be soaked in salted cold water to get out the green (or bitter) taste. But I saw a Greek cook on TV do a lovely eggplant dish — and she said eggplant did not have to be soaked; that all it did was take away some of the flavor. Have you heard this? —Dolly W.

Checked two of my most used cookbooks: One soaks eggplant, the other doesn't. I don't happen to. My only criterion for eggplant is that it be firm, beautifully colored and no soft spots. So far, the taste has always been great.

Churchwomen sell international foods at fair

An International Food Fair will feature a "Tour of the World Through Taste" Friday at St. Michael's Church, Dundee and Hillside, Barrington.

The churchwomen are preparing favorite dishes which will be offered for sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be dishes from Mexico, Scandinavia, France, Germany, Italy and the Far East as well as from America.

Spices, desserts, main dishes and treats for the freezer will be sold, and a French Cafe will serve lunch for hungry shoppers.

Mrs. Jon Forbes of Barrington is chairman; Mrs. John Westcott, Barrington, heads the French Cafe.

Women from this area who are heading the ethnic food preparations include Mrs. Griscom Bettio III of Palatine, in charge of the German foods, and Mrs. William Post III, Hoffman Estates, in charge of foods from the Orient and Far East.

Sisterhood hosts intrafaith lunch

The Sisterhood of Congregation B'Nai Jehoshua Bet Elohim of Glenview is hosting two other sisterhoods an annual intrafaith meeting.

Sisterhoods of Temple Judea of Skokie and Temple Beth Israel of Chicago are invited to join the Glenview women for luncheon Wednesday, Feb. 7, at 12:30 p.m. in the youth lounge, 901 Milwaukee Ave. Jan Schakowski, co-director of Consumers United, will speak on "The Housewife vs. the Supermarket."

Reservations for the luncheon, at $1.50 each, can be made with Marilyn Hotchner of Mount Prospect, 392-5954.

Shirley Botton of Des Plaines is president of the Glenview sisterhood.

Pioneer women ask guests to tea, talk

Allyah Chapter of Pioneer Women will host a membership tea Wednesday, Feb. 7, at 8 p.m. in Mrs. William Rubin's home, 1059 Bishop Court, Palatine.

Newton Hacker of the American Zionist Federation will be guest speaker, his topic "Divorce: Israeli Style."

A social hour follows the program. Guests are welcome and may call 359-6530 for further details.

Coffee, conversation for St. Viator moms

Mothers of sophomores, juniors and seniors at St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, will be guests of the Mothers Club board Wednesday morning.

They will gather at 9:30 in the lobby opposite the theater for coffee and then get a guided tour of the building during class time.

The morning will end with mass in the chapel.

You And Your Bra

Check the underbust band of any bra you're trying on. It should fit snugly, not tightly. If it rides up, it is too tight. If you can run your finger easily under the band, then the fit is correct. Check the back, too. If it rides up the fit around your body is too tight.

When trying on a bra in a store, you can tell if the cup is too small. That is the case if the breasts are forced toward the sides or center.

If the cup of a bra is not filled out, you may need a smaller cup or a foam-lined cup.

Heroin Addicts Have Other Woes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heroin addicts may suffer from alcoholic liver disease as well as hepatitis, Dr. Barry Stimmler and associates at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York, report.

Their study of addicts in a methadone maintenance program in New York shows that alcohol may be taking a place of its own in the roster of addiction-related diseases. Some addicts were found to drink around 25 ounces of wine a day in an attempt to boost the effects of poor quality street heroin.

College students vulnerable

Combating campus thefts

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe and Jane College, trusting souls, think everyone on campus is straight as a straight pin.

As a result, Joe and Jane lose valuables to thieves who find the academic scene fertile for hockable items — typewriters, cameras, watches, musical instruments, sports equipment, jewelry.

Says a police chief in one college town:

"College students, especially those who have matriculated at large universities and who are living away from home for the first time in an atmosphere of reduced restraints are extremely vulnerable to the criminal element stalking this type of environment in search of easy prey."

Chief Thomas J. Sardino of Syracuse, N.Y., does his saying in a college "Security and Safety" guide.

"Do not believe 'It can't happen to me,'" Sardino tells readers of the guide at Syracuse University. His advice applies to college students everywhere. The problem of thefts on campus is nationwide.

WHAT STUDENTS can do to reduce their chances of becoming a crime statistic is outlined by R. D. Flaherty, director of Safety and Security at Syracuse. Crime Control Teams under his direction share with the police department a concern for the "welfare and life safety of students."

The safety precautions of use to students anywhere:

—Self Protection. When alone in an office or room after hours or in the evening keep doors locked. If you leave office or room for only a few minutes, close and lock the door. This way, you will be sure no one is inside waiting for you when you return. Never prop open a door for someone who will be joining you later. A propped open door destroys the best security plans and is an open invitation to undesirables.

—At night, walk where there is plenty of light and traffic.

Avoid the dark vacant areas on campus. Never walk alone. Do not hitchhike. It is illegal and dangerous.

—PROTECTING PERSONAL property. Record serial numbers, model and brand name and description of valuable items. Keep a duplicate copy in a separate location. Never leave a wallet or purse lying on top of a desk or dresser.

Keep a record of credit card numbers. Require identification and authorization from service men wanting to do work in your room or office or wanting to remove items for servicing. Never lend equipment or keys to strangers. Keep your car locked and take the keys. Don't leave packages and personal items in full view inside.

How else students can help? By being alert and observant. "Make notes of persons committing suspicious acts, and notify your supervisor or proper authority," the guide suggests.

"Report all locks, windows and doors in need of repair, and lights which are out. Be security-conscious at all times."

At Syracuse, as at many college campuses, the anti-theft program includes engraving your social security number on items likely to attract thieves.

KNOWING THE school's modus operandi for reporting a fire and also governing one's conduct in the event of a fire is something else every Joe and Jane College ought to tuck inside the cranium.

This is part of the "personal safety" plan in the Syracuse guide and includes fire reporting procedure, fire drills, suggestions for safety in case of fire.

The Syracuse guide also contains something that would have been considered a curiosity in safety guides of a generation ago. That is — a few words about bail procedure.

"Any SU student who is in need of borrowing bail monies in the Syracuse area should contact the Student Association, which has a limited bail fund available."

Bad check passers bilking suburban banks, businesses

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1486 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,550 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person whose check was taken from the mail.

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $500 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization that worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

1st grade classroom buzzes

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The first grade classroom is buzzing with children talking and moving around the room. One of them, Donna, sits quietly at the long table in the middle of the classroom, reading aloud to her teacher.

Donna does well and gets a compliment from her teacher. At the end of the lesson she also gets a bright red tab certifying that, "I know my bonus words." She grins, shows it to her classmates, then closes her book and moves to another table where she starts listening to a tape-recorded lesson.

There are 23 children in the busy classroom, each one, like Donna, moving independently from one activity to another. Two children sit behind a television cabinet with the picture tubes removed, acting out a story with puppets, another child attempts to learn his alphabet by using a typewriter, one boy peers into the eyepiece on a microscope, and a small group of children sit at a table completing standardized worksheets.

THIS IS AN open classroom taught by Mrs. Elyn Wieselmann, first grade teacher at South School in Des Plaines. The open classroom concept is a new one among educators and Mrs. Wieselmann's classroom is one of the first of this kind in Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62.

In an open classroom, the teacher analyzes each child's strengths and weaknesses at the beginning of the year. She then assigns lessons at the right learning level that are designed specifically to help him. The student spends his classroom time working individually on activities designed just for him.

In an open classroom, individual desks are replaced by tables and activity centers. Students store their materials and papers in cartons on a shelf in the room.

The teaching philosophy is also open, according to Mrs. Wieselmann. The child often has an opportunity to decide what he wants to learn. He can choose how many words he wants to learn this week and how many pages he wants to do in his work book, she says. He learns to make his own decisions and that's the beginning of making him responsible for his own learning.

MRS. WIESELMAN says she does not have a "true" open classroom, often defined by educators as a "free school," where children are allowed to do anything that pleases them. Too often, she says, the "free school" results in permissiveness and little learning. Mrs.

Wieselmann describes her particular approach to open education as "choice within structure."

One wall of her classroom is covered with a numbered list of activities each marked with a colored paper tag cut in a particular shape. The round orange tags stand for activities that develop a child's visual abilities, the pink triangle tags for phonics activities and the blue square tags for independent study lessons.

Each child has a folder marked with a page of symbols that correspond to the activities on the list. The child progresses from symbol to symbol until he completes the page. A numbered, red square means the child must work on a particular lesson on the list. With an orange triangle, the child may choose any orange triangle activity on the list. If the symbol is an empty rectangle, he must evaluate his own weaknesses and pick an activity to improve them. A diamond symbol means the child can choose the activity he likes best.

The children pick out the materials and supplies for their activities, take books from the shelves, pull worksheets from a filing cabinet, adjust the microscope and operate the tape machines. The classroom teacher and two mothers working as teacher aides assist the children.

ALTHOUGH STUDENTS have a choice in picking their activities, they aren't undisciplined. This program isn't one that allows the child to run screaming down the hall all day, says Mrs. Wieselmann. "I couldn't justify that to the parents, to (Continued on page 3)

Gas station leaks cause updating of city ordinance

A rash of Des Plaines gas station leaks last year has led to updating of the city flammable and combustible liquids code.

The city council will be asked Feb. 5 to pass the proposed 11-page ordinance, made public last week by city officials.

"This is a tougher code than either the state or national codes," said Lt. Richard Arthur, head of the city's fire prevention bureau.

"We've based this on what we found this summer," he said.

At least nine stations were investigated for gas leaks last year with floating gasoline discovered at six sites. Citizens complaints led to involvement of the Citizens for a Better Environment, a request for an investigation by the Illinois attorney general's office and the start of a study by the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality.

Arthur prepared the proposed ordinance which was mailed to aldermen Thursday.

MAJOR CHANGES include a requirement that service stations:

- Install 12-inch sump holes near underground storage tanks. The pipes will allow easy inspection of tanks by fire staff. Last year, several stations were required to dig up tanks for inspection.

- "Install waste oil tanks. Arthur said that "many stations are lax" and throw out waste oil as garbage.

- Receive inspections by two-man city teams twice a year.

- Place at least 18 inches of sand beneath tanks to absorb any escaped gasoline. Stations have claimed that a clay base eliminates the need for sand.

- Notify the city of all tank work and installation.

- Install leak detector valves to reduce product flow if pipes crack or break.

- Install an easily accessible electrical disconnection switch.

ARTHUR SAID that the ordinance, which also adopts sections of the National Fire Protection Association code, requires testing by the Kenmore, not air, system. Air testing last year did not uncover local tank leaks although gasoline was found when the tanks were pulled from the ground.

"This code picks up all the loose ends," Arthur said. "We found definite things that were needed after last summer."

Service stations will be allowed 18 months to conform to the code, he said. "They won't automatically be required to pull out their tanks."

Men literally spent one and a third men a day on this problem last year. There was a tremendous amount of leakage. We're trying to find out why. But, we also have other things to do," he said.

The ordinance calls for "investigation" by the fire protection bureau "upon receipt of evidence of combustible or flammable liquids or vapors in basements, sewers, manholes or any other foreign location."

Jewelry robbery: $15,000 in rings

Two men held up the Regency Jewelry Store, 8714 Golf Road, Des Plaines Friday, and fled with 50 to 60 diamond rings valued at $15,000, according to Cook County Sheriff's police.

One of the bandits walked into the store about 11 a.m., shattered the glass in a ring case, a slatted hammer.

His accomplice then came in and forced the woman sales clerk, at gunpoint to lie face down on the floor.

One of the men began taking rings from the case while the second checked other jewelry cases in the store.

The two then left and fled westbound on Golf Road, to a car. No description of the automobile was given.

Police added when they arrived on the scene, they found the store door being held open with a baseball bat and the ring case in the store overturned.

Police are investigating leads and questioning witnesses.

The Nation

President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $368 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.

The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 559 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

Juan V. Corona goes back to court today with hopes for a new trial planned to charges that a sheriff's matron influenced a 63-year-old woman juror's vote. Naomi Underwood, a widow, and Georgia Wallace, a part-time county attendant are key figures in the defense effort to overturn Corona's conviction for killing 25 migrant workers.

The World

At least six tornadoes ripped through central Florida, tearing the roof off an apartment, damaging homes, throwing trees around like toothpicks, and injuring at least 18 persons. The worst damage was in Orlando where 14 were hurt and 300 left homeless when a tornado tore the roof off their apartment building.

British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops in Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.

Special medical evacuation planes are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.

China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as convincing proof that "sanity and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

The War

The Vietnam war ended officially with the sound of church bells and pagoda gongs in Saigon, but the momentum of fighting continued for hours past the 8 a.m. cease-fire deadline. The Communists captured 66 hamlets after the truce went into effect.

THE OPEN CLASSROOM has no desks. Children work independently on learning activities designed from their individual needs. At left, a child chooses an activity from a list on the classroom wall. Teacher Elyn Wisselman holds a reading conference at the work center with first grader Andrea Hubson while other children in the classroom work quietly at another table.

myself or to the child," she says. Allowing students to make some choices encourages creativity, Mrs. Wisselman feels. If a child is told only to work with the dominoes on the math table, he has to think of ways to use them. Some build things with them, others make up into counting games. "They look for creative ways of learning," she says.

Mrs. Wisselman gives her own screening tests at the beginning of the school year. Basically, she tries to determine which children know the alphabet, who can read, which ones know their numbers and colors and so on. She finds out what the child already knows and starts from there. Not everyone begins the year on the same level. "Why should Wendy do what Susan is doing if Wendy doesn't need to?" she asks.

Two things all the children work on are shoebox words and creative writing. Each child has a shoebox full of cardboard strips, each with a word written on it. He can choose any word that he wants to learn but he must memorize it and make a sentence out of that word and other words from the box. A favorite word this year is "vampire," according to Mrs. Wisselman. Creative writing is a daily exercise in which each child writes a story on any topic he chooses.

A WEEKLY READING conference is also held with each child. The teacher listens to the student read, corrects his mistakes and assigns reading activities to build skills and vocabulary.

Primary students aren't given letter grades on report cards, but are graded according to a checklist of basic first grade skills. The children also have a chance to grade themselves by drawing a face on the top of their assignment papers. A frowning face means the child thinks he can do better but needs more help.

The program, now in its second year, has been successful in improving the skills of the children, she said. A survey of second grade teachers at South School who have Mrs. Wisselman's former first graders, has proved favorable, she says. The children had no trouble making the transition from the open classroom to the traditional classroom, there were few learning problems, and in most cases that children were more independent and able to make decisions.

The Local Scene

Burglars get $200 from service station

Burglars stole $200 cash last Thursday from the Arco service station at 1581 Elmhurst Road, according to Des Plaines police. The burglar apparently forced open a garage door to gain entry to the station, police added.

Oil drums stolen from tool company

Twenty-six empty oil drums were taken last week from the Acme Tool and Specialties Co., 55 E. Bradrock, Des Plaines. The 55-gallon drums had been left outside the building, according to police.

Tracy Brown to mark bat mitzvah Friday

Tracy Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Turchik, 9243 Maple, Des Plaines, will celebrate her bat mitzvah at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, at 8:30 p.m. Friday during Family Sabbath Eve Services. An earlier sunset service in the synagogue chapel will also be recited at 4:45 p.m.

Randy Moss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moss, 8209 Bumblebee, Des Plaines, will observe his bar mitzvah Saturday at 9:30 a.m. Rabbi Jay Karzen and Cantor Harry Solowinich will officiate. The Sabbath concludes with Mincha-Maariv at 4:45 p.m. that afternoon.

The third synagogue-sponsored State of Israel Bond Banquet will be Saturday, Feb. 7, 7:30 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Sharwin Pomerantz will be honorees at this tribute dinner. Reservations can be made at the synagogue office.

Food store burglar scared off by employee

A burglar who broke into the Open Pantry food store, 1950 Touhy Ave., Des Plaines, was scared off early Friday when a store employee apparently walked in on him.

The employee, Carl Schultz, noticed the front door of the store had been forced open and heard the rear door open and close, as he entered the store, police said.

Schultz told police that before he walked into the store, he had seen a man sitting in a dark Cadillac in the store parking lot. The car was later seen driving eastbound on Touhy, police said.

An undetermined amount of change had been taken from the store's change box, according to police.

Class in home craft offered by park dist.

The Des Plaines Park District will offer a home craft class starting next month. Students can learn how to make such items as centerpieces, wall hangings and Easter decorations. Course fee is $8 which includes all basic materials.

Evening classes will be held at Rand Park, 2025 Miner St. on Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 beginning Feb. 7. Afternoon classes will meet at Rand Park on Thursdays from 1 to 3 p.m. starting Feb. 8. Babysitting is available with this class at a fee of 50 cents a child for the two hours. Residents can register at the park district office, 748 Pearson St. before Wednesday.

'Should school study continue?'

A poll will be taken Thursday among members of a citizens' committee in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 as to whether it should proceed with its feasibility study of the unit district plan.

The group, known as the Citizens Reorganization Study Committee, will conduct the poll among its members at its meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, committee chairman, said, "If they (committee members) vote no, we'll pack up our tools and go home."

Emil Bahnmaler, a member of the group's steering committee, said the vote "will give a tenor of the committee's feeling. If the decision is not to go ahead with the study, we'll simply do our report and quit."

HOWEVER, IF the group decides to proceed with the study, according to Bahnmaler, "then we would wish to set some tentative boundaries" for the unit district proposal. "The idea is to finalize our figures (enrollment, financial, etc.) based on those boundaries," he said.

Bahnmaler said the group is considering primarily four different boundary possibilities: an Elk Grove Village unit district, splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway; a unit district using the present Dist. 59 boundaries; a unit with the attendance boundaries of Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect high schools; and a unit district that would include all of High School Dist. 214.

The group is divided into several subcommittees that are studying, among other things, the legal, financial and educational aspects of a unit vs. a dual school district.

Currently the area operates under a dual district system with Dist. 59 handling grades K-8 and Dist. 214 serving as a separate high school district. Under a unit system, one school district would take care of grades K-12.

According to Bahnmaler, if the committee decides to proceed with its nearly completed study, committee members will gather data from advocates of the dual district system. Probably he said, these would be area school administrators.

THE GROUP decided at its meeting Thursday to take the poll later this week. Also at the Thursday meeting, Coney said, the work of each subcommittee was discussed. Coney said subcommittees have done enough background work to be able to make a recommendation for a unit district. The only thing the subcommittees need is the boundaries of the proposed unit district before they start work on their final report.

Bahnmaler said the general committee will also be asked this week for a recommendation on the possibility of waiting until several pending court cases regarding unit districting are resolved.

Coney said if the committee agrees to continue study on a possible unit district and proposes boundaries for the district, a final report should be submitted to the school board by March 1. The deadline was established by the school board for the reports from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service.

According to Coney, however, there will be no serious problems if the recommendation is submitted after March 1.

Mayor Behrel files for his fifth term

Mayor Herbert Behrel became an official candidate for reelection last week.

Behrel, and his campaign co-chairman Robert Hinde (4th), filed 19 candidacy petitions with 475 signatures.

Behrel will seek his fifth term as mayor. He was elected an alderman in 1948.

David Wolf, a fire department captain, of 674 Laurel, has announced he will run against the mayor. Wolf began circulating petitions last week. Filing deadline is Feb. 12.

The mayor's petitions, containing his 950 Beau Dr. apartment address, included signatures of six city council members — Ald. Kenneth Kehe (2nd), Ald. Arthur Erbach (5th), Ald. Ewald Swanson (8th), Ald. Robert Michaels (8th), Ald. Daniel Kisslinger (4th) and Ald. Lois Czubakowski (5th).

Other officials who either signed or circulated Behrel's petitions include City Treasurer Irving Ratelko, who is seeking reelection; City Comptroller Duane Blietz; Environmental Controls officer Philip Lindahl; former Ald. Corvin Wagner, who is seeking election in the 6th Ward, and Maine Township Atty. Milton Tuttle.

PTA notes

River Ridge Council of PTAs will hold an open meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 7, at Plainfield School, 1850 Plainfield, Des Plaines.

The program, commemorating PTA Founders Day, will feature guest speaker, Mrs. George A. Johnson of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois PTA.

Mrs. Johnson has served the Illinois PTA as parent education chairman for six years, vice president of the department of home service for one year, and as program chairman of the state convention. She is a former president of Portage Park PTA, and has been president of the Northwest Council and the Chicago Region Board. She is a certified lay leader of the parent education lay leadership training course and has served as a member of the steering committee for the basic concepts for parents program.

Included in the business portion of the meeting will be the report of the nominating committee.

ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

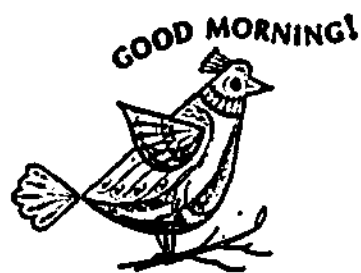

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

Bad check passers bilking suburban banks, businesses

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1496 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Maricham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,550 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person

Master plan hearing tonight; NIPC to report

A public hearing on the proposed village master plan will be conducted tonight by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in the village hall.

Village Plan Consultant Robert Grossman is scheduled to discuss the suggested land-use guide that has evolved from a series of six alternative sketches. The plan was approved by the plan commission several weeks ago.

A slide presentation showing examples of the types of housing styles proposed in the plan will be used to explain the map. Slides of several planned unit developments in the area will be shown.

Village Mgr. Dan Larson said the Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission has reviewed the proposed master plan. Tom Fitzgerald, NIPC planner, is scheduled tonight to report the agency's opinion of the plan.

Also set to comment on the map is Jerry Esten, director of the Lake County Planning Commission. No citizens have requested time for any type of formal presentation, Larson said.

The plan being considered tonight outlines the future land uses for all available land in the village, plus the surrounding areas likely to be annexed by 1990.

THE MAIN features of the plan call for a large commercial center at the intersection of Buffalo Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 83, an industrial area of about 700 acres along the Soo Line R.R., and for most multi-family developments to be built along the major traffic arteries of the village.

The plan commission has recommended that the plan include definite density requirements for each housing type. The commission suggested the village board set the density for single-family homes at 3.2 units per acre and provide for two types of PUD's — one to have a density of four through eight (average six) and the other to have a density of eight through 12 (average 10).

Two projects pending in the village are in conflict with the proposed plan. The plan commission did not recommend that the village board alter the plan or require the developers in question to change their plans, but left it up to the board to resolve the conflict.

Part of a 40-acre multi-family development proposed by Arthur Swanson & Associates and Donald Scholz Co. at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads lies in an area designated as public open space on the master plan.

Also planned for an area designated mainly as public open space are two developments proposed by Levitt & Sons, Inc. The two projects, north of Mundelein Road and east of Arlington Heights Road, are scheduled to include some single-family homes and some multi-family units.

School board member won't seek third term

Wheeling resident Ronald Cole has announced that he will not seek a third term on the Dist. 21 school board. He has been a member of the board for six years.

Meanwhile, board member Edwin Smith, who also has been on the board for six years, said he will seek a third term and will seek support from the Dist. 21 General Caucus.

A third board member, Rev. L. James Wylie, said he still is undecided as to his candidacy.

COLE IS A former president of the school board and has been a Wheeling resident for 17 years. Recently he was selected to serve on the Wheeling Pal-Waukee Airport steering committee to form better relations between the village and the airport.

Cole said he was not seeking a third term because of business priorities. He said he had given the decision a great deal of thought and is sorry to leave the board.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill, speaking on behalf of the administration, said he was sorry to see Cole leave the board. "The Dist. 21 board is like a family, and when someone leaves after six years you have to be a little sad."

"I can't argue with the fact that being on this board is very time consuming. Ron has given us that time and effort and we appreciate his work for Dist. 21," said Gill.

Cole will remain on the school board until the April election.

SMITH WILL TRY to stretch his years on the board to nine with the upcoming election. In the past two years he has acted as the board's liaison in contract negotiations with the Wheeling Faculty Council.

A resident of Buffalo Grove, Smith is a teacher and coach at Maine South High School in Des Plaines. He has lived in Dist. 21 for 15 years and is a former Wheeling village trustee.

Smith will seek the General Caucus support at its meeting Feb. 14. The caucus will begin screening candidates, and on that night will vote to support as many as four candidates who they feel are suitable for election.

The caucus meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Dist. 21 Administrative Center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Caucus meetings are open to the public, but only delegates can vote.

Elk Grove needs 'more voice'

Village clerk tells plans for April presidency race

RICHARD MCGRENERA

Elk Grove Village should have a greater voice in decisions of other governmental bodies that ultimately affect the village, Village Clerk Richard McGrenera said Friday in announcing his candidacy for president in the April elections.

McGrenera, of 670 Versailles Circle proposed a president's commission be formed of representatives from the residential community, the village Association of Industry and Commerce, Alexian Brothers Medical Center, the village staff and other boards and commissions. He said the special commission would meet monthly or semi-monthly to discuss common problems, and together they would have the combined influence of each separate group.

"This body would have enough 'muscle' to get a direct line to the county, state and federal agencies to get things done that would be impossible to accomplish on an individual basis," he said.

McGRENERA SAID the commission would work to avoid incidents like the Higgins Road construction fiasco in which delays in widening the roadway placed hardships on motorists and local businessmen.

"It is most important that elected officials never forget who are the real owners of the government: namely the residents, not the elected officials of other municipalities, not a political party and not the residents in unincorporated areas abutting our village," he said.

McGrenera said, "This administration is slowly getting away from the idea of whom they're responsible to." He said flooding problems in one section of the village was an example of this lack of concern.

In the area of fire protection for incorporated areas surrounding the village, McGrenera said the people outside the village "should pay their own way, which means paying an amount at least equal to what the residents pay." He said he was not opposed to the village fire department providing emergency rescue service to get persons out of burning buildings, regardless whether or not they had paid the village fire protection fee.

McGRENERA SERVED as a village trustee before being elected to his present office of clerk in 1971. He also served on the village zoning board of appeals, board of health and plan commission prior to election as a trustee in 1967.

He said he was running for the presidency because, "After many hours of evaluating our village government, . . . I am convinced that I could best serve the village through the office of village president."

Incumbent Pres. Charles Zettek and Robert "Bud" Lindahl, of 690 Versailles Cir., have both announced their candidacies for president.

Bad check ring bilking suburban area

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen bank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1486 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the National Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,500 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person

No abortions at 2 hospitals

No abortions will be performed at the two Northwest suburban Catholic hospitals in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, but officials at other area hospitals say the matter still is an open question.

The statements from hospital officials came in the wake of a ruling last week striking down two states' anti-abortion laws.

"As a member of the Catholic Hospital Association, which has taken a strong stand against abortion, we will not be performing abortions in this hospital," a spokesman at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village said.

AT HOLY FAMILY Hospital in Des Plaines, Sister M. Amata, executive vice president of the hospital, said, "We are following the directive of the Roman Catholic Church and are solidly behind (John) Cardinal Cody."

Both positions were in keeping with a statement earlier last week by Cardinal Cody blasting the U.S. Supreme Court decision permitting women to obtain abortions through their 12th week of pregnancy. Cody called on Catholics in the medical field to oppose and resist performing abortions.

Two other suburban hospitals Northwest Community and Lutheran General hospitals, said they would wait for a clarification of the Illinois abortion law before taking any position.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has taken no stand on the issue because abortion for non-therapeutic reasons is illegal in the state, Jack Ryon, hospital spokesman, said.

RYON SAID there will be a decision made when the Illinois courts give an interpretation of the abortion laws.

"At that time the medical staff and the hospital administration will sit down and determine a policy that will certainly be within the rules set down by the state," he said.

"The hospital policy will be set by the hospital and staff, but no matter what the hospital says, the doctors would still have the right to refuse to perform the operation for his own personal reasons," Ryon said. "The ultimate decision depends on two people — the mother and the doctor."

Northwest Community Hospital is a non-denominational institution.

AT LUTHERAN General Hospital in Park Ridge, a spokesman said the American Protestant Hospital Association of Chicago, of which the hospital is a member, has not been opposed to abortion in the past. However, he said the hospital would be autonomous in making a decision on the issue.

The Supreme Court decision was made last Monday on appeals from Texas and Georgia, and an Illinois abortion prohibition has been waiting for a high court ruling for two years. However, abortion will not be legal in Illinois until a decision is made on the constitutionality of the state's abortion statute.

President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $208 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.

The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 559 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

Juan V. Corona goes back to court today with hopes for a new trial pinned to charges that a sheriff's matron influenced a 63-year-old woman juror's vote. Naomi Underwood, a widow, and Georgia Wallace, a part-time county attendant to overturn Corona's conviction for killing 25 migrant workers.

British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops. In Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.

Special medical evacuation planes are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.

China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as convincing proof that "sanity and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

Milwaukee Road commuters

Railroad seeks fare hike

A 10 per cent increase in commuter fares is being sought by the Milwaukee Road, the railroad announced Friday.

The Milwaukee Road is asking the Illinois Commerce Commission for a uniform 10 per cent increase to offset a $1.8 million deficit incurred in 1972.

The fare increase would go into effect March 1, a spokesman for the railroad said. The hike would generate $550,000 which will not cover last year's deficit, but will help, he added.

Labor and fuel costs have risen sharply, he said, adding necessitating the increase. A wage settlement last year is partly responsible for the salary increases.

AN ILLINOIS Department of Transportation debt service grant that helped stabilize fare expired in December, 1972, making it necessary to increase commuter fares, the spokesman explained.

He pointed out the increase is the first one since May, 1971, and would equal the inflation experienced in the last two years.

The railroad also receives federal transportation funds as a result of the formation in the last two years of several mass transportation districts. These funds, the spokesman said, can only be used for capital expenditures, such as equipment and signaling. They cannot be used to offset deficits, he said. He was not aware of any need for new equipment.

Commuters were notified of the proposed fare increase through announcements distributed Friday night. The present Roselle-Chicago one way fare of $1.40 would increase to $1.55 if the hike is approved. The unrestricted monthly ticket would jump from $36.30 to $36.95.

All fares would be raised 10 per cent, the spokesman added, on the line running from Chicago Union Station west to Elgin and the one extending north to Fox Lake.

UNDER THE Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, two-thirds of the cost of coaches and locomotives for commuter service can be provided by the federal government if a mass transit district is formed.

Early in 1971, all of the communities along the Milwaukee Road's west line formed a transit district, with the exception of Schaumburg and Franklin Park. These municipalities are Bartlett, Bensenville, East Dundee, Elgin, Elmwood Park, Hanover Park, Itasca, River Grove, Streamwood and Wood Dale.

After months of consideration, Schaumburg did not join the district because of the possibility that the village would later want to join a larger mass transit district, and opposition to eventual taxes that could be levied for transportation services.

Bad check ring bilking suburban banks, businesses

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $500 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Pm police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an ex-convict who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

Fire departments weigh extension of fire cadets

Representatives from several Northwest suburban fire departments met Friday to discuss an extension of the fire cadet program now in operation in Mount Prospect.

Mount Prospect firefighter Leonard Kaiser, who pioneered the cadet program, said the meeting was held to inform the other departments of the program and to find out which departments, if any, would be interested in participating starting next fall. Elk Grove Village, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows had representatives at the meeting.

Each representative is to report back to his fire chief and municipal government, Kaiser said, and they will then let him know whether their towns would like to join the program.

Kaiser has said that Rolling Meadows already has indicated a desire to join the program, under which high school juniors and seniors are being trained to be firemen.

Ten students, mostly from Prospect High School, are studying under the Mount Prospect cadet program, which started last September. The boys receive credit for their 15 hours a week on job training and five hours a week classroom study through the Dist. 214 Diversified Education Program. District officials have indicated that they are pleased with the program and would like to broaden the program to include other high schools in the district, Kaiser said.

Food services chief honored

Alex Hajna, food services director at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, was honored recently as a past president of the Chicago Midwest Chapter of the American Society for Hospital Food Service Administrators.

Hajna served as president in 1970. The American Society for Hospital Food Service Administrators, with 1,300 national members, is the second largest affiliated group of the American Hospital Association.

District to take a poll

'Should unit school study go on?'

A poll will be taken Thursday among members of a citizens' committee in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 as to whether it should proceed with its feasibility study of the unit district plan.

The group, known as the Citizens Reorganization Study Committee, will conduct the poll among its members at its meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, committee chairman, said, "If they (committee members) vote no, we'll pack up our tools and go home."

Emil Bahmaier, a member of the group's steering committee, said the vote "will give a tenor of the committee's feeling. If the decision is not to go ahead with the study, we'll simply do our report and quit."

HOWEVER, IF the group decides to proceed with the study, according to Bahmaier, "then we would wish to set some tentative boundaries" for the unit district proposal. "The idea is to finalize our figures (enrollment, financial, etc.) based on those boundaries," he said.

Bahmaier said the group is considering primarily four different boundary possibilities: an Elk Grove Village unit district, splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway; a unit district using the present Dist. 59 boundaries; a unit with the attendance boundaries of Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect high schools; and a unit district that would include all of High School Dist. 214.

The group is divided into several subcommittees that are studying, among other things, the legal, financial and educational aspects of a unit vs. a dual school district.

Currently the area operates under a dual district system with Dist. 59 handling grades K-8 and Dist. 214 serving as a separate high school district. Under a unit system, one school district would take care of grades K-12.

According to Bahmaier, if the committee decides to proceed with its nearly completed study, committee members will gather data from advocates of the dual district system. Probably he said, these would be area school administrators.

THE GROUP decided at its meeting Thursday to take the poll later this week. Also at the Thursday meeting, Coney said, the work of each subcommittee was discussed. Coney said subcommittees have done enough background work to be able to make a recommendation for a unit district. The only thing the subcommittees need is the boundaries of the proposed unit district before they start work on their final report.

Bahmaier said the general committee will also be asked this week for a recommendation on the possibility of waiting until several pending court cases regarding unit districting are resolved.

Coney said if the committee agrees to continue study on a possible unit district and proposes boundaries for the district, a final report should be submitted to the school board by March 1. The deadline was established by the school board for the reports from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service.

According to Coney, however, there will be no serious problems if the recommendation is submitted after March 1.

IT'S NOT SPRING, but the weather feels like it, and these two youngsters took advantage of the warm temperatures to try out the neighborhood swing. The two are Catherine Teter, top, and Jill Teepe.

Metal found thought to be from jet engine

Metal parts, believed to have come from an American Airlines plane which had an engine malfunction Jan. 20, were recovered Saturday morning by the Elk Grove Village Police Department.

The parts were found by Eileen Plilchos in the yard of her Bensenville home. Officials from American Airlines later picked up the parts from the police.

A police spokesman said the parts appeared to be two turbine blades and a third piece of unidentified metal.

The American Airlines plane, a Boeing 707, had engine and hydraulic system problems after taking off from O'Hare International Airport. At the time, airline officials would not say they were looking for a turbine which may have fallen from the plane, but they did say they were looking for a disc-shaped object about the size of a garbage can lid.

Administrative staff named for Hoffman Estates High

The administrative staff for Hoffman Estates High School was appointed Thursday by the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education.

Gerald Chapman, assistant principal at Fremd High School, was named associate principal for the new school. He has been employed by the district for eight years.

The director of pupil personnel services at the school will be Ron Persche, presently assistant principal at Conant High School. Persche has been with the district for ten years.

The two will work with Principal Thomas Hillshelm when the new school opens in September. Associate Supt. Bruce Allergott said other administrators, including an assistant principal, will be named for the school when it begins its second year of operation.

Other staff appointments for the new school included Robert L. Ferguson, gymnastics coach at Conant High School, as division chairman of physical education, driver training and athletics for Hoffman Estates. In addition Sharon Ruthstrom, head librarian of Conant, will assume the same job at Hoffman Estates.

In other action, the board reached a preliminary agreement to hire Unteed and Associates, the architectural firm for Hoffman Estates High School, to design the district's sixth high school, to be located in northern Palatine Township.

Kenneth Unteed, head of the firm, assured the board the funds available for the school from 1970 bond referendum will be adequate for the building unless construction costs skyrocket. In addition, he said it would be possible to design the building to house 2,500 students and leave open the possibility of additions to increase the size later.

The board's timetable calls for opening the sixth school in 1978.

In addition, the board officially extended the deadline for completion of Hoffman Estates High School from April 15 to June 13 of this year. Unteed and the contractor for the school had told the board that because of delays caused by weather and by problems with the original plumbing contractor they could not finish the school on time.

Two top Palatine citizens named at Jaycee dinner

Conrad Hansen and Jean Clifford have been named Palatine Man and Woman of the Year.

They were cited at the Palatine Jaycees annual Distinguished Service Award dinner Friday night for service to the community in 1972.

Hansen, of 105 W. Palatine Rd., said he was "quite surprised at winning the award. I really felt there were a lot of people more deserving than I was."

Mrs. Clifford, of 208 N. Boynton Dr., said she also was surprised and "very nervous." Her husband, David, won the Palatine Man of the Year Award two years ago.

The awards were presented by Tom Lester, president of the Jaycees and Rose Marie Poplar, president of the Jaycees wives organization.

Also honored with a special award was Jim Zordan, who was selected for devotion and service to youth in Palatine. Zordan has been active in the junior football, hockey and baseball programs.

Hansen, 33, was nominated for the award by the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry Inc. He is manager of the Hansen Tru Value Hardware Store and has served as a member and officer of the chamber's board of directors.

He is a member of the plan commission, and a charter member and past president of the Rotary Club. He has lived in Palatine for 23 years.

Mrs. Clifford, 34, was nominated by the Countryside YMCA. She is director of the Y's tiny tots program and publicity coordinator of the YMCA distaff, a women's auxiliary group.

Mrs. Clifford was past president of the Jaycee wives and received "Outstanding Jaycee Wife Award" for 1969-70. She also has been active in the Presbyterian Church of Palatine where she teaches and coordinates the Sunday school kindergarten program. She is an active member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, which she joined while attending DePaul University, Greencastle, Ind. Other residents nominated for the awards were Ronald R. Hunter, Wendell E. Jones, and Edward Price. Women nominated were Marcia Chouinard and Carolyn Leighty.

Judges were last year's winners, Terry L. Leighty and Connie Strandberg; Herman M. Heriot, executive director of the Countryside YMCA; Alice DeViney, a member of the Palatine League of Women Voters; Ginny Johnson, Palatine Township social worker; Frank Whiteley, Supt. of Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15; and Shirley A. Munson, a Palatine village trustee.

Duane Wolfram heads Hunting Ridge group

Duane Wolfram, 1024 Peregrine Ct., recently was elected president of the Hunting Ridge Homeowners Association in Palatine.

Wolfram succeeds John Kennedy, 1048 Yale Ct., who was selected vice president. Other officers are Nancy Casey, 1110 Skylark Ct., secretary; and Curt Ehmann, 1058 W. Illinois Ave., treasurer. Both had held the same positions last year.

Library Friends to unveil sculptures

Palatine librarians and board of trustees will honor the Friends of the Palatine Library tonight at 8 p.m. when recently donated sculptures are unveiled.

The sculptures were purchased with funds raised from the annual Friends used book sale this summer. After they are on display for a month, the sculptures will be circulated and checked out to library patrons.

Saturday crash kills local man

A Palatine man was killed in an auto crash on Irving Park Road near Mannheim Road Saturday.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Resurrection Hospital, Chicago, was Noel P. Aleman, 28, of 162 S. Greeley Ave., Palatine, driver of one of the cars in the head on collision. Driver of the other auto, Janet Bordenaro, 59, of Roselle, also was killed in the accident.

Four passengers in the Aleman car were hospitalized, including Alvarado Rosendo, 22, of S. Greeley Ave., Palatine. He was reported in serious condition yesterday at the hospital. Ramon Arrendondo, 22, Franklin Park was in the intensive care unit in serious condition. Also in serious condition yesterday was Renaldo Gonzalez, 22, Chicago. Reported in good condition was Ineceno Espinoza, Schiller Park.

BEING CHARMING takes more energy than some people think. Young girls enrolled in Palatine Park Sue Poston in the Maple Park Shelter Building. A little warmup is highly recommended for a concentrated charm session, especially when you're 10.

Settled here by accident

Chamber VP seeks to boost Palatine

by MARCIA KRAMER

It was more or less by accident that Pat diLustro and his family settled in Palatine.

They were looking for a place near Chicago and discovered that "the farther out you get, the cheaper the homes." And so, for no other reason, they decided to live in Palatine.

That was 10 years ago.

Now, diLustro is one of the biggest boosters of Palatine. In fact, he gets paid for promoting the town.

diLUSTRO IS the new executive vice president of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry Inc.

And if he has anything to say about it, the generally low-keyed chamber will become a driving force in the community.

"Take a wheel," he says. "We should be the hub of all activities in the community."

diLustro sees the chamber as serving as a liaison between residents and elected officials, and as a catalyst for organizing local activities.

The chamber's over-all purpose? "To work together for one common cause—what's good for all of us in Palatine."

In that vein, diLustro envisions the chamber as serving not only the business community, but the people of Palatine as well. "We're here to help anyone who needs assistance," he pledged.

diLUSTRO'S proposals for improving Palatine include:

—Helping to attract industry to the village.

—Encouraging free parking downtown on Saturdays to draw shoppers.

—Studying the possibility of a minibus, sponsored by merchants, to bring more residents into downtown Palatine.

—Working with youth, such as sponsoring talks by local businessmen at school career seminars.

—Sponsoring beautification programs.

—Presenting community service awards to deserving residents.

Some 150 Palatine businesses are members of the chamber out of a possible 450, but diLustro rates the Palatine Chamber of Commerce "right with the best of em."

And, the new chamber official adds optimistically, "We'll probably be better as time goes on."

Soroka nominated for Dem presidency

Walter Soroka, 1440 Rosita Dr., Palatine, has been nominated president of the Democratic Party of Palatine Township.

Soroka is a precinct captain in the Democratic organization.

He was nominated at a party meeting Thursday night. Other nominations can be made at a Feb. 6 meeting, when party officers will be elected, or prior to that date, by calling committeemen Richard A. Mugallan, 358-1255, or party secretary Carol Berman, 359-6144.

Nominated last week to serve on the party's nine-member executive board were Blanche Frey, Jack Scollay, Ann Scollay, George Stewart, Richard Cherico, Peter Gerling, Stanley Martin, Robert Glorch and Mrs. Berman. Most of the candidates are precinct captains.

The Democratic Party will hold one of the nine seats on the board, and the committeemen, Mugallan, will hold another.

The party currently doesn't have officers. Mugallan said the change in organization is being made "to formalize the democratic nature" of the party.

"We always said we wanted people to work," he said. "If we have officers and delineate responsibilities, maybe we can have more participation."

Besides electing officers at the Feb. 6 meeting, the Democrats will adopt a set of bylaws and state candidates for the township election.

The War

The Vietnam war ended officially with the sound of church bells and pagoda gongs in Saigon, but the momentum of fighting continued for hours past the 8 a.m. cease-fire deadline. The Communists captured 66 hamlets after the truce went into effect.

Thought to have 40 members

Bad check passers bilking suburban banks, businesses

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 23 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1496 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Oak Park and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,350 or $2,750, the ring member visits the bank and deposit it in the account of the person whose check was taken from the mail.

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $500 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an ex-convict who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing. Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

No abortions at 2 Catholic hospitals

No abortions will be performed at the two Northwest suburban Catholic hospitals in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, but officials at other area hospitals say the matter still is an open question.

The statements from hospital officials came in the wake of a ruling last week striking down two states' anti-abortion laws.

"As a member of the Catholic Hospital Association, which has taken a strong stand against abortion, we will not be performing abortions in this hospital," a spokesman at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village said.

AT HOLY FAMILY Hospital in Des Plaines, Sister M. Amata, executive vice president of the hospital, said, "We are following the directive of the Roman Catholic Church and are solidly behind (John) Cardinal Cody."

Both positions were in keeping with a statement earlier last week by Cardinal Cody blasting the U.S. Supreme Court decision permitting women to obtain abortions through their 12th week of pregnancy. Cody called on Catholics in the medical field to oppose and resist performing abortions.

Two other suburban hospitals Northwest Community and Lutheran General hospitals, said they would wait for a clarification of the Illinois abortion law before taking any position.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has taken no stand on the issue because abortion for non-therapeutic reasons is illegal in the state, Jack Ryon, hospital spokesman, said.

RYON SAID there will be a decision made when the Illinois courts give an interpretation of the abortion laws.

"At that time the medical staff and the hospital administration will sit down and determine a policy that will certainly be within the rules set down by the state," he said.

"The hospital policy will be set by the hospital and staff, but no matter what the hospital says, the doctors would still have the right to refuse to perform the operation for his own personal reasons," Ryon said. "The ultimate decision depends on two people — the mother and the doctor."

Northwest Community Hospital is a non-denominational institution.

AT LUTHERAN General Hospital in Park Ridge, a spokesman said the American Protestant Hospital Association of Chicago, of which the hospital is a member, has not been opposed to abortion in the past. However, he said the hospital would be autonomous in making a decision on the issue.

The Supreme Court decision was made last Monday on appeals from Texas and Georgia, and an Illinois abortion prohibition has been waiting for a high court ruling for two years. However, abortion will not be legal in Illinois until a decision is made on the constitutionality of the state's abortion statute.

120-acre housing development in question

'No' answer expected on Ela-Freeman project

Inverness plan commissioners are expected to rule against a 120-acre housing and commercial development southwest of the Ela-Freeman roads intersection sometime this week, after a last-minute public hearing on the project late last week.

The first hearing in December ended with an understanding that attorney George Downs, representing the developers, would meet with planning experts on land use for the property. But the meeting was called off when Inverness officials apparently changed their minds about negotiating with Downs.

"They bogged me down having that meeting. They decided to throw the whole idea out," Downs said Friday.

Dr. Andrew J. Koller, chairman of the Inverness plan commission, replied, "We felt that if they (the developers) make a petition, they should put in what they want."

THE ORIGINAL proposal, which will be ruled on without revision this week, calls for a combination of mid-rises and townhouses around a retention lake on 80 acres south of a proposed high school site for School Dist. 214. The second portion of the development is north of the high school land and includes nearly 40 acres at the intersection of Ela and Freeman roads for townhouses, mid-rises and a shopping center.

Downs said the developers would be willing to change the current 12-unit per acre average to as low as four or six units per acre.

"If they want us to give them tract housing in there at four to six units per acre, I'll be very happy to do it. But I don't think Inverness wants that kind of housing," Downs said.

The developers apparently aren't willing to go as low as one to two units per acre, the limit that would satisfy Inverness and Hoffman Estates to the west.

The total 120 acres will be sold to a developer if the zoning change is approved. The northern 40 acres is currently owned by Raymond Pingel, an Inverness resident, and the southern portion is being held in a trust at a Chicago bank. It was previously known as the Hafferkamp farm.

WHEN DOWNS SAID the property could not be developed profitably at two units per acre, two Hoffman Estates plan commissioners retorted to the audience at Thursday's hearing.

They cited a 50-acre single family proposal whose developers are currently negotiating for annexation to Hoffman Estates. Although no density has been specified, Plan Comr. Roger Bergstrom said the project on the Cipri farm would be similar to the single family detached housing currently in Winston Knolls, at about three units per acre.

Bergstrom termed Downs' proposed 12 units per acre "ridiculously high." According to the Hoffman Estates plan official, the Inverness hearing was attended by more Hoffman Estates people than by residents of Inverness.

Fire protection and additional traffic were chief complaints of the Hoffman Estates residents. Winston Knolls, as part of Palatine Township, is served by the Palatine Rural Fire Department, formed almost entirely by volunteers.

Hoffman Estates officials met Wednesday with highway experts from Cook County, Bergstrom said. During that session, county officials estimated that each family averages ten auto trips per day. Hoffman Estates residents are particularly worried about the 2,000 autos that would accompany the Ela Road proposal when it is finished.

A SHOPPING center to include a grocery store got particularly bad comments from Winston Knolls residents whose property would back onto the center. The commercial development "was booed down quite strongly," Bergstrom said.

All in all, the project will probably not get Inverness' blessing.

"It doesn't look too good for them," Koller admitted Friday.

The developers' recourse, if they decide not to reapply with another petition or different density, is the courts.

"A bad settlement is better than a good lawsuit," Downs said philosophically last week. But if Inverness refuses to allow the project, a suit may be filed to force the rezoning.

Two weeks ago, the Inverness village trustees approved a master plan for the village which recommends development at one to two units per acre around the high school site. Those trustees will make the official decision to allow or deny the rezoning after the plan commission makes its recommendation, due sometime before Feb. 6.

City following wrong guidelines for redistricting

by TONI GINETTI

A second ward boundary map for Rolling Meadows, scheduled for approval tomorrow, may still not be in compliance with legal redistricting guidelines.

The map, drawn last week by city aldermen, shows a greater variance between wards than the one per cent allowable by law.

Further, a Herald survey of census data indicates actual population within each ward greatly differs from the population aldermen have calculated in each ward.

According to city figures, new boundaries place 3,750 persons in Ward 1, 3,840 persons in Ward 2, 3,856 persons in Ward 3, 3,818 persons in Ward 4, and 3,914 in Ward 5.

If the figures are correct, the wards will not be within the one per cent margin allowed by the courts in order to comply with the one man, one vote doctrine handed down by the Supreme Court in 1964. Michael Lavell, consulting attorney for the Cook County Election Department, said Friday that while the one per cent variance is determined on a case by case basis, Rolling Meadows' population of 19,178 would allow a variance between wards of only about 39 persons.

City Atty. Don Rose had advised city officials the one per cent margin meant the difference between the highest populated ward and the lowest could not vary by more than one per cent, or about 191 persons.

To provide equal representation, wards would have to number as nearly as possible 3,838 persons.

HOWEVER, data obtained from 1970 census records indicates city officials have not made accurate counts of proposed ward sizes.

Census information shows about 4,181 persons living in the proposed Ward 1, about 3,600 persons in the proposed Ward 2, about 3,835 persons in the proposed Ward 3, about 3,500 persons in the proposed Ward 4, and about 4,072 persons in the proposed Ward 5.

The figures were compiled from census data recorded in "Block Statistics: Chicago and Northwestern Indiana Urbanized Area," a publication printed by the Department of Commerce Bureau of Census which lists population by blocks.

Specific census data were not used by aldermen to draw the map last week because city officials did not think there would be sufficient time to do so and still complete the map in time to allow aldermanic candidates the opportunity to file petitions before the Feb. 12 deadline.

Instead, aldermen calculated that an average of four persons live per home in the city and redistricted using that estimate.

The redistricted map needs only city council approval for adoption. If the proposed map is approved tomorrow, ward boundaries would not be changed unless a lawsuit filed against the city would result in a court order to redraw boundaries.

The proposed map is the second attempt city officials have made this month to redistrict wards before the Feb. 18 deadline. The redistricting must be completed by then to prepare for the April 17 municipal election.

THE FIRST map, drawn on the basis of eligible voters in the city rather than population, was thrown out after Mayor Roland Meyer learned it had been incorrectly prepared. Meyer learned of the error after a Herald study of poll sheets showed discrepancies existed in the number of eligible voters the city had estimated to be living in each ward.

When Meyer announced at a city council meeting last week that the map would have to be redrawn, he indicated there was a strong chance redistricting might result in Ald. James Huddleston (4th) becoming an alderman at-large. Meyer said this was because Huddleston could be moved out of his 4th Ward seat by the remap.

During last week's meeting of the redistricting committee, aldermen were most concerned with avoiding the alderman at-large situation since it would create an 11-member city council until the next municipal elections in 1975. It would also mean additional expense to the city because another aldermanic salary would have to be paid.

Weber's ward may persuade him to run

Encouragement from residents in his ward may convince Ald. Daniel Weber (4th) to seek another term on the city council.

Weber said Friday he was presented with a petition from neighbors asking that he run again. The petition, which contained about 34 names, was given to Weber upon his return from a business trip last week.

"You really feel good when someone takes the time to do something like that," Weber said. Weber said he now thinks the chances that he will decide to run again are "pretty favorable."

"You may say that I'm 90 per cent sure at this moment," he said. "I enjoy the city work, and I was quite pleasantly surprised when I returned from the trip and was presented with the petition."

WEBER, WHO IS employed by the Institute of Food Technologists, has delayed announcing his candidacy because he did not know whether future work commitments might not allow him time to devote to aldermanic duties.

He said Friday, however, he does not now believe that those commitments would interfere with city duties should he be reelected.

If he chooses to run again, Weber must file a petition no later than Feb. 12. The petition will require at least 26 names, Weber said.

Weber was elected to a four-year term in 1969 following his appointment to the council in May of 1968 to fill a vacancy. He serves as chairman of the council's streets, alleys, utilities committee.

THE COUNT DOWN begins as a young wrestler tries to hold his opponent long enough to score a pin. The fourth through eighth grade boys all are enrolled in the Rolling Meadows Park District wrestling class which will meet every Thursday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. until March 15 at the sports complex.

Will carry into next budget

City will enjoy a year-end surplus

Rolling Meadows will have a surplus in its coffers at the end of the 1973 fiscal year, City Treasurer Robert Cole said Friday.

The surplus will probably be carried into next year's budget, according to Cole.

The exact amount of the unspent money will not be known until the end of April when the fiscal year expires, but Cole said he is sure the surplus will exist.

"There will be a corporate surplus, but it is hard to say what it produces it," Cole said. "There are two ways it can happen. One way is that you get more money than you had anticipated. The other is that you spend less than you had anticipated."

Since most revenue collected by the city goes into the general corporate fund, Cole said it is not necessarily true that the surplus will result from increased sales tax rebates.

"Sales tax goes into the general corporate fund, so you can't say whether the money will come from surplus sales tax or some other source."

The city receives a monthly average of $100,000 from sales tax rebates. Motor fuel tax rebated to the city last year averaged about $16,500 per month.

BESIDES THE money that will be left from the 1973 budget, the city also has almost $200,000 in revenue sharing funds to work with this year. Cole said the federal government has said the money should be used to "to maintain the status quo as far as taxes go."

Consideration is being given, however, to using the money, or a portion of it, for flood control. Mayor Roland Meyer has suggested several other uses for the money, including the establishment of a scholarship fund for college-bound students in Rolling Meadows.

Cole said, however, that City Atty. Don

Rose has said a scholarship fund might not be an allowable use for revenue sharing money, since the government has discouraged use of the money for education.

Cole said he has written to the Treasury Department for a clarification on this but has received no answer yet.

If additional money is needed to balance the 1974 city budget currently in preparation, some revenue sharing funds might be used for that purpose, Cole added.

Warm weather draws ice skaters to arena

January's unseasonable warm weather has resulted in an increase at attendance at the public ice skating sessions at the Rolling Meadows Park District arena.

Total attendance at public skating sessions during January was 3,852, according to the arena report presented to the board of commissioners recently.

The average attendance at each of the six public skating sessions was up in all but one case from the averages of November and December.

The most popular skating sessions are Friday evening and Sunday afternoon, according to the report.

Park learn-to-skate classes expect 600

More than 600 people are expected to go through the first two semesters of the Rolling Meadows Park District learn-to-skate classes.

A report presented to the Park Board of Commissioners states 300 skaters enrolled in the first 16-week semester. The second semester started with an enrollment of 291 students in the first week and this was expected to increase with late registrations.

Of the 291 students enrolled in the second semester, 37 are adults and 254 are tots.

Persons who have graduated from all the learn-to-skate classes are eligible for membership in the Rolling Meadows Skating Club. Current membership in the Rolling Meadows Skating Club is 47. The membership includes 20 residents and 27 non-residents.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $268 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.

The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 559 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

Juan V. Corona goes back to court today with hopes for a new trial planned to charges that a sheriff's matron influenced a 63-year-old woman juror's vote. Naomi Underwood, a widow, and Georgia Wallace, a part-time county attendant are key figures in the defense effort to overturn Corona's conviction for killing 23 migrant workers.

At least six tornadoes ripped through central Florida, tearing the roof off an apartment, damaging homes, throwing trees around like toothpicks, and injuring at least 18 persons. The worst damage was in Orlando where 14 were hurt and 300 left homeless when a tornado tore the roof off their apartment building.

The World

British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops. In Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.

Special medical evacuation flights are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war, to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.

China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as "convincing proof that 'sanity' and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

Thought to have 40 members

Bad check passers bilking suburban banks, businesses

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to pull them out of business.

PRISONERS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs. Including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he paid for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 23 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1406 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., called a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,500 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person whose check was taken from the mail.

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $500 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an ex-convict who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

1,186 in city's park programs

Approximately 1,186 persons are currently registered or participating in programs sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Park District, according to a report presented to the board of commissioners.

A total of 425 residents are enrolled in the 13 winter-spring recreation programs which started this month.

Children's chess was the only program canceled for this session and 13 persons are registered for five programs which have not started.

Another 303 persons are registered in nine programs which are continuing from the fall-winter session.

The six programs where no registration is required have an average of 330 persons participating in them, according to the report.

In addition, 110 persons have participated in special events sponsored by the park district since the new session started.

Creekside, Dawngate residents get survey

An interest survey designed to help in the planning of future recreation programs has been sent to 140 residents of Creekside and Dawngate subdivisions by the Rolling Meadows Park District.

The interest survey will go out to all park district residents in the February newsletter.

In addition to helping with planning of future recreation programs, the survey is designed to show residents the park district is concerned with their wants and needs and improve the park district's image.

The survey seeks information about the number of family members, their age and the recreation programs they would be interested in attending.

120-acre housing development in question

'No' answer expected on Ela-Freeman project

Inverness plan commissioners are expected to rule against a 120-acre housing and commercial development southwest of the Ela-Freeman roads intersection sometime this week, after a stormy public hearing on the project late last week.

The first hearing in December ended with an understanding that attorney George Downs, representing the developers, would meet with planning experts on land use for the property. But the meeting was called off when Inverness officials apparently changed their minds about negotiating with Downs.

"They barred me from having that meeting. They decided to throw the whole idea out," Downs said Friday.

Dr. Andrew J. Koller, chairman of the Inverness plan commission, replied, "We felt that if the (developers) make a petition, they should put in what they want."

THE ORIGINAL proposal, which will be ruled on without revision this week, calls for a combination of mid-rises and townhouses around a retention lake on 80 acres south of a proposed high school site for School Dist. 214. The second portion of the development is north of the high school land and includes nearly 40 acres at the intersection of Ela and Freeman roads for townhouses, mid-rises and a shopping center.

Downs said the developers would be willing to change the current 12-unit per acre average to as low as four or six units per acre.

"If they want us to give them tract housing in there at four to six units per acre, I'll be very happy to do it. But I don't think Inverness wants that kind of housing," Downs said.

The developers apparently aren't willing to go as low as two to four units per acre, the limit that would satisfy Inverness and Hoffman Estates to the west.

The total 120 acres will be sold to a developer if the zoning change is approved. The northern 40 acres is currently owned by Raymond Pingel, an Inverness resident, and the southern portion is being held in a trust at a Chicago bank. It was previously known as the Halferkamp farm.

WHEN DOWNS SAID the property could not be developed profitably at two units per acre, two Hoffman Estates plan commissioners retorted from the audience at Thursday's hearing.

They cited a 50-acre single family proposal whose developers are currently negotiating for annexation to Hoffman Estates. Although no density has been specified, plan Comr. Roger Bergstrom said the project on the Clpri farm would be similar to the single family detached housing currently in Winston Knolls, at about three units per acre.

Bergstrom termed Downs' proposed 12 units per acre "ridiculously high." According to the Hoffman Estates plan official, the Inverness hearing was attended by more Hoffman Estates people than by residents of Inverness.

Fire protection and additional traffic were chief complaints of the Hoffman Estates residents. Winston Knolls, as part of Palatine Township, is served by the Palatine Rural Fire Department, formed almost entirely by volunteers.

Hoffman Estates officials met Wednesday with highway experts from Cook County, Bergstrom said. During that session, county officials estimated that each family averages ten auto trips per day. Hoffman Estates residents are particularly worried about the 2,000 autos that would accompany the Ela Road proposal when it is finished.

A SHOPPING center to include a grocery store got particularly bad comments from Winston Knolls residents whose property would back onto the center. The commercial development "was booed down quite strongly," Bergstrom said.

All in all, the project will probably not get Inverness' blessing.

"It doesn't look too good for them," Koller admitted Friday.

The developers' recourse, if they decide not to reapply with another petition or different density, is the courts.

to force the rezoning.

Two weeks ago, the Inverness village trustees approved a master plan for the village which recommends development at one to two units per acre around the high school site. Those trustees will make the official decision to allow or deny the rezoning after the plan commission makes its recommendation, due sometime before Feb. 6.

Bad check passers bilking suburban banks, businesses

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1496 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

New Hoffman political party considers platform possibility

by MARILYN HEISER

Improved communications, positive governmental action, and opposition to patronage appointments emerged Thursday as possible platform planks for the newly formed Hoffman Estates Civic Party.

The party held an open hearing Thursday to learn residents' feelings about the direction village government is taking and what issues the party should emphasize in its election campaign.

Approximately 20 persons attended the hearing, a turnout termed disappointing by platform committee members. Apathy among village residents and the need to make them aware of the issues was a key problem discussed.

Michael Redmond, platform committee chairman, said, "There is one obvious plank. We are concerned about patronage. If there's a keystone to our platform, this is it."

The continuing conflicts with Schaumburg were also pointed to as a problem to correct through improved communications. If there were an increased flow of communication between the two villages, problems such as the recent controversy over builders' donations to the schools might be avoided, said Ed Sturkey, 423 Glen Ln., said.

Tom Barber, vice chairman, suggested communications between residents and village officials would be strengthened if each trustee were appointed to listen to problems of a designated area.

"Why is it so hard to get businesses into Hoffman Estates?" asked Marvin Baumann, 618 Oakdale Rd. Others in the audience wondered why Schaumburg could attract so many businesses, but Hoffman Estates lagged behind in this area.

PROMOTING A positive image for Hoffman Estates was one answer suggested by Gordon Thoren, 577 Edgely Ln. Thoren, a Dist. 54 school board member, was also concerned that the village has not fostered enough community pride among its residents.

The indecisiveness and lack of action by the village board was another reason Hoffman Estates has difficulty attracting business, Thoren added.

"Schaumburg has excellent public relations," Bill Stukas, trustee candidate, said. "Fulltime officials can do a more efficient job of selling the village to businessmen," he added.

Mayor Frederick Downey, running for reelection on the party ticket, said industrial development is a complex problem. Municipalities in the Chicago area compete with each other and other states who seek industry for the jobs created, he added.

States other than Illinois offer tax inducements to lure industry Downey said.

"Businesses are looking for a good labor market, low taxes, and a good location." They aren't interested in coming to a village just to improve its tax base, the reason most municipalities seek industry, he added.

A municipal fire department and park district and a research committee to investigate future needs of the village were planks suggested by David Baird, 299 Alcoa Ln.

Dick Willer, 101 Berkley Ln., suggested the party consider a plank advocating a municipally-run paper bag garbage collection system such as the one instituted in Rolling Meadows. Federal revenue sharing funds, he added, could be used to pay for the collection.

IT'S NOT SPRING, but the weather feels like it, and these two youngsters took advantage of the warm temperatures to try out the neighborhood swing. The two are Catherine Teter, top, and Jill Tsape.

Ask 10% boost by March 1

Milwaukee Road seeks hike in fares

A 10 per cent increase in commuter fares is being sought by the Milwaukee Road, the railroad announced Friday.

The Milwaukee Road is asking the Illinois Commerce Commission for a uniform 10 per cent increase to offset a $1.8 million deficit incurred in 1972.

The fare increase would go into effect March 1, a spokesman for the railroad said. The hike would generate $550,000 which will not cover last year's deficit, but will help, he added.

Labor and fuel costs have risen sharply, he said, adding necessitating the increase. A wage settlement last year is partly responsible for the salary increases.

AN ILLINOIS Department of Transportation debt service grant that helped stabilize fare expired in December, 1972, making it necessary to increase commuter fares, the spokesman explained.

He pointed out the increase is the first since May, 1971, and would equal the inflation experienced in the last two years.

The railroad also receives federal transportation funds as a result of the formation in the last two years of several mass transportation districts. These funds, the spokesman said, can only be used for capital expenditures, such as equipment and signaling. They cannot be used to offset deficits, he said. He was not aware of any need for new equipment.

Commuters were notified of the proposed fare increase through announcements distributed Friday night. The present Roselle-Chicago one way fare of $1.40 would increase to $1.55 if the hike is approved. The unrestricted monthly ticket would jump from $36.30 to $38.95.

All fares would be raised 10 per cent, the spokesman added, on the line running from Chicago Union Station west to Elgin and the one extending north to Fox Lake.

UNDER THE Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, two-thirds of the cost of coaches and locomotives for commuter service can be provided by the federal government if a mass transit district is formed.

Early in 1971, all of the communities along the Milwaukee Road's west line formed a transit district, with the exception of Schaumburg and Franklin Park. These municipalities are Bartlett, Bensenville, East Dundee, Elgin, Elmwood Park, Hanover Park, Itasca, River Grove, Streamwood and Wood Dale.

After months of consideration, Schaumburg did not join the district because of the possibility that the village would later want to join a larger mass transit district, and opposition to eventual taxes that could be levied for transportation services.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $268 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.

The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 558 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

Juan V. Corona goes back to court today with hopes for a new trial pinned to charges that a sheriff's matron influenced a 63-year-old woman juror's vote. Naomi Underwood, a widow, and Georgia Wallace, a part-time county attendant are key figures in the defense effort to overturn Corona's conviction for killing 25 migrant workers.

At least six tornadoes ripped through central Florida, tearing the roof off an apartment, damaging homes, and injuring trees around like toothpicks, and injuring at least 18 persons. The worst damage was in Orlando where 14 were hurt and 300 left homeless when a tornado tore the roof off their apartment building.

The World

British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops. In Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.

Special medical evacuation planes are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.

China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as convincing proof that "sanity and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

Let's knock off the official jabs

by STEVE NOVICK

A constantly growing problem in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg is the animosity that exists between officials of the two communities.

A certain amount of provincialism and community pride is certainly justifiable in each of these villages, but the habit of many elected and appointed officials of publicly making snide references about neighboring community leaders has gotten totally out of hand.

The situation in recent weeks has related itself mostly to the controversial topics, hospital location, and village government cooperation with school officials.

But a Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Mutual Degradation Society, including members in both villages, has developed over the years. Roads, sewers, tax base, etc., have been subjects where spokesmen from one village have taken liberty to verbally jab at personalities in the other village.

REMEMBERED ARE some of the first references heard and the thought that the comments were cute, followed by a period where these statements were accepted as the result of an understood rivalry between neighbors. Today, more and more people are looking at the situation with distress.

Seen are three possible motives for making "nasties" at people who don't see things your way politically. One is that the person toward whom the comment is directed deserves what is said about him.

Another is that the person making the comment has emotional motivation for being snide — he can't deal with the victim of his remark on any other level.

The third reason is that these uncalled for criticisms are a feeble show for voters in the community.

With the mission of public officials being to better the lives of the people they represent, and the knowledge that dropping a nasty comment is at best a valve for letting off steam, it would be wise for local leaders to keep the sarcasm to themselves.

The only person who will appreciate a sarcastic remark is the cohort who agrees anyway and he doesn't need to hear it... he's thinking it too.

Bad check ring bilking suburban banks, businesses

The Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an ex-convict who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Old English motif for new restaurant

An Old English motif dominates one of Hoffman Estates' newest dining spots, The Black Knight Restaurant and Pub, 138 Higgins Rd.

"We are striving for a new concept of food service for this area by providing elegant surroundings at moderate prices," said Pat Capuzzi, general manager.

Capuzzi, who has been in the restaurant business for about 12 years, said that the new Hoffman Estates restaurant is a pilot project and that there are plans for another Black Knight in Oak Forest.

The dining room in the Black Knight will seat 160 patrons for luncheon and dinner, beginning each day at 11:30 a.m. The kitchen remains open until 2 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 1 a.m. other nights of the week. The lounge remains open until 3 a.m. each night.

CAPUZZI said the restaurant was located in Hoffman Estates because there was a desire on the part of the management to be part of a growing and progressive community.

"We want to become involved in the civic and social activities of this area and we will try to be of service wherever and whenever we can," he added.

"We want to make the people of this area feel that the Black Knight is their restaurant," he said.

The opening night celebration last week featured a prime rib dinner. Many village officials and community leaders were guests of the management for the evening.

Housing, commercial development

'No' expected on Ela-Freeman project

Inverness plan commissioners are expected to rule against a 120-acre housing and commercial development southwest of the Ela-Freeman roads intersection sometime this week, after a stormy public hearing on the project late last week.

The first hearing in December ended with an understanding that attorney George Downs, representing the developers, would meet with planning experts on land use for the property. But the meeting was called off when Inverness officials apparently changed their minds about negotiating with Downs.

"They barred me from having that meeting. They decided to throw the whole idea out," Downs said Friday.

Dr. Andrew J. Koller, chairman of the Inverness plan commission, replied, "We felt that if they (the developers) make a petition, they should put in what they want."

THE ORIGINAL proposal, which will be ruled on without revision this week, calls for a combination of mid-rises and townhouses around a retention lake on 80 acres south of a proposed high school site for School Dist. 214. The second portion of the development is north of the high school land and includes nearly 40 acres at the intersection of Ela and Freeman roads for townhouses, mid-rises and a shopping center.

Downs said the developers would be willing to change the current 12-unit per acre average to as low as four or six units per acre.

"If they want us to give them tract housing in there at four to six units per acre, I'll be very happy to do it. But I don't think Inverness wants that kind of housing," Downs said.

The developers apparently aren't willing to go as low as one to two units per acre, the limit that would satisfy Inverness and Hoffman Estates to the west.

The total 120 acres will be sold to a developer if the zoning change is approved. The northern 40 acres is currently owned by Raymond Pingel, an Inverness resident, and the southern portion is being held in a trust at a Chicago bank. It was previously known as the Hafferkamp farm.

WHEN DOWNS SAID the property could not be developed profitably at two units per acre, two Hoffman Estates plan commissioners retorted from the audience at Thursday's hearing.

They cited a 50-acre single family proposal whose developers are currently negotiating for annexation to Hoffman Estates. Although no density has been specified, plan Comr. Roger Bergstrom said the project on the Cipri farm would be similar to the single family detached housing currently in Winston Knolls, at about three units per acre.

Bergstrom termed Downs' proposed 12 units per acre "ridiculously high." According to the Hoffman Estates plan official, the Inverness hearing was attended by more Hoffman Estates people than by residents of Inverness.

Fire protection and additional traffic were chief complaints of the Hoffman Estates residents. Winston Knolls, as part of Palatine Township, is served by the Palatine Rural Fire Department, formed almost entirely by volunteers.

Hoffman Estates officials met Wednesday with highway experts from Cook County, Bergstrom said. During that session, county officials estimated that each family averages ten auto trips per day. Hoffman Estates residents are particularly worried about the 2,000 autos that would accompany the Ela Road proposal when it is finished.

A SHOPPING center to include a grocery store got particularly bad comments from Winston Knolls residents whose property would back onto the center. The commercial development "was booed down quite strongly," Bergstrom said.

All in all, the project will probably not get Inverness' blessing.

"It doesn't look too good for them," Koller admitted Friday.

The developers' recourse, if they decide not to reapply with another petition or different density, is the courts.

"A lawsuit is better than a good bad settlement," Downs said philosophically last week. But if Inverness refuses to allow the project, a suit may be filed to force the rezoning.

Two weeks ago, the Inverness village trustees approved a master plan for the village which recommends development at one to two units per acre around the high school site. Those trustees will make the official decision to allow or deny the rezoning after the plan commission makes its recommendation, due sometime before Feb. 6.

Aigner clarifies donation by Dunbar

Clarification concerning the use of the $171,600 Dunbar Homes Inc., donation was made Friday by Schaumburg Trustee Herb Aigner.

The money would have to be used within the corporate limits of the Village of Schaumburg, he said.

The donation accompanying initial approval of Dunbar's 1,716 condominium units planned for 92 acres at Schaumburg and Plum Grove roads is to be placed in a special fund.

The intent of the donation, Aigner said, is to aid the construction of the Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North planned for a site on Roselle Road just west of Schaumburg Road.

If the hospital does not receive a building permit from the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board, the money would be used elsewhere in the village, Aigner said.

"MAYOR ATCHER has said the money contributed to the citizens of Schaumburg can only be spent within the borders of Schaumburg," he added.

The suggestion has been made that the donation could be turned over to Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 if the hospital did not receive its permit.

To date, no contribution has been made to the school district by Dunbar.

"If the money were turned over to the school district it would legally have to be used for Schaumburg schools or school sites within the village limits," Aigner said.

While he emphasized that he was not a lawyer, he said he was under the impression that legally the money must remain in Schaumburg.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher was not available for comment on the legal issues involved. Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegel also was unavailable.

Apartment dweller defends Prairie Ridge

A resident of Prairie Ridge Apartments in Hoffman Estates has come to the defense of the apartment complex, which recently has been charged with poor maintenance and problems of flooding and sewage backup.

In answer to these charges, Joe Grabski, 374 Bode Rd., said he lives in a basement apartment and has never had any flooding or sewage backup.

Whenever he has had a maintenance problem, the managers have been prompt in correcting it, Grabski said.

"I've lived here going on two years and I'm very familiar with what goes on. When there is flooding, it's because of a sewage backup. People are throwing stuff down the toilets like Pampers and beer cans," he added.

Tenants often are unreasonable in their demands for immediate action, Grabski said. He said people complain for no reason and do not use common sense in making complaints.

Maintenance people often are out working at all hours of the night, he said, and in emergency situations they are "right on the spot."

GRABSKI SAID tenants often complain to him because he is well known and a long-time resident of the complex.

While he agreed the sewage backup is an upsetting problem, he said the tenants are the cause of the problem.

Asked why this apartment complex has more problems than others in the village, Grabski said there are a "lot of transients, who don't really care."

"I've had close-hand experience with apartments near mine, where people stay only a few months and leave, or don't pay their rent," he added. He said these "transients" may be the ones responsible for the plumbing problems.

The relatively low rent at Prairie Ridge attracts these transients, he added.

No abortions at 2 hospitals

No abortions will be performed at the two Northwest suburban Catholic hospitals in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, say officials at other area hospitals but the matter still is an open question.

The statements from hospital officials came in the wake of a ruling last week striking down two states' anti-abortion laws.

"As a member of the Catholic Hospital Association, which has taken a strong stand against abortion, we will not be performing abortions in this hospital," a spokesman at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village said.

AT HOLY FAMILY Hospital in Des Plaines, Sister M. Amata, executive vice president of the hospital, said, "We are following the directive of the Roman Catholic Church and are solidly behind (John) Cardinal Cody."

Both positions were in keeping with a statement earlier last week by Cardinal

Cody blasting the U.S. Supreme Court decision permitting women to obtain abortions through their 12th week of pregnancy. Cody called on Catholics in the medical field to oppose and resist performing abortions.

Two other suburban hospitals Northwest Community and Lutheran General hospitals, said they would wait for a clarification of the Illinois abortion law before taking any position.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has taken no stand on the issue because abortion for non-therapeutic reasons is illegal in the state, Jack Ryan, hospital spokesman, said.

RYAN SAID there will be a decision made when the Illinois courts give an interpretation of the abortion laws.

"At that time the medical staff and the hospital administration will sit down and determine a policy that will certainly be within the rules set down by the state," he said.

"The hospital policy will be set by the

Northwest Community Hospital is a non-denominational institution.

AT LUTHERAN General Hospital in Park Ridge, a spokesman said the American Protestant Hospital Association of Chicago, of which the hospital is a member, has not been opposed to abortion in the past. However, he said the hospital would be autonomous in making a decision on the issue.

The Supreme Court decision was made last Monday on appeals from Texas and Georgia, and an Illinois abortion prohibition has been waiting for a high court ruling for two years. However, abortion will not be legal in Illinois until a decision is made on the constitutionality of the state's abortion statute.

Tax questions arise; motion defeated twice

Chino won't be deeded to park board

Motions to deed over title of Chino Park to the Hoffman Estates Park District were defeated twice by the Hoffman Estates Village Board last week.

The defeats stemmed from questions about back taxes on the property amounting to between $5,000 and $6,000, and who will be liable to pay them.

It is possible the taxes will not have to be paid, reported Village Atty. Edward Hofert, who had negotiated with Edward Hanrahan, former Cook County state's attorney, to have them waived. With the change in the office, now being held by C. Bernard Carey, discussions must start again from the beginning, said Hofert. He expects to learn within 20 or 30 days whether the taxes will be waived.

THE PARK property originally was deeded to the village when Hoffman-Rosner Corp. began construction in the village. Apparently the change in ownership was not recorded immediately.

While the property should have been tax free under village ownership, taxes were levied and never were paid. The village succeeded in obtaining tax free status for the land, but the question of back taxes still remains.

Al Binder, director of Hoffman Estates Park District, attended Monday's meeting on the board's request. He had written to the board asking when the title transfer to the park district would be made, so that the district can budget appropriate funds for maintenance and possibly improvements at the site.

The village has maintained the property thus far, although it has received complaints from park users concerning the condition of baseball diamonds and athletic fields.

ONE-MOTION voted down by the trustees would have had the village paying half the back taxes, and the park district paying the other half. Binder reported he could not speak for the park district board on its willingness to pay a share. The second motion would have had the village paying the full amount.

Trustees William Cowlin and Bruce Lind spoke emphatically in favor of the village paying the full share of taxes, noting the village had promised to deed over the land many months ago. The cost of the maintenance has been a burden on the village, they said, and both suggested the village should get out of the recreation business.

Mayor Frederick Downey, who noted he originally had opposed the village paying any of the back taxes, said he had changed his mind and felt revenue sharing funds could allow the village to pay that expense. He noted the park district does not receive revenue sharing money, and this way the village could use some of the funds to benefit the park district.

When the first resolution, to pay half the taxes, met a tie vote, Downey voted against it and broke the tie, speaking in favor of the village picking up the total tax bill, if it is not waived. Because there was no tie on the second resolution, Downey did not vote on it.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, Trustee Virginia Hayter was authorized to investigate a consumer protection measure adopted by the Streamwood Village Board, with possible applications in Hoffman Estates.

Mrs. Hayter also received authority to request an office of the attorney general's Division of Consumer Fraud be located in the municipal building.

The board agreed to listen to a request for funds from the Northwest Opportunity Center. A representative is to be invited to a coming meeting.

Trustee Lind requested the Police Department investigate raising the speed limit on Hassell Road between Barrington Road and residential areas. The current limit is 25 mph.

Thought to have 40 members

Bad check ring bilking NW suburban banks, businesses of many thousands

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1496 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,550 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person whose check was taken from the mail.

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $500 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an "ex-convict" who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoff-

No abortions at 2 hospitals

No abortions will be performed at the two Northwest suburban Catholic hospitals in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, but officials at other area hospitals say the matter still is an open question.

The statements from hospital officials came in the wake of a ruling last week striking down two states' anti-abortion laws.

"As a member of the Catholic Hospital Association, which has taken a strong stand against abortion, we will not be performing abortions in this hospital," a spokesman at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village said.

AT HOLY FAMILY Hospital in Des Plaines, Sister M. Amata, executive vice president of the hospital, said, "We are following the directive of the Roman Catholic Church and are solidly behind (John) Cardinal Cody."

Both positions were in keeping with a statement earlier last week by Cardinal Cody blasting the U.S. Supreme Court decision permitting women to obtain abortions through their 12th week of pregnancy. Cody called on Catholics in the medical field to oppose and resist performing abortions.

Two other suburban hospitals Northwest Community and Lutheran General hospitals, said they would wait for a clarification of the Illinois abortion law before taking any position.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has taken no stand on the issue because abortion for non-therapeutic reasons is illegal in the state, Jack Ryan, hospital spokesman, said.

RYAN SAID there will be a decision made when the Illinois courts give an interpretation of the abortion laws.

"At that time the medical staff and the hospital administration will sit down and determine a policy that will certainly be within the rules set down by the state," he said.

"The hospital policy will be set by the hospital and staff, but no matter what the hospital says, the doctors would still have the right to refuse to perform the operation for his own personal reasons," Ryan said. "The ultimate decision depends on two people — the mother and the doctor."

Northwest Community Hospital is a non-denominational institution.

AT LUTHERAN General Hospital in Park Ridge, a spokesman said the American Protestant Hospital Association of Chicago, of which the hospital is a member, has not been opposed to abortion in the past. However, he said the hospital would be autonomous in making a decision on the issue.

The Supreme Court decision was made last Monday on appeals from Texas and Georgia, and an Illinois abortion prohibition has been waiting for a high court ruling for two years. However, abortion will not be legal in Illinois until a decision is made on the constitutionality of the state's abortion statute.

Fire departments weigh extension of fire cadets

Representatives from several Northwest suburban fire departments met Friday to discuss an extension of the fire cadet program now in operation in Mount Prospect.

Mount Prospect firefighter Leonard Kaiser, who pioneered the cadet program, said the meeting was held to inform the other departments of the program and to find out which departments, if any, would be interested in participating starting next fall. Elk Grove Village, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows had representatives at the meeting.

Each representative is to report back to his fire chief and municipal government, Kaiser said, and they will then let him know whether their towns would like to join the program.

Kaiser has said that Rolling Meadows already has indicated a desire to join the program, under which high school juniors and seniors are being trained to be firemen.

Ten students, mostly from Prospect High School, are studying under the Mount Prospect cadet program, which started last September. The boys receive credit for their 15 hours a week on job training and five hours a week classroom study through the Dist. 214 Diversified Education Program. District officials have indicated that they are pleased with the program and would like to broaden the program to include other high schools in the district, Kaiser said.

COMMUNITY DISCOUNT WORLD, Mount Prospect's last discount house, closed Christmas Eve. It will be replaced by a Forest City home improvement center.

No discount market here

by TOM VON MALDER

Discount stores have fallen on hard times in Mount Prospect.

The village's last large chain discount house, Community Discount World on Rand Road, closed Christmas Eve and a planned Topps Discount operation was scrapped even as construction on the building, also on Rand Road, continued.

Why the dearth of discount houses here? A Community Discount World official said the major reason is the nature of the market in Mount Prospect. "You have a different economic strata here," he said. "It is a wealthier market."

Yet in the neighboring communities, discount stores abound and their numbers are increasing each year. Arlington Heights has four (one was built last year), Palatine has two and Rolling Meadows has one up and one under construction.

BUT MOUNT PROSPECT shoppers apparently were not interested in lesser known, less expensive merchandise, at least in the case of Community Discount World.

"That store did not progress like our others," the spokesman for Community continued. "It just hasn't cut it, and management decided to close it." The store was originally a Shopper's World and bought out by Community, along with the rest of the chain, about 1968.

Mount Prospect shoppers apparently prefer to go to a Montgomery Ward's, Wieboldt's, Carson Pirie & Scott or Goldblatt's. It was indicated that they may even shy away from any store labeled "discount."

That seems to be the thinking of the May Store Co. people of St. Louis. The company is currently trying to get rezoning from the Mount Prospect Village Board that would permit them to build a Venture Store as part of the Huntington Commons development along Elmhurst Road.

Repeatedly during village hearings on the rezoning, spokesmen for the company have said the proposed store would not be a discount-type operation. Rather, they called it a full-line department store.

IT APPEARS the May Co. people realize that discount stores are not viable in Mount Prospect, and they are doing their best not to present Venture as another discount store.

The decision by the Topps officials not to continue with their plans to locate here was reportedly part of the nationwide cutback on their discount operations.

Zangwill Munies, an official of Courtesy Home Centers which took over the Topps location and finished constructing the building, said that when his company purchased the location they understood Topps was "retrenching across the country." He said Topps had just sold a chain of stores in California.

So Mount Prospect has no major discount store. Instead two home improvement centers are moving into the community. Courtesy Home Center will open in March as the second area store of the company. They hope to have between six and 10 eventually. Forest City Materials Co., a Cleveland-based chain, will open a store this spring at the Community Discount World site.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $268 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.

The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 359 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

Juan V. Corona goes back to court today with hopes for a new trial planned to charges that a sheriff's matron influenced a 63-year-old woman juror's vote. Naomi Underwood, a widow, and Georgia Wallace, a part-time county attendant are key figures in the defense effort to overturn Corona's conviction for killing 25 migrant workers.

At least six tornadoes ripped through central Florida, tearing the roof off an apartment, damaging homes, throwing trees around like toothpicks, and injuring at least 18 persons. The worst damage was in Orlando where 14 were hurt and 300 left homeless when a tornado tore the roof off their apartment building.

The World

British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops. In Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.

Special medical evacuation planes are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.

China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as convincing proof that "sanity and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

District to take a poll

'Should unit school study go on?'

A poll will be taken Thursday among members of a citizens' committee in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 as to whether it should proceed with its feasibility study of the unit district plan.

The group, known as the Citizens

Reorganization Study Committee, will conduct the poll among its members at its meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, committee chairman, said, "If they (committee members) vote no, we'll pack up our tools and go home."

feeling. If the decision is not to go ahead with the study, we'll simply do our report and quit."

HOWEVER, IF the group decides to proceed with the study, according to Bahmaier, "then we would wish to set some tentative boundaries" for the unit district proposal. "The idea is to finalize our figures (enrollment, financial, etc.) based on those boundaries," he said.

Bahmaier said the group is considering primarily four different boundary possibilities: an Elk Grove Village unit district, splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway; a unit district using the present Dist. 59 boundaries; a unit with the attendance boundaries of Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect high schools; and a unit district that would include all of High School Dist. 214.

The group is divided into several subcommittees that are studying, among other things, the legal, financial and educational aspects of a unit vs. a dual school district.

Currently the area operates under a dual district system with Dist. 59 handling grades K-8 and Dist. 214 serving as a separate high school district. Under a unit system, one school district would take care of grades K-12.

According to Bahmaier, if the committee decides to proceed with its nearly completed study, committee members will gather data from advocates of the dual district system. Probably he said, these would be area school administrators.

THE GROUP decided at its meeting Thursday to take the poll later this week. Also at the Thursday meeting, Coney said, the work of each subcommittee was discussed. Coney said subcommittees have done enough background work to be able to make a recommendation for a unit district. The only thing the subcommittees need is the boundaries of the proposed unit district before they start work on their final report.

Bahmaier said the general committee will also be asked this week for a recommendation on the possibility of waiting until several pending court cases regarding unit districting are resolved.

Coney said if the committee agrees to continue study on a possible unit district and proposes boundaries for the district, a final report should be submitted to the school board by March 1. The deadline was established by the school board for the reports from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service.

According to Coney, however, there will be no serious problems if the recommendation is submitted after March 1.

man Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

School board member Cole won't run again

Wheeling resident Ronald Cole has announced that he will not seek a third term on the Dist. 21 school board. He has been a member of the board for six years.

Meanwhile, board member Edwin Smith, who also has been on the board for six years, said he will seek a third term and will seek support from the Dist. 21 General Caucus.

A third board member, Rev. L. James Wylie, said he still is undecided as to his candidacy.

COLE IS A former president of the school board and has been a Wheeling resident for 17 years. Recently he was selected to serve on the Wheeling Palwaukee Airport steering committee to form better relations between the village and the airport.

Cole said he was not seeking a third term because of business priorities. He said he had given the decision a great deal of thought and is sorry to leave the board.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill, speaking on behalf of the administration, said he was sorry to see Cole leave the board. "The Dist. 21 board is like a family, and when someone leaves after six years you have to be a little sad."

"I can't argue with the fact that being on this board is very time consuming. Ron has given us that time and effort and we appreciate his work for Dist. 21," said Gill.

Cole will remain on the school board until the April election.

SMITH WILL TRY to stretch his years on the board to nine with the upcoming election. In the past two years he has acted as the board's liaison in contract negotiations with the Wheeling Faculty Council.

Ronald Cole

A resident of Buffalo Grove, Smith is a teacher and coach at Maine South High School in Des Plaines. He has lived in Dist. 21 for 15 years and is a former Wheeling village trustee.

Smith will seek the General Caucus support at its meeting Feb. 14. The caucus will begin screening candidates, and on that night will vote to support as many as four candidates who they feel are suitable for election.

The caucus meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Dist. 21 Administrative Center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Caucus meetings are open to the public, but only delegates can vote.

School maternity policy gains OK

A new maternity leave policy for teachers in Dist. 21 was approved by the school board Thursday.

The school district's attorneys felt that there should be a policy on file because of recent court hearings regarding such leave in schools across the United States.

All leave rendered under the new policy will be without pay. Leave will be granted to all tenured teachers, if they follow prescribed procedures as outlined in the policy.

Under special circumstances, a maternity leave may be granted to a non-tenured teacher by action of the board and they will follow all the rules of a tenured teacher.

HOWEVER, A non-tenured teacher who is granted the leave will have to be employed as a full-time teacher for two consecutive school terms before again becoming eligible for tenure. The board also points out in its policy that leave to one non-tenured teacher shall not constitute a precedent for the granting of future leaves.

The new policy also applies to teachers who are adopting children. Those teachers are allotted the same privileges as teachers actually giving birth to children.

The board also discussed how the policy will work in relation to men teachers, and decided that theoretically it would be the same. "However, I don't see how many men could afford to take off from work, without pay, after their wives have children," said one board member.

There has been no comment from the Wheeling Faculty Council on the new policy, but it is reportedly going to be discussed during contract negotiations.

In other action Thursday night, the board approved a bid of $4,775 for sound equipment to go into the Nathaniel Hawthorne school.

IT ALSO announced that Mark Twain principal, Dennis Carpenter, will be transferred to the new Washington Irving School in Buffalo Grove and Katie Sammel, principal of Walt Whitman school, will be the district's new science coordinator.

The board approved the appointment of intern Bob Gorry as the new principal of Robert Louis Stevenson school and said David Statson will be the new principal of James Whitcomb Riley school in Arlington Heights.

Statson will be the only one of the four principals to start his job this year. He will begin at Riley school today. He came to Dist. 21 from Waterloo, Iowa.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district is still interviewing for the openings now at Whitman and Twain schools.

The board adjourned the Thursday meeting until Tuesday, Feb. 6, when it will have a special meeting for evaluation of Gill. This is a new policy instituted this year, and the session is expected to take place in executive session.

Youth sentenced on two charges

An 18-year-old Mount Prospect youth has been sentenced to two concurrent seven-day terms in the Cook County House of Corrections after he pleaded guilty to charges of theft and driving an automobile on a revoked driver's license.

Paul K. Lutsch, 316 N. Wille St., was sentenced Friday in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court. He was charged with stealing a set of car keys Dec. 28 from John's Sunoco station, 901 Rand Rd.

However, an attendant, Charles A. Kolder, says the keys' work tag protruding from Lutsch's pocket and an off-duty policeman, who happened to be in the station, held him until Mount Prospect police arrived.

On Dec. 15, Lutsch was placed on court supervision after he was found guilty of reckless conduct and discharging a firearm in the village.

During a shooting spree Nov. 17, when Lutsch was allegedly shooting squirrels, Lutsch injured one person, struck two cars and a policeman's home with bullets. The man was injured only slightly.

Commentary

Park district needs your help

by CINDY TEW

The Arlington Heights Park District may go broke as early as 1978.

And if it doesn't happen in 1978, it will happen soon thereafter. As Roger Burke, treasurer of the district puts it, "We're running out of steam. Costs keep going up and our assessed valuation is only going to go up for so long — they are running out of places to build in Arlington Heights."

The whole problem is that the park district is almost totally dependent on the property tax for revenue. When the assessed valuation of the village levels off, when building levels off, the tax base of the district is going to remain constant, and costs keep going up.

Besides Burke, another person who seems to be excited about the bleak state of the park district is Commissioner Kay Muller.

MRS. MULLER is upset that the park district's December $2.55 million referendum went down to a four to one defeat. Not just because the people don't want extra taxes but, she charges, because they don't seem to care about the park district.

Few people even bothered to go to information seminars before the referendum.

In an attempt to find out exactly what people think about their multi-million dollar park district, Mrs. Muller is spearheading a public relations campaign.

"We need to go to the far corners of the village to find out what people want us to do with their park district," said Mrs. Muller. She's very conscious of the fact that the district, all 350 acres and $10 million worth of it, belongs to the people.

Mrs. Muller deserves praise, and response from the public, for her noble endeavor of trying to reach the people. People within the park district sure haven't given her much support.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, said that it's hopeless to get people to any meetings and cited the fact that no one shows up at regular board meetings. Roger Burke cited the fact that only 4,888 people in the entire park district even bothered to vote in the referendum.

IF PEOPLE prove Thornton and Burke right and don't bother to attend upcoming park district meetings they may be faced with a deteriorating district. That is, if they want a park district at all.

There are alternatives to a park district as it is now set up. No parks as we know them is one alternative.

The district could become part of the village or part of the school district. It could also join with small districts in the area to become a larger district.

Village administrators have been eyeing the park district for a long time. If it was under village control there would be that much more tax effort and therefore that much more revenue sharing money.

"The question shouldn't be how much money can be generated by incorporating the district into the village, but how much better service the village can give the people in the way of parks," said Mrs. Muller.

THERE IS NO division currently in the village that deals in any way with recreation. Radical, and probably costly, changes likely would have to take place to incorporate a parks department in the village that works as smoothly as our park district now.

Another alternative, and more viable from a recreational program standpoint, is incorporating the park district with the school district. School Dist. 214 has currently put out a brochure for "Adult Education and Recreation." Seems that education and recreation are natural to go hand in hand.

Unfortunately, the school districts are in just as bad shape, financially, as park districts. Both are based on property taxes and nobody wants to pay more taxes.

SO WE'RE RIGHT back where we started. There's no easy solution to what to do with parks — except let them go to seed.

For those who don't want easy solutions, however, there is a good solution which would take time and effort, and maybe a little money, to implement.

The solution is, beef up, and maybe consolidate, the park districts we already have in the area.

After some initial costs for new, money-making, facilities the park district could be a self-sustaining operation. If, for example, the $1,275,000 fee facility had been approved by the voters, money made by rental of the facility could help pay for other recreation programs around the district.

Mrs. Muller calls it creative financing. And if the taxpayers will take time to find out about what revenue producing facilities could do for them, it could work.

Bad check ring bilking NW suburban banks, businesses of many thousands

by BOB CASEY

An organized ring of forgers who specialize in passing bad checks has bilked Northwest suburban banks and businesses out of thousands of dollars in recent months.

The ring, led by an ex-convict and equipped with stolen blank checks and identification cards is thought by police to have at least 40 members and to concentrate on the suburban Chicago area, although it operates throughout Illinois.

Local, state and federal authorities for sometime have been looking into the activities of the ring, which is estimated by some sources to have taken in from several hundred thousand dollars up to $2 million statewide in the last year or so.

Despite periodic arrests of individual ring members and detailed police theories about the group's organization and activities, investigators have been unable to tie its leaders together with the kind of evidence needed to put them out of business.

PERSONS SUSPECTED of being ring members have been arrested recently on bad check charges in several area suburbs, including Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Police in Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove have arrest warrants for women thought to be part of the group.

According to information gathered by Herald reporters from a number of sources, ring members specialize in slipping forged checks past tellers and clerks at banks, savings and loan associations and large food stores.

Another favorite swindle is buying late model autos from individuals who have advertised their cars in the classified columns of newspapers. Payment is always a bad check.

The ring member usually will bargain just hard enough to fool the car owner and then accept the owner's original asking price. The auto title is signed over on the spot. A week or 10 days later, the owner finds out the price he got for his car wasn't so good after all.

Police have some 25 reports from this area alone on the used car swindle. A typical case was that of James Elam, 1496 Howard St., Des Plaines. On Jan. 4, Elam told police, a man who identified himself as Dave Miller of Markham, Ill., took a look at the 1969 Chevrolet Nova Elam had advertised for sale.

THE NEXT DAY, the man returned with a check for $1,450, took the title and left with the auto. The check later bounced and Elam went to police, who believe "Dave Miller" is an alias for one of the ring members.

The check given Elam was from Financial Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of south suburban Olympia Fields, part of a batch of several thousand checks stolen from a Chicago check printing firm.

The ring apparently makes frequent use of the stolen Financial Federal checks but has also passed checks drawn on the Avenue State Bank of Oak Park, National Bank of Austin in Chicago and on other banks in Illinois.

In addition to a check-writing machine, which gives the stolen checks a further appearance of authenticity, the ring members have been able to obtain a wide range of identification cards, including check-cashing ID's issued by supermarket chains.

There is also evidence, police say, that ring members break into mail boxes to steal personal checks. With the bank name and check number of the mail box checks, ring members have worked some of their best swindles in this way.

With a forged check in hand, usually in an amount such as $2,550 or $2,750, the ring member will walk into the bank and deposit it in the account of the person whose check was taken from the mail.

HE OBTAINS A checking deposit slip from an unsuspecting teller, adds the name and account number from the stolen personal check, fills out the slip so as to deposit most of the forged check and gets $500 to $1,000 cash in return.

A woman believed to be a ring member is wanted for taking $500 cash from the Mount Prospect State Bank Jan. 15 using that method. She passed a bad check drawn on the National Bank of Austin by Nu-Era Interior Decorators, an account that police said was closed in December.

Pm police are also looking for a man who obtained a deposit slip from a teller and made off with $950 in cash Dec. 15 from First National Bank of Des Plaines. A month later, security guards at First National chased and arrested a suspicious would-be depositor who turned out to be William Turner, 42, identified as one of the ring leaders. He was charged with forgery.

According to an organization chart worked out by investigators to describe the ring hierarchy, Turner is in charge of the group's check passers. Like most of the ring members, Turner is black and is a narcotics addict, according to police.

He reports to a 44-year-old Chicago man described as a stolen check wholesaler, according to the organization chart. At the top of the chart, above the wholesaler, is an ex-convict who has masterminded the ring's activities.

HE REPORTEDLY kept tabs on the ring while in prison recently, and now directs its operations, collecting huge amounts of money but not getting directly involved in the thefts or check passing.

Other alleged ring members arrested or wanted in this area include Harold Swanson, 40, of 1314 Rosedale Ave., Chicago, who was charged with forgery and several other crimes last year in Hoffman Estates.

Swanson, one of the few white members of the ring, rammed four police squad cars during a chase at speeds up to 60 miles an hour as he tried to flee the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. Police were called to the bank when a teller suspected Swanson of passing a bogus check.

In addition to the charges against him in Des Plaines, Turner is under indictment in four Illinois communities, including Hoffman Estates, for forgery or deceptive practice.

Mount Prospect and Buffalo Grove police have arrest warrants for a woman identified as Barbara Barker, an alleged ring member wanted for passing or trying to pass bad checks at food stores in both suburbs.

Authorities may have missed a chance to collar several ring members at the time of Turner's arrest Jan. 11 in Des Plaines. According to police reports, Turner signaled to a car load of accomplices as he ran from the First National Bank drive-in window with bank security guards in pursuit. The accomplices drove off as Turner was captured and the guards were unable to provide police with a license number.

Also missing was a briefcase seen in his possession as he fled from the bank. The briefcase, which may have contained some helpful evidence, was never found, despite a careful police search of the area.

Caucus called fiery dragon

trustees — James Ryan and Charles Bennett.

Many of the old-line Caucus workers and supporters cried foul and charged that a special interest group — namely those people most concerned about the possibility of low-income housing on the St. Viator property — had "stacked the deck" and had "taken over the Caucus."

Immediately after the slating session, secret meetings were held at which a group of Caucus insiders developed a slate which included the eventually victorious trio, plus Bennett. From the Caucus slate, only Salinsky won a seat on the board.

IN THE SPACE of 15 years, the Arlington Heights Caucus had gone full circle. After beginning as a maverick group, it soon became the "establishment." Then, at least for one year, was identified again as a group of upstarts.

The proper question is not whether the Caucus was "taken over," as was alleged, ironically, by essentially the same group that had taken over village politics in 1958, but whether the Caucus system lives up to its original objectives and if it is the best method of selecting those to govern the village's 70,000 people.

2 from area charged with sale of cocaine

Two men, one from Arlington Heights and one from Mount Prospect, have been charged with the sale of cocaine at an Arlington Heights apartment.

The arrest was made by the Metropolitan Narcotics and Dangerous Drug Enforcement Group (MEG) and the Arlington Heights police.

Eugene G. Micari, 25, of 821 E. Falcon Drive, was arrested at this apartment Thursday when he allegedly offered to sell cocaine to a MEG agent.

Also arrested was Phillip R. Fenner, 30, of 2032 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, who was reported in the apartment at the time of the alleged sale.

Micari reportedly drew a gun at the time of arrest and was subsequently charged with aggravated assault, possession of amphetamines and possession of marijuana.

A third board member, Rev. L. James Wylie, said he still is undecided as to his candidacy.

COLE IS A former president of the school board and has been a Wheeling resident for 17 years. Recently he was selected to serve on the Wheeling-Palwaukee Airport steering committee to form better relations between the village and the airport.

Pupil gets experience teaching in Europe

Teaching students from 33 nations and touring 14 countries was included in the student teaching experience of Marianne Sue Clausung, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon H. Clausung, 510 S. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights.

Marianne taught at the United Nations School in Geneva, Switzerland, from September through December. Parents of the children she taught were associated with the United Nations, World Health Organization and other world-wide corporations.

A senior at St. Cloud State College, St. Cloud, Minn., she is a representative of the student teaching abroad program at the college. She was graduated from Arlington High School in 1970 and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Garbage hike will cost $4.44

A recommended increase in the price of residential garbage collection, if approved, will cost the homeowner an additional $4.44 during the next 12 months. But for an extra $1.56 residents could have large household items picked up almost anytime they want.

The $1.56 figure represents the annual difference between a 37-cent a month increase recommended by the finance committee and a 50-cent a month increase sought by the Laseke Disposal Co.

Laseke has said that if it was granted the full 50-cent raise, it would begin picking up large household goods on the second collection day each week, rather than require residents to hold big items for the annual spring cleanup.

At 37 cents more a month, the company says it would have to atay with the existing system.

VILLAGE Health Director Frank Charlton says spring clean up has become an administrative headache and the Laseke company is finding it more and more difficult to pick up everybody's big items all at the same time.

As a result, the village is proposing that the new garbage contract, which is being readied for bids now, will include the collection of household items on the second weekly pickup at each residence.

Laseke says he would be willing to implement the new service now, provided he gets the additional 50 cents a week.

At a 37-cent increase, or no increase, service will remain the same and another spring cleanup will be scheduled, probably during Earth Week, April 17.

Adventures of your Garbageman

Speaking of weird items in the garbage, one of our men was hospitalized for two weeks last Fall because a customer discarded an unprotected injection needle.

As the driver pressed down the contents of his carry-can — a normal procedure — the needle pierced his glove and hand, which quickly became infected. For a while, arm surgery was contemplated — but fortunately, the infection was checked in time.

Meanwhile, he missed three weeks of work which, for a father of two, was quite a penalty to pay for a customer's thoughtlessness.

A strip of cardboard would have protected the needle in this case, just as an attached note to warn of broken glass will usually insure against injury.

We will appreciate your cooperation.

$18.5 million cost to village to safeguard against flooding

by KURT DAER
It will cost $18.5 million to safeguard the village of Arlington Heights against the ravages of storm water flooding, according to a report prepared by a consulting engineer.
The report, which itself cost the village $14,000, projects that $10.3 million out of the total cost of the recommended improvements would have to be borne by the Village of Arlington Heights.
An estimated $8.5 million is anticipated from the Metropolitan Sanitary District and $1.7 million from the federal government.
The report was prepared by R. J. Peterson, head of R. J. Peterson and Associates Inc., the same engineering firm that supplied a smaller flooding report in 1967.
The report proposes eight major and numerous minor projects designed "to prevent a recurrence of flood conditions that have occurred in many sections of the village this year."
INCLUDED ARE:
• The McDonald Creek Watershed Project. A permanent 100-acre lake to be located east of Windsor Drive to serve as a watershed wide retention facility, complete with improvements to the upstream creek, an upstream trunk sewer and pumping facilities. Total estimated cost is $9.8 million.
• The Weller Creek Watershed Project. A combined sewage retention reservoir at the old sewage disposal plant site with provisions for a future connection to the MSD Deep Tunnel System plus a relief sewer from the proposed reservoir to Arlington High School. Total estimated cost is $3.3 million.
• The Ridge Park Project. A retention basin with pumping facilities, trunk sewers and force main. Total estimated cost is $981,000.
• The Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls Project. A supplemental retention basin to operate in conjunction with the existing basin in Hickory Meadows and a collecting sewer to serve Arlington

LAKE ARLINGTON, one of eight major flood control projects recommended in the Peterson report, would cover a 10-acre area east of Windsor Drive and directly south of the Ivy Hill subdivision. The project would cost an estimated $9.8 million — one-half of the total combined cost of all the recommended improvements. The Peterson report outlines a flood-control program "that can realistically be expected to prevent a recurrence of flood conditions that have occurred in many sections of the village this year."

Caucus: fiery dragon of local politics

by ROGER CAPETTINI
First in a Series
There is a political animal at work in Arlington Heights — breathing fire and devouring almost everything in its path.
In the past 17 years, the dragon-like creature has stalked the village political scene eight times — facing all challenges but only occasionally suffering minor defeat.
The animal now is making another of its biennial tours.
The Arlington Heights Caucus is at work.
It has come from the hiding place in which it has resided since April, 1971, rejuvenated itself in a public meeting, gone through a series of organizational and selection meetings and Sunday formed its slate of candidates for the coming April village election.
From now until April 3, the Caucus will make its presence known in every corner of the village, seeking and gathering support for its standard-bearers in anticipation of another victory at the polls.
THE ARLINGTON Heights Caucus has been largely successful in that effort since its beginning. It has been challenged through the years, both by individuals and by entire slates. Only once, however, has it met significant defeat — and that was a peculiar situation to say the least.
It draws its strength from a combination of widespread support for the concept, from apathy and from the very appearance that it cannot be beaten — that it, in fact, represents the consensus of the people.
The animal commonly called the Arlington Heights Caucus, although its official name changes each year, was formed in November, 1966, by a group of men, many of whom still reside in the village — Harold Klingner, Les Floetz, Frank Palmatier, Bill Bishop and Gerald Chapman.
Now generally regarded as the "establishment" of Arlington Heights politics, at the time it was a "maverick" organization, created to provide an alternative to the method, or non-method, of candidate selection existing at the time.
More specifically, the Caucus was formed to oust Albert Goedke, then village president, from office. The nucleus of the newly formed Caucus in 1966 said they wanted the Caucus to "seek candidates rather than have prospective candidates seek support from the citizens," and to, "increase citizen interest in our government and restore a two-meeting type of rule to village hall."
Earl Ogler, a primary mover behind the new Caucus, went a step further, stating, "Virtually all (of the caucus supporters) are concerned about the lack of dignity in the conduct of village officers."

3 projects may require school

Three large condominium and apartment developments in the northwest part of Arlington Heights may create a need for a new school.
The plans are three or four years down the road but we have to keep an eye on those things," said Donald V. Strong, superintendent of the district. The area most affected is the Greenbrier School attendance zone.
Developments include the expansion of Stonebridge Hill Apartments at Rand Road and Kennicott Road; Randhaven, a condominium development at Ill. Rte. 63 and Rand Road; and Chelsea Square, a condominium development at Rte. 63 and Palatine Road.
If Robert Powell, president of the school board, said the district isn't sure of how many children the developments will generate.
"We have rules of thumb that we follow as far as number of children gener-

FROM A NUCLEUS of 30 men, the Caucus was formed. It chose a slate of candidates, headed by Edward Carlisle, and actively campaigned against Goedke's 'People's Party' and the 'Home Service Party' led by Edward Jackson.
Campaigning against what the caucus called Goedke's administration of "privilege, patronage and procrastination," the Caucus Party swept to a landslide victory in its first outing.
In the next few years, the Caucus concept grew in popularity and the dream of the founders for a broad depth of public participation in village government generally was realized. As its popularity continued, so did its success at the polls — Caucus candidates defeating all comers until April, 1967, when George Burlingame, running as an independent, defeated Kenneth Dugan for trustee.
Burlingame's victory, however, was more a win over Dugan than a win over the Caucus. During the campaign Dugan had made statements favoring open housing, while Burlingame campaigned almost exclusively on an anti-open housing plank.
THE 1971 ELECTION saw three non-Caucus candidates winning at the polls — James Ryan, Alice Harms and Ralph Clabour — but to many voters the trio was more representative of Caucus than the actual caucus candidates, who in the minds of many long-time Caucus supporters, had taken over the Caucus for a special-interest group.
At the second public meeting in 1971, the Caucus selected for nomination four newcomers to the Arlington Heights political scene — Ted Salinsky, Gene Griffin, Ken Banet and John Collins — thereby dumping two incumbent village-

This Morning In Brief

The Nation
President Nixon told Americans he is determined to "get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook" by eliminating programs which he said are not worth their cost. In a preview of the $298 billion federal budget he will send to Congress today, Nixon urged the public to pressure lawmakers to hold down spending to counterweight "special interests" wanting money for favored programs.
The Defense Department said the Communists' lists of American prisoners of war carried 559 names but were "incomplete" because they did not include six U.S. servicemen known to have been captured in Laos. Pentagon sources also said names of few of the 1,334 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Indochina appear on the list of prisoners.

The World
British soldiers in Northern Ireland fired nausea gas, rubber bullets and a water cannon to break up crowds of rampaging youths marking the first anniversary of "Bloody Sunday" when 13 persons died in clashes with troops. In Belfast, troops came under "heavy fire" from 12 gunmen in the Lower Falls Road, a predominantly Catholic area.
Special medical evacuation planes are ready to make the two-hour flight across the China Sea from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to Hanoi to pick up the first American prisoners of war to be released by the North Vietnamese. North Vietnam will release the men in groups of 100 to 150 during the next 60 days.
China hailed the Vietnam peace agreement as a "tremendous victory" for the Vietnamese people and the world. In Peking's first official reaction, the Communist Party paper, People's Daily, said the treaty proved that the United States, despite thousands of troops and millions of tons of bombs, "could not force the Vietnamese people into submission."

The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda hailed the Vietnam peace treaty as convincing proof that "sanity and realism" are growing stronger in international relations.

The War
The Vietnam war ended officially with the sound of church bells and pagoda gongs in Saigon, but the momentum of fighting continued for hours past the 8 a.m. cease-fire deadline. The Communists captured 66 hamlets after the truce went into effect.
